REPEAL PLANK BATTLE IS WON, DEMOCRATS SAY

Garner and Others Point the Way.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

With all eyes turned to the arrival today of Boss John F. Curry of Tammany, who holds the key to the Democratic nomination for President, the Jeffersonians on the scene were virtually a unit last night in the opinion that the Democratic national convention, which meets in the Stadium next Monday, will declare for submission of prohibition repeal to the states.

As it is now conceived, this plank will propose that congress submit an amendment to the constitution repealing the eighteenth amendment outright, but will not commit Democrats to vote for the repeal once it has been submitted. In this manner it is proposed to bridge the gap between the wet and the dry Democrats.

Garner Helps Repeal Along.

The crystallization of sentiment in favor of a repeal plank was accelerated by the unqualified declaration of Speaker Jack Garner of Texas for wiping the eighteenth amendment from the constitution and the statements of Senators Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and Carter Glass of Virginia indorsing submission of a repeal plank.

The position taken by these southern leaders is generally regarded as further evidence of the crumbling of the prohibition edifice even in the dry (politically) south, long time keeper of the ark of the Volsteadian covenant.

Bids for Smith Support.

In the case of Garner, his rallying to the banner of unqualified repeal is interpreted as a bid for the support of Al Smith and his extreme wet following, who constitute the spearhead of the movement to stop Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Garner voted against the 18th amendment, but until yesterday had not disclosed his position on the question of repeal or modification in this campaign. He was notably the beneficiary of dry support in the California primary, which he won. Cards were circulated with this legend: "If you are wet vote for Smith, if you are dry vote for Garner, but if you are neither wet nor dry vote for Roosevelt."

Boss Curry Due Today.

Mr. Curry will arrive late today, accompanied by other Tammany leaders. The New York delegation of 94, largest in the national convention, will arrive Sunday. But long before that Boss Curry will have determined whom the Tammany members will vote for on the first ballot for the presidential nomination.

If Mr. Curry, after surveying the situation, decides to throw the Tammany vote to Gov. Roosevelt it will be all over but the shouting. The nomination of Roosevelt on the first ballot will be a certainty.

If Curry decides to throw the Tammany vote to Al Smith he will signalize his belief that Roosevelt cannot be nominated on the first ballot, that Roosevelt can be defeated eventually, and a compromise candidate named.

Baker or Ritchie Favored.

Newton D. Baker of Ohio, secretary of war in the Wilson administration, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland are the potential compromise candidates who are chiefly favored by those opposed to Roosevelt.

The decision reached by Boss Curry will be watched with intense interest not only because he holds the key to the nomination at this time, but because Gov. Roosevelt holds in his hand the fate of Tammany Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City, who incidentally will be a member of the Tammany delegation in the convention. The governor will decide after the convention whether to remove the mayor on charges of unfitness growing out of the New York graft investigation by the Hofstadter committee.

May Bow to Inevitable.

According to Roosevelt lieutenants, it is not so much a question of Curry throwing the Tammany delegation to the governor as of Curry bowing to the inevitable, for it is claimed that 90 of the 94 New York delegates are ready to leap for the Roosevelt band wagon. It also transpires that Roosevelt himself has been in conference with Curry in the last few days on matters pertaining to the convention. Following this conference it was announced that Roosevelt would be placed in nomination by John E.

SHARKEY WINS DECISION; HE'S RING CHAMPION

70,000 See Schmeling Lose Crown.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—The heavyweight boxing championship of the world passed from Max Schmeling of Germany to Jack Sharkey of Boston, Mass., by the decision of one judge and a referee at the end of a 15 round fight in the Madison Square Garden's Long Island City arena this evening.

It had appeared from the fighting that Schmeling had won. Sharkey had fought the last round in a spirit of reckless desperation which indicated that he, himself, realized he had been beaten. The decision was contrary to the weight of evidence and Schmeling, as he stood in mid-ring after the verdict speaking into the microphone, seemed on the point of tears.

The German fighter was robbed of his title, whether by the sincere misjudgment and honest incompetence of the two officials who voted against him, or by prejudice, or by some influence more sinister. Gunboat Smith, the old heavyweight fighter, who refereed, and George Kelly, one of the judges, voted for Sharkey and Charles Mathison, the other judge, gave his choice to Schmeling. Smith and both of the judges are New Yorkers.

70,000 Pay $400,000 at Gates.

There were about 70,000 customers in the arena and the gate receipts were estimated off hand at $400,000, although Jimmy Johnston, the manager of the Madison Square Garden corporation's prize fight department, was willing to allow a few thousand dollars either way for error in the guessing.

"We won't know for a day or so how much money we took in," Mr. Johnston said. "These returns will come in slow, like the Republican vote from upstate."

The crowd loosed a large roar at the decisions from which it was impossible to determine whether the verdict was popular or otherwise, but all along the working press row and in the preferred customers' rows close up to the ring the opinion plainly preferred Schmeling and resented, if it did not actually suspect the official judgment.

Jacobs Cries "Robbery."

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, a skinny little citizen of Hell's Kitchen, grabbed a microphone as the broadcasters popped into the air the consternation following the decision, and babbled his soul into the night air.

"I don't want any one to think I am a poor sport," Jacobs said. His sharp face was very pale and he waved his free hand in a persuasive gesture that would have sold a dress suit to a stevedore. "I don't think I'm a poor sport. But my boy didn't lose the fight in this bowl tonight. He was robbed."

"Rotten" Says Mayor Walker.

Speaking to the German populace over an international hookup, Jimmy Walker, mayor, exclaimed in English, "That is the rottenest decision I ever heard in my life."

Hans Reichman, a German journalist, who was in charge of these proceedings, turned to Walker and asked, "Do you really want me to say that in my translation?"

"Why, don't you want to say it?" the mayor asked.

"Sure," Reichman said. "I'm a German and I think it was rotten, too, but I may be prejudiced."

"Well, you may go ahead and say it for me," Walker said.

Bottle Hits Reporter.

Ten minutes after the fight, while the semi-finalists were mauling one another around in a meaningless chaser act, there was an explosion at the ringside and a bottle hurled from somewhere in the rear of the crowd burst against the skull of an innocent journalist who sat there taking his indignation out on the keyboard of a typewriter. The young man rose up, combing glass out of his hair, slightly dazed but apparently not seriously hurt and the Garden firm's corps of house sluggers, trained in the roughhouse school of the old six day bike races, went sailing up the aisle in an effort to round up the petulant patron.

The receipts, gathered in at a rate of admission ranging from $23 down to $2.30, were almost as startling as the decision. The fight was the first held in the new saucer, scooped out, paved and furnished within the space of three months, and the mob closed

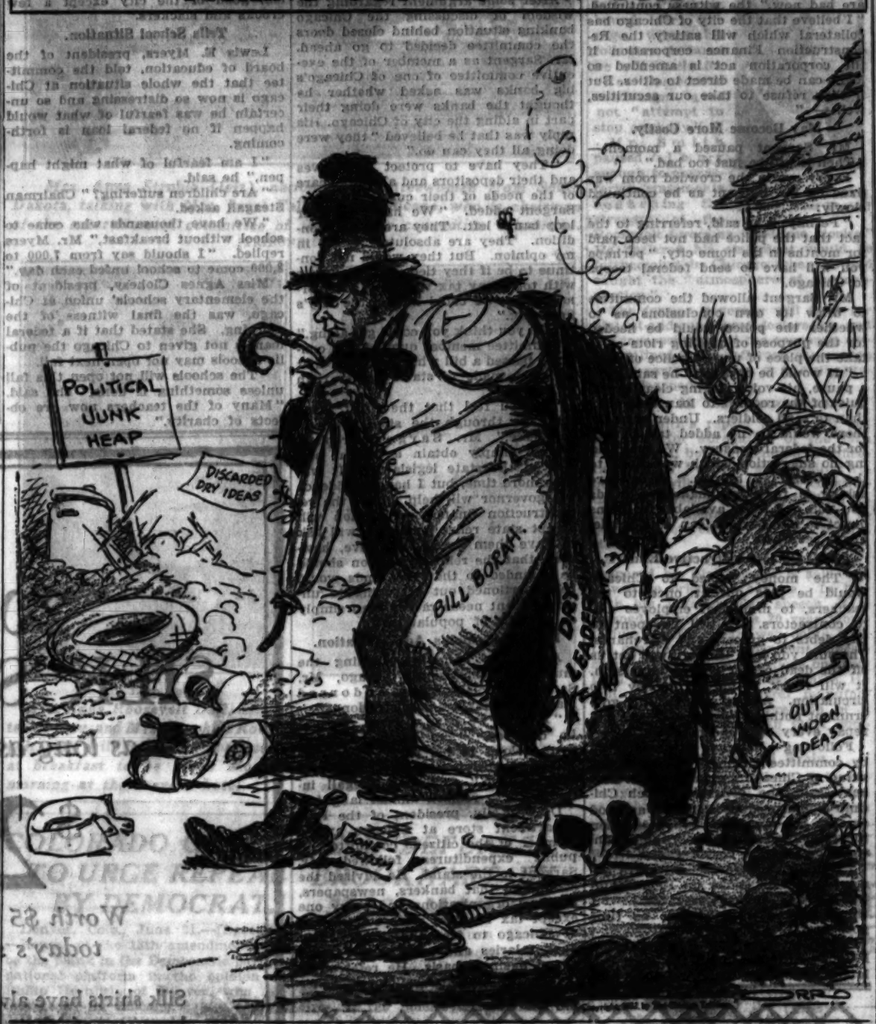
PICKING OUT HIS NEW SUIT



Heads of Cook County Nurse School Resign

Miss Laura R. Logan, whose administration as dean of the Cook County School of Nursing, 509 South Honoré street, has been under fire for several months, resigned her post in a letter which was read last night at a meeting of the school's board of directors in the Union League club.

Frank S. Shaw, president of the board, also handed in his resignation, giving ill health as the reason. His resignation is effective July 1; Miss Logan's on Nov. 30.

In her letter Miss Logan said she was quitting in protest against a recent arbitration award reinstating forty-two striking male nurses at the psychopathic hospital. Their retention, she declared, interfered with her plans for reorganization of the nursing school.

Dr. McLean Speaks for Board.

Announcement of the resignations was made by Dr. Franklin C. McLean, a director and spokesman for the board.

"The board accepted the resignations of Miss Logan and of Mr. Shaw," he said. "It was agreed to appoint a committee in the near future, and this committee will take up the matter of naming their successors. The directors' meeting was entirely harmonious."

Miss Logan was named dean of the county hospital's nursing system eight years ago. Last March charges were made that her administration was extravagant, that the nurses' home and her own apartment were lavishly furnished. Miss Logan denied those accusations, and Mr. Shaw defended the alleged lavish furnishings on the ground that the nurses at the school must have refined surroundings.

An inquiry was initiated by the county board. At one session of the board Commissioner Charles H. Weber asserted that Miss Logan had adopted "czaristic tactics" in running the school and was "autocratic." About the same time a committee of six physicians recommended that Miss Logan resign. Their report charged that she had destroyed her usefulness by noncooperation with the staff of the county hospital.

Trouble Over Hospital Strike.

Troubles next followed for Miss Logan, in the strike of forty-two male nurses at the Psychopathic hospital over the dismissal of 25 nurses as a result of the county economy program. Some disorder resulted. An arbitration committee was appointed and a week ago submitted its award.

The award reinstated the strikers. It further recommended that the total wages of the sixty-seven nurses originally on the Psychopathic hospital pay roll should not exceed the total pay of the forty-two reinstated strikers. It was in protest against the reinstatement of the strikers that Miss Logan resigned.

SAMUEL INSULL SLIPS INTO PARIS; DENIES IDENTITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 21.—Samuel Insull of Chicago slipped into Paris tonight almost succeeding in his obvious intention to avoid newspapermen. Hurrying along the platform of St. Lazare station through a crowd of third class passengers he denied his identity to THE TRIBUNE correspondent. But 50 feet farther on he nodded "yes" when a hotel agent whispered "Mr. Insull?" Just before climbing into a small red taxicab he repeated to THE TRIBUNE man, "I have absolutely nothing to say."

As the taxi slid away a tall and husky American with a mid-western accent, who had been hovering around, said "That wasn't Insull you were talking to, buddy. You've made a mistake. It wasn't Insull at all. His name doesn't appear in the ship's manifest. You'd better forget it."

Mr. Insull smoke screened his arrival here with the report of his intention to visit England. But members of his party told THE TRIBUNE of his plans to stay in France for some time.

SUBURBAN MAYOR KILLS ROBBER IN BATTLE ON ROAD

George Hahn, mayor of South Chicago Heights, shot and fatally wounded one of three masked robbers who tried to hold him up early this morning as he was driving alone on the Lincoln highway near Chicago Heights.

The bandits drew alongside Hahn in their car and ordered him to stop. He pulled out his revolver and opened fire. The robbers returned the fire, two of their bullets smashing the windshield on the mayor's car. Hahn kept on shooting and saw one of the gunmen fall into the road, he said. As this occurred he put on speed and raced into Chicago Heights, where he reported the gun battle to the police.

A few minutes later a wounded man was taken into St. James hospital in Chicago Heights where he died soon afterward. He was identified as Dominick Galcsino, 22 years old, of Chicago Heights. County highway policemen from the Homewood station started a search of the roads near the scene of the shooting when Mayor Hahn told them he believed that another of the bandits might have been critically wounded.

[Copyright: 1932, by the New York Times.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 21.—The Czechoslovak State Advances bank, in trying to recover a debt of $8,000 owed by Prince Cyril of Bulgaria, brother of King Boris, applied to the Bulgarian courts for an order attaching the prince's salary as a colonel in the Bulgarian army. The reply was that the "person named is not on Bulgarian soil."

The bank already has obtained an order to levy on Cyril's movable property in Czechoslovakia. Cyril is declared to be heavily in debt, mainly to Czechoslovaks.

Routs Ghouls Robbing Grave of 'Red' Barker

A gun battle between a caretaker and a band of ghouls who were apparently intent upon robbing the grave of George [Red] Barker, labor racketeer and public enemy, who was slain last Friday, broke the stillness of Mount Carmel cemetery early this morning.

The ghouls were routed, but not until they had riddled the automobile of the caretaker with bullets and stopped pursuit. They escaped in a large truck.

The frustrated plot furnished a fantastic mystery which held the attention of suburban police this morning.

Motive Puzzles Police.

Investigators first advanced a theory that the men sought only the expensive floral offerings piled upon the mound, but soon discounted that because of the fact that the ghouls entered and left the cemetery in a large truck. The vehicle would easily have carried a casket.

Police said that perhaps buried with the dead racketeer are valuable papers or valuable jewelry.

Mount Carmel cemetery lies along Roosevelt road, in Hillside, several miles west of the Chicago limits. Barker is buried in section 26, in the southwest corner.

It was shortly after midnight that Joseph Sobol, 50 years old, caretaker of the sprinkling pumps, was driving to that section when he saw a large truck. Four or five men were bending over the ground.

Sobol Interrupts Ghouls.

Sobol drove up. He saw the men busy at Barker's grave, flinging the flowers to one side. This fact, police said later, also indicated that theft of the flowers was not the motive.

"What are you men doing?" called Sobol.

Half a dozen shots answered him. Sobol drew his own revolver and hid behind his small truck. He fired back, two, three times, then his gun jammed. The hoodlums continued firing, puncturing both his front tires and also the hood and windshield.

Then they boarded their truck and drove away, disappearing eastward in Roosevelt road. Sobol ran to the cemetery office and notified Arthur McMurrough, the watchman. McMurrough reported to the Bellwood police and squads hurried out into Roosevelt road to intercept the ghouls. They did not find them, however.

Barker, an ex-convict, met sudden death early Friday morning when a volley of machine gun bullets was fired into his body from a window at 1502 North Crawford avenue. The slayers have not yet been apprehended. Barker was buried on Monday.

French Spring Surprise Debt Plan on U. S.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 21.—France came hurriedly forth tonight with her reparations plan. It is disposed, its government announced, to extend a moratorium "for one or two years or until prosperity returns." It is disposed later to reduce its claims on Germany, which it meanwhile reserves.

HUGH S. GIBSON.

What France really does is to put it straight up to the United States, demanding in no uncertain terms a "parallel effort" on war debts. France's plan is not so much an answer to the united cry of Great Britain, Italy, and Germany for a clean slate as it is a reply to President Hoover and his insistence on a disarmament plan which would mean a real cut in French effectives.

Expect Hoover to Force Issue.

The French delegation here interprets the events and indications of the last twenty-four hours as showing that President Hoover is prepared to put the screws on them in the matter of disarmament, and perhaps publicly.

After Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson's abortive secret parley with Premier Herriot of France at Morges last night, which caused vast excitement along the forty mile conference front in and between Geneva and Lausanne, the French see the White House finger leveled or about to be leveled at them.

Tonight the French leaders shot out their own finger at Mr. Hoover and America at the end of a somewhat lurid and entirely nerve wracking day, which saw such topsy turvy business as a sudden descent on Lausanne by Gibson and Norman H. Davis, another member of the American disarmament crew.

Hold Parley with MacDonald.

Shockingly heedless of nervous conditions here, these United States representatives quietly popped up this afternoon in the most sacred precincts of the Lausanne conference which Washington and its delegation at Geneva were thought to have quarantined. Senator Claude A. Swanson was even pleaded with to break a private luncheon engagement here last week.

Gibson and Davis came to see Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain on disarmament. Premier Herriot was forced to wait in an antechamber for 20 minutes while they talked. Whatever his emotions were, he hid them when the two Americans came forth.

The rest of the conference was in a great stir at the thought of Ambassador Gibson wandering down the halls of the Hotel Beaurivage innocently inquiring for the British delegation.

U. S. Demands Action.

Gibson asked Herriot at Morges last night for quick action on the American plan to reduce military effectives. Some say he handed the French premier a message from President Hoover. Apprehending an open query from Washington, with a possible correlation of failure in disarmament and war debts, Herriot tonight drew first blood with a vivid public sortie of his own.

"France is disposed," said Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin, "to begin an experiment in the annuling

CERMAK LEADS IN APPEALS FOR FINANCIAL AID

Warns of Peril in City's Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—It will be cheaper for the federal government to make a loan to Chicago now than to send troops later, Mayor Anton J. Cermak and a host of Chicago public and civic leaders bluntly advised congress and the reconstruction finance board today.

It appeared likely tonight that congress would not permit direct loans to cities, but might increase the Illinois quota of an 13 million dollar loan from the Wagner bill's provisions. If granted, the amount would be based on obvious needs rather than on population, which is the basis of the 13 million figure.

Appearing before the house banking and currency committee in the morning and the finance corporation in the afternoon, the Chicago group graphically outlined Chicago's financial difficulties and urged that steps be taken which would permit the nation's second city to borrow upward of a hundred million dollars for relief and pay roll needs.

Both Mayor Cermak and Fred Sargent, president of the North Western railway and head of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, painted a dark picture of the situation at Chicago during a stormy session of the house banking committee. Each described the city's financial condition so far as relief and pay roll obligations were concerned as desperate and each warned that unless a federal loan was obtained the government may have to step in and police the city after Aug. 1, when the current supply of relief funds run out.

Other witnesses before the banking committee asserted that the school teachers and municipal employes at Chicago had been so long unpaid that public officials were fearful communism would spread to a dangerous point within the next few months. It was stated that Chicago's public schools probably would not be opened in the fall unless the teachers were paid. In this connection one witness said 7,000 to 8,000 school children went to the school without breakfast each day, while in many instances school teachers were objects of charity.

Climax of Cermak Plea.

The high light of the day's developments came in the late afternoon when Mayor Cermak made this statement to the officers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, who had gathered to hear Chicago's plea for loans direct to cities:

"Now, gentlemen," Mayor Cermak said, interrupting a statement by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills to the effect that Chicago could not expect to obtain a loan direct from the board under present legislation, "make up your minds to this: If we have a few more parades at Chicago, and nothing is done to relieve our financial difficulties, I simply cannot tell what will happen. No one knows. It will be much cheaper for the federal government to lend us money than to be compelled to provide troops to police the city when the police and fire departments quit from sheer exhaustion and no pay.

Relief Funds Nearly Ended.

"We are asking you to loan money direct to municipalities," Mr. Cermak continued. "Our funds for relief are about exhausted. We raised $10,000,000 and the state voted an $18,000,000 bond issue. All this money will be gone by Aug. 1. We owe three and a half months salary to all municipal employés. We owe five months salary to the school teachers. Our relief stations must close Aug. 1 unless we have funds. That's the only reason I am here."

Explaining the city's condition, Mayor Cermak told of the city's various court difficulties, the assessments uncollected, the right to collect back taxes, and wound up with the statement that an analysis of the needs of the various governmental units in Chicago disclosed that during 1932 an additional $153,000,000 must be dug up to pay teachers and to keep the relief depots open. He said that $32,931,283 was needed for pay rolls, $46,514,234 for bond interest and $24,287,057 for miscellaneous uses. He put the city's needs at $61,401,331.

Mayor More Hopeful.

Mayor Cermak also expressed the view that the chances for Chicago obtaining additional loans from the finance corporation through the banks were much improved.

It developed during the day that

President Hoover, the finance corporation and leaders in congress are opposed to direct loans to cities. President Hoover, it was said, fears that a direct loan to Chicago might never reach the school teachers and the police.

His views were colored, it was learned, by Chicago's past reputation.

See a Dangerous Precedent.

Committee members, most of them openly hostile, listened to the pleas of Cermak, Sargent and D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair, and then at the conclusion of the hearing, a spokesman expressed doubt that the city's request for direct loans would be granted. William F. Stevenson [Dem., S. C.], ranking committee member, said the proposal would establish a dangerous precedent, adding that President Hoover was against it. Stevenson said the committee would consider ways and means of making it possible for Chicago to get a larger allotment than the $18,500,000 it would get under the pending Wagner 300 million dollar bill.

Earlier in the day Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], committee chairman, had observed that "however much we might like to meet this request, I don't see how it is possible."

Will Meet Bankers Again.

Following the meeting at the finance corperation where Mayor Cermak found a board resentful because Chicago's bankers had failed to make an appearance, the delegation said the board had announced that thus far it never had turned down a request for funds from a bank where eligible securities were offered.

The mayor, after he had told the board that only Chicago's alarming situation had forced him to come to Washington for aid, was told that the finance corporation would make loans to Chicago banks if they were willing to put up their own security and accept the tax anticipation warrants of the city.

The mayor left for his train preparing to arrange for another meeting with Chicago bankers. The two Illinois senators—Otis F. Glenn and James Hamilton Lewis—as well as Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] attended the finance corporation conference.

Stormy Day in Capital.

The Chicago invasion of the capitol in an attempt to convince congress and the Hoover administration that legislation should be enacted permitting cities to borrow direct from the finance corporation was a stormy one from the time the first of the twenty or so officials, civic leaders and school teachers left the Union station this morning until they left for home late today.

They had two major goals, as outlined during the day. In the first place they wanted congress to pass an amendment to the Wagner bill which provides 300 million dollars in direct relief for the state. They wanted this bill amended so that loans could be made direct to cities. They desired also that another amendment should be added to the same bill providing that the relief fund should be apportioned according to unemployment need rather than strictly by population.

House Members Unenthusiastic.

It was a little before 10:30 a. m. when Mayor Cermak pushed his way into the old Capitol library where a stony faced and unsympathetic circle of committee members were gathered around a great mahogany table. Behind the mayor as he took his place at one side of the room were Mr. Sargent, Mr. Kelly, L. E. Myers, president of the school board; Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers' union; Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district; M. S. Szymczak, city controller, loaded down with financial papers, and several other Chicagoans.

Target of Many Questions.

From the time Mayor Cermak took the stand until he was excused, flushed and annoyed, to say the least, he was the target of questions insinuating that the banks of Chicago and Chicago leading citizens were not playing the game and aiding the city as they should. Representatives James

G. Strong [Rep., Kas.] angrily asserted that Chicago bankers were hoarding eligible paper which they could just as well use to purchase Chicago's tax warrants.

Other committee members demanded time and again as to how Chicago had got in its present plight. Others wanted to know why Chicago did not get after its tax dodgers. With few exceptions committee members showed no enthusiasm whatsoever for the Chicago suggestion that the Wagner 300 million dollar bill be so amended that cities could borrow direct from the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The mayor, in spite of constant heckling from committee members, told the committee that the city as well as all the taxing organizations in the municipality had agreed to hold down their budgets drastically during the next year. He said the city budget was $4,000,000 below the minimum budget figure set for the committee by the citizens' committee.

Dig at the Banks.

Asked if the Wagner 300 million dollar direct relief bill would help, Cermak shrugged his shoulders contemptuously.

"Not the way it's written," he said. "It would only give the state about $18,500,000."

"Why don't the banks loan the money to Chicago on your tax anticipation warrants?" demanded Representative Strong. "I cannot see why the Reconstruction Finance corporation should be asked to loan money to Chicago when the banks there have plenty of eligible paper which they could discount at the Federal Reserve banks.

"The trouble is," shouted Strong, his face flushed and his fists pounding the table, "that the Chicago banks are hoarding their eligible paper. They have large quantities but they are not using it. Why don't the Chicago banks function as banks. The truth is that the Chicago banks are not functioning."

Sargent Calms Tumult.

After a moment of bickering back and forth by committee members, Fred Sargent took his place in the witness chair. In a quiet, sober voice that instantly brought quiet to the hitherto tumultuous crowded committee room, this bronzed railroad man and banker quickly outlined the situation as he saw it at Chicago.

In a few words, Mr. Sargent sought to dissipate the idea that the representative people of Chicago and the Chicago bankers were not pulling their full load in the fight to pull Chicago out of its quagmire of debt. From the moment he began to speak, the committee gave him its undivided attention, stopping him only once or twice for questions.

"The worth while people of Chicago," Mr. Sargent said, "are leading the movement to help Chicago. They have put their shoulders to the wheel and have worked and are still working with city officials to help the city out of its present situation. During the last few years, the worth while citizens of Chicago have been combating problems which some of you know little about. For instance, we have expended millions in combating crime.

"It is humiliating for me," Mr. Sargent continued, his eyes fixed on the table directly in front of him, "to have to come and ask for temporary help for Chicago. Only as a last resort did I consent to come. I believe if we can get a loan we will be able to solve our difficulties.

"I have been in a position to know the situation as it exists in Chicago since last summer when I aided the governor in surveying unemployment. We learned then about how hard Chicago was hit. It does not seem believable, but I know that last summer conditions were so bad some of the school teachers of the public schools slept at night in our parks. One teacher patrolled while the others slept."

"Conditions were bad then and they are bad now," the witness continued. "I believe that the city of Chicago has collateral which will satisfy the Reconstruction Finance corporation if the corporation act is amended so loans can be made direct to cities. But if they refuse to take our securities, well——"

May Become More Costly.

Mr. Sargent paused a moment—"Then it will be just too bad."

Every eye in the crowded room was fixed on Mr. Sargent as he continued slowly:

"Perhaps," he said, referring to the fact that the police had not been paid for months in his home city, "perhaps you will have to send federal troops to Chicago."

Mr. Sargent allowed the committee to draw its own conclusions as to whether the police would be needed for the purpose of quelling riots or to take the place of unpaid police officers.

"It would be cheaper," he said after a pause, his voice ringing clear in the quiet of the room, "to loan us money than to send soldiers. Under our plan there would be no added tax burden for the federal treasury. We are making no suggestion which would add to the federal tax burden. All we are asking is that you make the funds you vote for relief available for loans direct to cities which can supply adequate securities.

Will Go to Constructive Ends.

"The money loaned to Chicago would be paid out at once to the teachers, to municipal employés and to contractors. It will be spent to pay debts to grocers and merchants. The sum you loan Chicago will get us off the dead center of the depression. It will result in putting money into circulation. And it will cost the government nothing because Chicago will repay every cent she borrows."

Following a barrage of questioning by committee members regarding the value of Chicago seecurities, Mr. Sargent said the collateral which Chicago would produce would be as good as that put up by the railroads when they borrowed money from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"I think Chicago securities are absolutely good," spoke up Representative Goldsborough [Dem., Md.]. "I think they will get better as time goes on."

"We can give the Reconstruction Finance corporation all the good collateral it can use," continued Mr. Sargent. "I might also add that we in Chicago, together with some of the other large cities, contribute a large amount of the money needed to support the federal government. All we ask of you is that you loan us enough to get by until we can get our taxes collected. We want to meet our pay rolls so we can get money in circulation."

Discuss Banking Situation.

After some argument regarding the wisdom of discussing the Chicago banking situation behind closed doors the committee decided to go ahead. Mr. Sargent as a member of the executive committee of one of Chicago's big banks was asked whether he thought the banks were doing their part in aiding the city of Chicago. His reply was that he believed "they were doing all they can do."

"They have to protect themselves and their depositors and also take care of the needs of their customers," Mr. Sargent added. "We have but four loop banks left. They are in fine condition. They are absolutely sound in my opinion. But they would not continue to be if they tied up their assets with too many tax warrants. In normal times we could handle the city's financing."

"Do you think you could get along," a committee member queried, "if congress passed a bill which required that loans be made to states rather than to cities?"

"If you feel that the relief loans must go through the state, we will acquiesce," Mr. Sargent replied. "We'll simply obtain a special session of the state legislature. It will take more time, but I have confidence the governor will help us. If the reconstruction finance corporation will accept state relief bonds we will ask to have them voted. I believe, however, that the relief legislation should be amended so that the funds would be apportioned out according to unemployment needs rather than simply on a basis of population."

Praises Cermak's Administration.

Asked his opinion regarding the municipal officials at Chicago, Mr. Sargent wholeheartedly endorsed Mayor Cermak's administration.

"I think we have a great mayor," he declared. "I'm sorry to say I don't belong to his party—"

"The receiving membership will take you in," Chairman Stegall interrupted to remark amidst laughter.

D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair department store at Chicago and a member of the citizens committee on public expenditures followed Mr. Sargent to the stand. He advised the committee that bankers, newspapers, business organizations and every one except tax slackers were cooperating at Chicago to feed the hungry, pay back salaries and put the city on a sound business basis. He referred to Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as one who "had been working with us continually" in solving the city's financial problems.

City on Budget Basis.

"The money we hope to get," said Mr. Kelly, "will be put into circulation at once. It will be used to pay the police, the firemen, the teachers and the city's creditors. It will permit the contractors to resume building operations again. If you give us this money and permit us to put it into circulation in Chicago it will help make us the greatest city on earth.

"Chicago is now on a budget basis. We plan to live within our budget and pay off our indebtedness. All the various spending organizations of the community have promised to bring their budgets down to the figure which the committee on public expenditures ordered. The mayor's budget is even below the figure we set.

"Give us the money and we will show you that we will pay back the loan. We will show up the tax slackers and the tax dodgers who have not paid the taxes which are due. Every one is cooperating now for the financial good of the city except a few crooks and slackers."

Tells School Situation.

Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, told the committee that the whole situation at Chicago is now so distressing and so uncertain he was fearful of what would happen if no federal loan is forthcoming.

"I am fearful of what might happen," he said.

"Are children suffering?" Chairman Steagall asked.

"We have thousands who come to school without breakfast," Mr. Myers replied. "I should say from 7,000 to 8,000 come to school unfed each day."

Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the elementary schools' union at Chicago, was the final witness of the morning. She stated that if a federal loan is not given to Chicago the public schools may not open next fall.

"The schools will not open this fall unless something is done," she said. "Many of the teachers now are objects of charity."

HALTS PAYMENT OF HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA BILL

Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager of the board of education, yesterday ordered that the payment of a $4,760 bill ot the C. L. Ricketts company, engrossers at 38 South Dearborn street, be held up because the concern had not carried out specifications in its contract for school diplomas. He will recommend to the school board that the remainder of the $8,330.25 contract, which called for next year's diplomas, be canceled.

By a secret process the engrossing company printed names and courses on 14,000 out of the 34,000 diplomas awarded this June instead of doing the work by hand, as required in the contract. The school board's law department has been asked to investigate and get an adjustment of the contract, which the board approved on March 23.

Jasper King, head of the concern, told Col. Savage that he thought school officials knew that the printing process was to be used.

SEXTON INSISTS ASSEMBLY MAY HELP CHICAGO

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—(AP)—A special session of the Illinois general assembly must be called before Aug. 1 for the appropriation of additional funds to the Illinois emergency relief commission, unless congress extends aid, William H. Sexton, corporation counsel for Chicago and member of the commission, said today at a conference with downstate county relief committee members.

Sexton's statement followed a roll call of thirty-three counties, all except two of which declared the need not only of continued help from the relief commission, but of more help than they already have received. It also followed Gov. Emmerson's pledge to support the efforts of the commission "as long as I am governor."

"We face a serious situation," Mr. Sexton said, "and unless congress aids us, we'll have to come to Springfield before August—for a bond issue proposal to be submitted to the voters in November. It is a matter of self-defense. We must hold the commonwealth together. We'll find no difficulty with the legislature. All we need to do is give the legislators a true picture of conditions."

GARNER DEMANDS DRY LAW REPEAL; HITS RADICALISM

Makes His First Public Bid for Presidency.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Speaker John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.], who straddled the prohibition fence for twelve years, came out in the open today as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination with an unequivocal demand for repeal of the 18th amendment.

First favorite son from the dry south to declare his candidacy publicly, Speaker Garner's terse statement for repeal without quibbling brought a chorus of comment from members of congress, the consensus of which was that it virtually removed any doubt that the Democratic national convention would stand for outright repeal.

Calls In Newspaper Men.

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of congress, voted against it," Mr. Garner said in a prepared statement handed to newspaper men in his office in the capitol. "I have never believed it sound or workable, and it should be repealed."

While Speaker Garner did vote against the 18th amendment, not since until today had he publicly declared his prohibition policy. He voted for the Volstead act and for every other piece of enforcement legislation, although he consistently has voted against extending the scope of the dry laws beyond the continental United States.

Speaker Garner's statement placed him, therefore, among the imposing array of notables who in recent weeks have deserted the prohibition ship, the list including such men as John D. Rockefeller Jr., John R. Mott of the Y. M. C. A., William Gibbs McAdoo, Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Democratic leader of the senate, and many other members of congress.

Wants War Debts Paid.

While interest focused on the speaker's forthright pronouncement against prohibition he was equally definite as to his views on other important issues—the tariff, relief legislation, foreign debts, economy in government, and the growth of radical tendencies in the wake of the depression. He asserted the war debts should be paid.

Declaring the United States government owes it to its citizens to collect the war debts to the extent of the debtor nations' ability to pay Speaker Garner said "there should be no flimflam accepted as to that ability to pay. The cost of government—city, county, state, and nation—" he said, "should be reduced at least one-third.

"The principal obligation of a government, established in accordance with American principles and traditions," he concluded, "is to protect all of its people in the free enjoyment of the fruits of their labors. The constantly increasing tendency toward socialism and communism is the gravest possible menace. The government should use every means within its power to prevent their further spread and they should receive no encouragement from any American citizen, high or low."

International trade, he said, must be reestablished by the restoration of international confidence and credit.

Turning to his own boom for the presidency, Speaker Garner said:

"The Democrats of California and my native state of Texas are sending delegations to the national convention instructed to vote for my nomination. This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity."

May Slow Up Roosevelt.

The speaker's public announcement is regarded here as likely to hurt Gov. Roosevelt's chances for nomination on the first two or three ballots. His statement is accepted as certain to hold the 90 votes from Texas and California in line in anticipation of a break, although Roosevelt is conceded a majority of the votes on the first ballot.

"This means submission of repeal," said Senator Cohen [Dem., Ga.]. "That is what the convention will vote for."

Senator Fess [Rep., O.], recent chairman of the Republican national committee, commented:

"There is no doubt the Democratic convention will go for repeal. It looks like repeal will run away with it. Perhaps Mr. Garner is anticipating the popular sentiment there."

Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], author of the 18th amendment and standpat dry spokesman, said

"I do not agree with the speaker on repeal, but this does not affect my support of him for President. I regard him as sound on all other vital matters."

Colleagues Praise Stand.

Among the speaker's colleagues in the house comment was made as follows:

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Ill.], Democratic floor leader: "A fine and honest statement. I am for it, repeal and all. The time has come when the question must be submitted. I prefer to submit it in the form of repeal."

Representative Loring M. Black Jr. [Dem., N. Y.]: "That cinches the repeal plank. It is the voice of the south speaking."

Representative Thomas H. Cullen [Dem., N. Y.]: "Great language. No evasion there. It is the kind of statement the people expect from every man in public life."

WILLARD, B. & O. HEAD, BLAMES DRY LAW FOR INCREASE IN CRIME

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Sympathy with proposals to modify the prohibition law was expressed today by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

"Whatever else it has done," said Mr. Willard, "one of the by-products of prohibition as we now have it has certainly been a noticeable increase in crime, due to the very reason that those who are willing to indulge in crime are now better financed than ever before because of the profits of the so-called bootlegging business and therefore better able to carry on their lawless undertakings."

SENATOR GLASS, LONG A DRY, NOW FOR SUBMISSION

Claims It Is No Party Question.

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Senator Carter Glass, who voted for the 18th amendment, and always has been a total abstainer, declared today that prohibition was not a party question and that the issue of repeal should be resubmitted to the states for determination through state conventions rather than by the state legislature.

CARTER GLASS.

"I don't think prohibition is a party question," Senator Glass declared. "I am profoundly convinced that no one party can do anything with repeal or with modification of the 18th amendment. The question of repeal is one that should be determined by the respective states, and it should be submitted to the states.

"No one party put prohibition into the constitution and no one party can take it out. It is impossible for any one party to solve the question."

Ohio Governor for Submission.

Columbus, O., June 21.—[Special.]—Gov. George White, in a statement issued tonight, formarily declared in favor of submission of an amendment to repeal federal prohibition and adoption by congress of amendments to the Volstead act legalizing the manufacture and sale of "beer of good quality." Mr. White is "Ohio's favorite son" candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. Mr. White would not say if he personally favored repeal.

White said he "was opposed to enactment of the Volstead act and congratulated President Wilson on his veto of the measure. I believed then, as I do now, that some of its provisions are too drastic and make the law impossible of adequate enforcement."

The governor added that he believed the "legalization of good beer would have a salutary effect in bringing about a business revival, owing to the vast number of agricultural and other industries affected, and the consequent large employment of labor." He added revenue from a tax on beer would help both the states and the United States.

WOMEN FRANK ON DEMOCRATIC ELECTION ISSUES

Democratic women are ready to speak for themselves. The reticence that baffled interviewers during the G. O. P. convention is no longer met in the corridors of the Congress hotel.

From a national perspective, the most significant drift of this candor is that the feminine forces appear to be largely in favor of a repeal plank in the party platform, and that Gov. Roosevelt appears to have the numerical edge over the other candidates.

Two garden parties are scheduled for distinguished guests next Sunday—one at Lake Forest by Mrs. C. N. Goodwin, the other at Wheaton by Edward N. Hurley. The latter is complimentary to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

JUDGE REPRIMANDS JURORS.

Municipal Judge Green reprimanded a jury and dismissed the members from further service in his court yesterday after assessed a minimum fine of $1 against William Blackwell, 55 years old, a Negro pickpocket, who was tried on a disorderly conduct charge.

COLORADO GROUP TO URGE REPEAL BY DEMOCRATS

Denver, Colo., June 21.—[Special.]—Repeal of the 18th amendment will be the plank in the Democratic party's national platform in the opinion of Philip Hornbein of Denver, who left here today for Chicago.

Hornbein is Colorado's representative on the resolutions committee. He advocates repeal, and if the majority report doesn't favor this he will aid in submitting a minority report.

Walter Walker of Grand Junction, state chairman, is said to concur with Hornbein, and shortly will announce he also is for repeal. Nine of Colorado's twelve votes are for repeal.

Thus Colorado, long a dry state, will join the ranks of the wets at the convention. The state enforcement act was passed six years before national prohibition became effective.

The state constitutional provision probably will be repealed next fall, as a repeal amendment has been prepared for the ballot. Hornbein said today 89,000 signatures have been obtained, with only 26,000 necessary.

FIELD DEFEATS BROOKHART BY 51,361 MAJORITY

Des Moines, Ia., June 21.—(AP)—Henry Field of Shenandoah received 51,361 more votes than Senator Smith W. Brookhart in the Iowa primaries June 6, the official canvass by the state executive council showed today.

The tabulations revealed that of the 436,562 votes cast for the Republican senator Field got 197,263, as against 145,902 for the incumbent.

AL SMITH, 'HAPPY WARRIOR OF '28,' OFF FOR CHICAGO

He Will Battle for Wet Plank and Nomination.

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Wearing a straw hat instead of the brown Derby, Alfred E. Smith, the "happy warrior" of 1928, departed for the wars again this afternoon. He left at 4 o'clock, bound for Chicago, where his followers declared he will battle for the Democratic nomination and not "attempt to stop anybody."

ALFRED E. SMITH.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

Mr. Smith paused long enough to characterize statements regarding the strength of the Roosevelt forces as "bedtime stories." He declared his statement would be forthcoming in Chicago when he had caught the "atmosphere of the convention."

The former governor will fight for his out-and-out repeal declaration and the incorporation of the economic policy outlined in his Jefferson day speech in the party platform, it is authoritatively learned.

Seeks 20 Year Moratorium.

Mr. Smith's repeal plank will not only call for abrogation of the 18th amendment, but will demand modification of the Volstead act pending repeal, and will seek a further constitutional stipulation requiring that all future amendments be submitted to popular referenda in the several states.

The former governor has not yet prepared his platform, it is said, but it will be brief and concise. In line with his Jefferson day speech, it is learned, it will favor a 20 year moratorium on European war debts with the granting of a 25 per cent concession to foreign debtor nations on their total exports to the United States. He will also favor a general manufacturers' sales tax and creation of a scientific and nonpartisan tariff commission.

Mrs. Smith Aboard Train.

Mr. Smith's second immediate objective in Chicago will be the selection of Jouett Shouse as the convention's permanent chairman rather than the Roosevelt choice, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. Finally he plans to marshal the favorite son forces to stand by until it is apparent that Gov. Roosevelt cannot obtain the necessary two-thirds majority.

Mrs. Smith left with her husband this afternoon. The former governor's party includes former Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, a member of the former governor's "kitchen cabinet"; John Godfrey Saxe, formerly chairman of the law committee of Tammany Hall; John Curtin, a Brooklyn Democrat and the original Walker manager; Howard S. Cullman, commissioner of the port of New York authority; former Sanitation Commissioner Charles S. Hand, Joseph L. Cohn, in charge of publicity, and Clarence H. Low, chairman of the anti-prohibition battle fund, and a number of secretaries.

CONGRESS UNLIKELY TO ADJOURN UNTIL AFTER CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—The chances for adjournment of congress in time for the Democratic convention went glimmering today as the result of a test vote in the senate.

By a majority of 33 to 32 the senators adopted a recess motion with the understanding that its passage meant that adjournment would not come until Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Technically, the motion applied only to the abandonment of a proposed night session tonight and to a recess until tomorrow morning. But by common consent it was understood to mean no more, or at least fewer, night sessions during the remaining days. It is considered entirely possible that the session may stretch to July 2.

Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] capped a growing talk of putting off adjournment by announcing on the senate floor that it was going to be impossible to conclude by Saturday as Republican leaders had hoped.

All day the senate had dealt desultorily with the two billion dollar Wagner relief bill. Amendment followed amendment as senator after senator sought the inclusion among the bill's federal loan provisions of various types of projects in which their constituencies were interested.

Senator Borah's pronouncement, though obnoxious to Republican regulars who are not burning with anxiety to pass a relief bill, fell in with the desires of many Democrats.

The Democrats were not over anxious to attend the convention. Aspirants for a dark horse nomination were willing to wait for the lightning to strike.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, to whom Illinois' delegates are pledged, and Senator Joe T. Robinson, who is a possible dark horse, were among those who thought congress should not hurry its work.

June—and Roses

If our readers will permit us to step out of our character (that of telling you about Chicago's five smartest and most desirable style accessories) we'd like to wax a trifle sentimental, and pay a tribute to the grandeur of the roses of June. Poets and lyricists have had the same idea. Remember these?

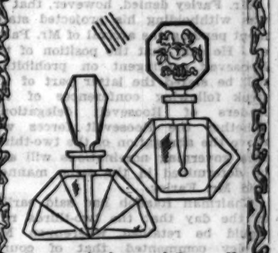
"For You a Rose—of beauty rare"—this one also "for you to wear." Two of them in a cluster, fashioned of sheer, crisp, dainty white organdy, it's a perky appertenance for summer frocks. Other flowers in chiffon are also charming. $1.00-$1.75. Organdy flowers 85c a cluster.

NECKWEAR—FIRST FLOOR



"Moonlight and Roses"
—and the scent of your favorite, entrancing fragrance. What romance may be contained in these imported cut crystal bottles, which are indeed things of beauty. Ten unusual shapes, in rose, crystal, black, green, blue or amethyst. In addition, they are quite small, so that a little perfume will suffice for them. $1.00.

TOILETRIES—FIRST FLOOR

"To a Wild Rose"
Charm, delicacy, and the true appeal of sheer beauty enhance these bracelets just as they do a rose of a forest glen. This set of two carved galalith inch-wide bracelets, comes in the daintiest and newest summer shades, including pink, chartreuse, tango or French blue. A delightful accessory for dainty frocks. $1.00 the pair.

COSTUME JEWELRY—FIRST FLOOR

"Only a Rose"—
is fairer to behold than the exquisite beauty of these linen bags. The zipper pouch is linen lined; the envelope, with a contrasting color morocco. Both, hand-worked with wooden beads, are charming, sophisticated, and strikingly unusual summer bags. Brown with beige, beige with brown, white with red, green, or black. $5.00.

HANDBAGS—FIRST FLOOR

"A Rose by Any Other Name"—
Just the name "tray" can't half connote the style and importance of this one. Made of thin, light, strong wood, eleven by seventeen inches. Some are hand decorated, others have charming prints. The trays come in a great variety of colors. Makes your own entertaining pleasant and is a delightful hostess gift. We believe that the tray and the price are truly remarkable. $1.00.

REPEAL PLANK BATTLE IS WON, DEMOCRATS SAY

Point to Declarations of Garner and Others.

Mack, who is not a delegate, instead of by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who is a delegate at large and who had originally been slated by Roosevelt for this service. Wagner, it was explained, was not acceptable to Tammany. Wagner, however, said he had declined in order to avoid embarrassing his friend, Al Smith, leader of the anti-Roosevelt forces.

Al Snorts at Farley.

"I'm not in the habit of telling bedtime stories," retorted Mr. Farley when he received reporters at the Congress hotel later in the afternoon.

Mr. Farley was to have issued an important statement of the Roosevelt attitude on various matters, but said it would be delayed a day or two. News had just been received of a meeting aboard a yacht at which Roosevelt conveyed to A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general in the Wilson administration, his views on prohibition and other platform planks. Mr. Palmer is to be the District of Columbia member of the resolutions committee.

Denies Waiting for Palmer.

Mr. Farley denied, however, that he was withholding his projected statement pending the arrival of Mr. Palmer. He said that the position of the Roosevelt contingent on prohibition will be stated the latter part of the week following conferences of the leaders of Roosevelt delegations. Whether the Roosevelt forces will move the abrogation of the two-thirds rule governing nominations will also be determined in the same manner, said Mr. Farley.

Chairman Raskob had said earlier in the day that the two-thirds rule would be retained, whereupon Mr. Farley commented that of course those who are seeking to defeat Gov. Roosevelt for the nomination want the rule retained because then 770 instead of 578 votes would be required to name the ticket.

Chairman Raskob denied that he is identified with the movement to defeat Roosevelt or to aid any other candidate, asserting that he has scrupulously preserved the neutrality required of the national chairman. He pronounced prohibition the outstanding issue of the election "because of its economic as well as its social importance."

The Plank on Prohibition.

To which Mr. Farley retorted that prohibition is only one of a number of important issues, among them being economic questions arising from the depression. The Roosevelt manager ventured the opinion that the Democratic plank on prohibition will be so constructed that "those who voted for the minority repeal plank in the Republican convention will have an opportunity to show if they are on the level."

Mr. Raskob said he assumed Jouett Shouse would be chosen permanent chairman of the convention, not having been notified by the Roosevelt manager of any intention to repudiate the agreement which resulted in the selection by the arrangements committee of Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky for temporary and Shouse for permanent chairman.

"Why should I tell Raskob?" asked Farley. Inasmuch as the Roosevelt forces will control all committees of the convention it is expected that the committee on permanent organization will recommend the choice of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Roosevelt candidate, for permanent chairman. Final decision will be made by the convention by ballot on Tuesday.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, who sponsored the Garner candidacy in California and who is now a candidate for the nomination for senator on a resubmission platform, is on his way to Chicago by airplane. Here he will cooperate with his old foe of the Madison Square Garden battle, Al Smith, in the effort to beat Roosevelt.

E. S. Villmoare of Kansas City opened headquarters at the Congress for former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

"The Missouri delegation is coming to nominate Senator Reed," he said, "and will stay with him as many ballots as he wants them to."

Virginia's Byrd Arrives.

Former Gov. Harry Byrd, Virginia's favorite son, arrived and unlimbered a few pronouncements.

"Conditions," he said, "are too terrible to permit a frivolous or cheap play of politics. Every good American, whatever his party, must volunteer to fight to preserve our fundamental institutions. I hope our platform will limit to a few sentences its denunciation of Republican rule, and come quickly to a sharp, clear, crisp promise of what we shall try to do to improve the conditions existing.

"The menacing increase in the cost of government ranks among the foremost of our problems. We cannot continue to pay $50,000,000 each day to our local, state and federal governments—one dollar out of every four we earn—without eventual bankruptcy.

"Taxes must be reduced and national income taxes should be spread to affect more people.

"On prohibition let our party speak clearly and frankly."

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Lucille Griffith, 19 years old, 229 West 65th street, was arrested last night on a charge that she tried to hold up a woman restaurant owner with a toy revolver. The girl, daughter of a lake captain, denied the charge, asserting she was merely displaying the toy to satisfy the woman's curiosity.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Miss Griffith entered Mrs. Sophie Nyholm's restaurant at 6146 Wentworth avenue. After dining she walked up to the counter and drew the toy gun. Mrs. Nyholm knocked it from her hand and seized her. Policeman Harold Murphy of the Englewood station appeared and arrested the girl.

At the station Mrs. Nyholm said that Miss Griffith had ordered her to hold up her hands and to surrender her money. Miss Griffith's story was that she had formerly worked for Mrs. Nyholm. At that time, she asserted, Mrs. Nyholm had said she had never seen a toy gun and had expressed a desire to see one. Miss Griffith's visit to the restaurant was merely to gratify that wish, she explained.

BROWN AND MILLS BOTH REPEALISTS AT HEART, BORAH SAYS

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Had Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], written the Republican prohibition plank, he disclosed today, it would have contained no resubmission proposal for either revision or repeal.

It would, instead, have informed the country that the only constitutional method of change was though the election of members of congress pledged to submit a repeal amendment to the states.

Senator Borah made his plank public today following a senate debate in which he produced evidence which, he declared, revealed Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Postmaster General Brown as repealists at heart. He read an article by Mr. Mills which appeared in a New York newspaper in 1926 in which the secretary termed the eighteenth amendment "an object of scorn and contempt."

Senator Borah declared that during a conversation with Postmaster General Brown the latter had stated that he "expected the return of the saloon" and "would rather have it than the present condition of affairs."

PUBLIC CAREERS OF DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES SKETCHED

This is the first of a series of sketches on the careers of the leading Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination.

ROOSEVELT

Claiming more than 700 delegates to the Democratic national convention, Gov. Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York will be the strongest contender, at least in the early balloting, for the 1932 nomination for President. Gov. Roosevelt is a distant cousin of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, and he traces his ancestry back to Claes Martensen Van Roosevelt of Holland, who settled in New Amsterdam in 1644.

The governor is nearing 50 years of age and has been a political warrior since his schools days at Harvard, when he fought the control of school elections by exclusive clubs. In 1910, after a short career as a lawyer, he took up politics as his life work and was elected to the state senate from Dutchess county, rock ribbed Republican seat of the Roosevelt clan since the French and Indian wars.

Aid of Secretary Daniels.

From the New York senate he went to Washington as first assistant secretary of the navy under Josephus Daniels. He was defeated with the Democrats as the nominee for Vice President in 1920.

The politicians said Roosevelt's career was ended in 1921, when an attack of infantile paralysis retired him. He recuperated so rapidly, however, at the hamlet of Warm Springs, Ga., that in 1924 he was able, with the assistance of a cane and the arm of his son, to walk to the front of Madison Square Garden and nominate Al Smith. At Houston, four years later, he repeated the nomination for Smith. That year, responding to Gov. Smith's call, Roosevelt ran for governor and was elected, and in 1930 he was reelected by the unprecented plurality of 735,000 votes.

In Excellent Health Today.

The governor's health today is termed "better than gilt edged" by a medical examiner for one of the largest insurance companies. He is a man of powerful build, having exercised strenuously since his college days, is more than six feet tall, and weighs 180. If nominated he no doubt would make whirlwind speaking tours into all parts of the country, for he made more than 1,000 talks in 1930 and always has spoken in each county in his New York campaigns.

He has a prodigious capacity for work. His day begins at 8 o'clock with breakfast and mail and ends after midnight with light reading for relaxation.

In politics the governor regards himself as a progressive. In 1920 he declared himself for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and restoring of liquor control to the states, and this stand was reaffirmed a few weeks ago. He supported Woodrow Wilson in the fight for the league of nations.

The governor has pleaded for unemployment relief legislation and called it the duty of society, through government, to aid those thrown out of work by the depression.

SMITH

Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee for president in 1928 and four times governor of New York, was presented to the New York Bar association by Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes in that year as: "One who represents to us the expert in government, and, I might say, a master in the science of politics."

Smith was born in the humble surroundings of New York's lower east side and, at the age of 13, was obliged to leave school and assist in supporting his mother. Coming up through the ranks of Tammany politics, he became one of America's most colorful public figures, and because of his cheery disposition, his rough and ready fighting tactics, his extraordinary frankness, his epigrams, and his readiness to answer all questions, he has been likened to Theodore Roosevelt.

His First Public Job.

His first public job was a clerkship in the office of the commissioner of jurors, which he held from 1895 to 1903. Then he was elected to the New York assembly. He was reelected each year until 1915, serving variously as Democratic leader and speaker. He was one of the outstanding leaders of the New York constitutional convention in 1915 and in the same year began a three year term as sheriff.

In 1917 he was elected president of the board of aldermen and remained in that position until his election as governor in 1918. He met his first political defeat in 1920, but came back in 1922 with an overwhelming victory. He won the governorship in 1924 over Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and in 1926 over Ogden L. Mills. In the 1928 presidential campaign his popular vote was 18,430,000 against Hoover's 21,842,000. Since then he has been president of the Empire State Building corporation.

He is a relentless foe of prohibition, wants the eighteenth amendment repealed and state rights restored, but opposes the return of the saloon. He is a consistent advocate of government economy, favors public ownership of water power and would write off the books all money owed us by foreign countries for twenty years.

"BOOK-CADILLAC" on the envelope was enough for me! I could picture my husband running up a whopping big bill at Detroit's "swankiest" hotel. And me at home longing for a new hat.

But when I read his letter, I was terribly ashamed of myself. Jack was having the time of his life—enjoying a room with private bath, circulating ice water. All the famous Book-Cadillac luxury—and it cost only $3 a day. I certainly couldn't crab at that!

Jack said, too, that the food was grand and not at all expensive. "Last night," he wrote, "I ate in the Boulevard Restaurant and had a delicious full-course dinner for 90c. In fact, all four of their restaurants are first rate. Splendid service in each."

Next time Jack goes to Detroit, I'm going to make him take me with him. It'll be a marvelous vacation, one that we can afford, too.

"Safeguards the beauty of our loveliest possessions," say

Prominent Chicagoans

Mrs. Sterling Morton

—whose husband is a retired financier and member of the board of directors of the Morton Salt Company. She is a granddaughter of the late Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, and a member of the woman's board of St. Luke's Hospital. She is an inveterate traveler and an eager sportswoman—loves sailing, off the coast of Cape Cod in the Morton schooner. "We're free from dirt on The Freedom," says Mrs. Morton. "It is kept white and clean with American Family Flakes. Even the sails get their regular scrubbing down with these pure suds—and let me add, they're the whitest sails in the harbor."

Beauty flies out the window when poor soap comes in the door, whether that beauty is in costly or inexpensive things.

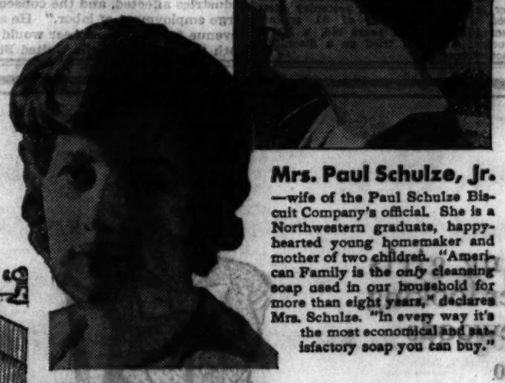
Mrs. Sterling Morton selects all her exquisite napery in famous little shops across the water. "And you may be sure," she says, "if Europe offered a finer soap for laundering my treasures, I'd bring that home too. But there's no soap anywhere so safe as American Family Flakes."

"Colors never fade or run when American Family Flakes is used in laundering," declares Mrs. Paul Schulze, Jr., showing as evidence gay little Czecho-Slovakian frocks, dainty hand-worked dresses from Vienna, crisp Parisian organdies from the Rue de la Paix.

"This safe, mild soap is giving me much longer wear from my things—especially silk stockings. I don't have to buy so many pairs now," says Mrs. Harry K. Curtis. You should see the tablecloth Vice-President Curtis brought her from Japan! "It is so frail I hesitated to use it often until I discovered these pure velvety suds."

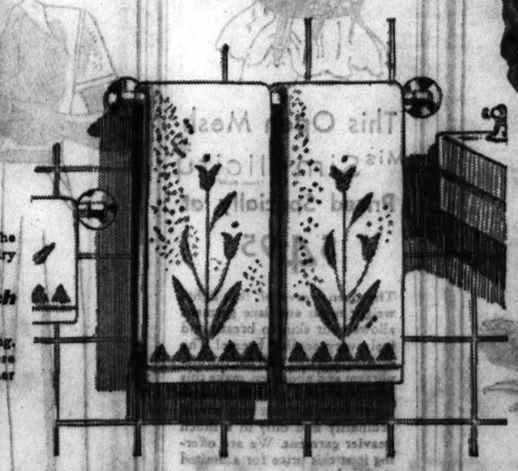
What American Family Flakes and Soap do for costly imported fabrics, they do for sheets, blankets, draperies, china, glassware and woodwork. They add years to their wear and beauty. The reason is simple. American Family makes double the suds—because it was created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. And it's the double-suds that makes the difference.

Begin today to use Kirk's American Family Flakes and Soap. The sooner you start, the more you'll save.



Mrs. Paul Schulze, Jr.

—wife of the Paul Schulze Biscuit Company's official. She is a Northwestern graduate, happy-hearted young homemaker and mother of two children. "American Family is the only cleansing soap used in our household for more than eight years," declares Mrs. Schulze. "In every way it's the most economical and satisfactory soap you can buy."



Mrs. Harry K. Curtis

—whose father-in-law is Vice-President of the United States. A Titian beauty from Washington, who had to come to Chicago to discover that the pure double-suds of American Family Flakes put wear into clothes, and cash into struggling budgets. "This soap is safe for china and glassware too," she says. "It makes such rich suds and cuts grease with no effort at all."

The Flakes—double-sudsing—the only soap trusted with the costly laundry of 4 out of 5 Gold Coast women.

The Cake Soap—now much BIGGER—same price!
Same quality—double-sudsing. For ninety years used by more Chicago women than all other laundry soaps combined.

How One Woman Lost 96 Lbs. of Fat

Feels Better — Brighter

"Dear Sirs: I like Kruschen Salts for I took it to reduce overweight. Last August I weighed 256 lbs. Today I weigh 160 lbs. I feel better and brighter, too. I can take long walks now. Kruschen Salts and diet did it for me. My friends say I look well. I'm 33; when I weighed 256 lbs. the bust was 37, waist 46, hips 54. Now bust is 34, waist 32, hips 40—thanks to Kruschen Salts. Yours truly, Mrs. Thomas Crouch, Gladwyne, Pa., January 29, 1932."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents.

When reducing, attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat.

To take off fat harmlessly and safely, take one half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning—don't worry—it's the safe way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why, money back.

FOR A BATTLE ROYAL, LOOK TO THE DEMOCRATS

'32 Convention Promises Another Struggle.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Nine of the last 19 presidents of the United States have been nominated in Chicago. Next November it can be written that half of the presidents in the last 76 years were products of Chicago conventions.

The city should not be criticised for making a better showing. It was only 87 years old when it entertained its first national convention in 1860. Since then it has been host to approximately 40 per cent of the conventions of the major parties.

Of the 41 major conventions, since the Democrats first convened west of the Alleghenies in 1856, Chicago has been the scene of 17. This total includes the progressives of 1912 and the two conventions this year.

Dramatic Convention of 1896.

The Democratic convention which opens next Monday promises to be a big show. It is expected to rival in interest the Charleston convention of 1856, the Baltimore convention of 1912, the San Francisco convention of 1920 and the New York convention of 1924. It may even approach—who can tell with nine candidates in the field—the Chicago convention of 1896, which was probably the most dramatic in the history of the party.

Even the so-called cut and dried conventions provide a good show. Nine candidates—five of them looked upon as threatening contenders—seem certain to cause roll calls, which in turn arose interest, foment enthusiasm and create excitement.

The Democrats are notorious for struggle and battle. They are not so well disciplined as the Republicans. The roll calls alone show that. In the conventions since 1896, the Democrats have had nearly ten times as many roll calls as the Republicans. In the last nine conventions the Republicans have called the roll 22 times on Presidential candidates, while the Democrats have had to take 202 roll calls to pick their nominees.

Only One Roll Call.

Last week the Republicans had only one roll call. How many times the Democrats will call the roll next week is for the political writers to estimate. This reporter has no guess.

The large number of roll calls in Democratic conventions is due chiefly to the fact that the Sons of Jefferson require a two-thirds vote, while the Republicans nominate with a majority. In addition the Democrats are prone to scrap.

One of their famous struggles was in the convention in Charleston, S. C., in 1860. They fought through 57 roll calls in 10 days without results, except that a rump convention was formed. The main convention moved to Baltimore after a 19-day recess and on two more ballots nominated Stephen A. Douglas, a son of Illinois, as the party candidate.

Battle Royal in 1896.

They continued the spirit of contest through the next 36 years and landed in Chicago for a battle royal in 1896. Senator Ben Tillman of South Carolina did not like Grover Cleveland and presented a resolution to the convention, which said:

"We denounce the administration of President Cleveland as undemocratic and tyrannical."

Although the resolution was defeated by a vote of 564 to 357, it gave William J. Bryan an opportunity to make his "crown of thorns" and "cross of gold" speech, which won him the nomination on the fifth ballot, and shelved Richard P. Bland.

The next three Democratic conventions required only one ballot to nominate. Bryan won two of them and Alton Parker the other.

Then followed the 1912 convention in Baltimore where Woodrow Wilson won on the 46th ballot. This is the one Democratic convention since the civil war when the candidate with a majority of votes did not win. In that convention there were 1,088 delegates. Champ Clark obtained 556 votes on the tenth ballot and held a majority for a long period, but was never able to get the required 726.

Wilson was renominated in 1916 without opposition, but in 1920 it required 44 ballots for the Democrats to select James M. Cox at San Francisco.

The longest contest in Democratic history was the New York convention in 1924, when 103 ballots were taken to name John W. Davis as the standard bearer. The 1928 convention at Houston gave Al Smith 849 votes out of the 1,100 on the first ballot. This year the Democrats appear to be due for another struggle, and for a big show.

Former Movie Comedian Weds

MR. AND MRS. ROSCOE (FATTY) ARBUCKLE.

Bride Divorced a Week

Erie, Pa., June 21.—(AP)—Roscoe Conklin "Fatty" Arbuckle, former motion picture star, and Mrs. Addie Oakley Dukes McPhail were married at 2:30 o'clock this morning by Justice of the Peace Walter Edward Goodwin of Wesleyville.

Arbuckle gave his age as 45, and his birthplace as Smith Center, Kas. His bride, who a week ago was divorced in Hollywood, said she is 26 and was born in White Plains, Ky. Both gave Hollywood as their address. It is Arbuckle's third marriage and the second for his wife.

Witnesses were Jack Sutta of Hollywood and Mrs. W. J. Twiss, wife of an Erie newspaper man.

Mr. and Mrs. Arbuckle returned immediately after the ceremony to Cleveland where they are appearing in a theater engagement.

Th couple routed B. F. Swartz, register of wills, out of bed to obtain their marriage license. Arbuckle paid the courthouse janitor $10 to open the doors.

After the ceremony, Arbuckle said: "I'm walking on air. Addie is a wonderful girl."

ILLINOIS TO URGE VOTE ON REPEAL BY CONVENTIONS

Illinois not only will favor the adoption of a plank in the Democratic national platform unqualifiedly indorsing repeal of the 18th amendment but will urge that the plank provide for ratification by special conventions called for that purpose, instead of the more usual method of ratification by state legislatures.

This prediction was made yesterday by Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman, who already has been chosen by the Illinois delegation as its representative on the resolutions committee. He also said that he will contend for as short and as clear a plank on this question as it is possible to construct.

"There are many issues that enter into the election of members of the legislature," said Committeeman Igoe, "questions of taxation, representation, agriculture and labor for example.

"These factors would not arise in connection with a state convention called for the purpose of acting on a proposed constitutional amendment. There would be no other issues. The members would be elected because they were for or against that amendment and for no other reason. Necessarily the convention would be brief."

Committeeman Igoe, in urging the advisability of a terse, simply worded form of declaration on prohibition, said he was much impressed with the form presented to him during the day by Mrs. George E. Brennan on behalf of the Illinois division of the Woman's National Organization for Prohibition Reform. This read:

"We, the representatives of the Democratic party, believe that the 18th amendment should be repealed. We therefore urge the congress to propose an amendment to the constitution repealing the 18th amendment, to become effective when ratified by conventions of the people of three-fourths of the states in accordance with article V. of the constitution, and we pledged the best efforts of the Democratic party to the accomplishment of such ratification."

TICKET SALE FOR DEMOCRATS FAR AHEAD OF G. O. P.

While the entire organization proclaims its neutrality, those in charge of Democratic convention tickets to be distributed by the Chicago citizens' committee headed by Edward N. Hurley hinted yesterday that the demand for these admissions is much greater than for the Republican meeting last week.

The time limit within which the original contributors to the guarantee fund were allowed to obtain additional tickets expired yesterday and today new donors will be assigned tickets in the order in which their requests are received. A subscription of $46 brings a mezzanine ticket, one of $22 will produce a first balcony ticket, and $17 will be good for the second balcony.

At Mr. Hurley's office, 208 South La Salle street, it was said the orders were coming in rapidly and that it is expected the tickets will be placed in the mail late Thursday or early Friday morning.

ACT TO SET UP STATE GROUPS TO FIGHT TAX BURDEN

Business Men to Present Case to Democrats.

On the eve of the Democratic national convention here the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures is concentrating on the setting up of machinery in Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky, and Illinois to carry on the fight to relieve the tax burden now weighing on the nation.

Chicago representatives of the organization yesterday held a meeting with officials of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce to further their cause and today they will meet with officials of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

The plan is to make use of all existing organizations in the respective states which are interested in the movement to drive tax eaters out of office and to obtain economy in the operation of government. These organizations will include chambers of commerce, local Lions' clubs, Rotarians, and business groups.

Plan to Organize States.

It was explained yesterday that officials of the national organization desire to have four or five states thoroughly organized when the Democratic convention convenes, in order to show the delegates how the parent body will function when all the states are united. It is the purpose of the organization to indicate to the delegates, as was done to the Republicans, that the American taxpayers mean business in their demands that economy in government—federal, state, and local—be put into effect at once.

Meanwhile, plans have been announced by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce for a meeting of tax levying and spending boards and Illinois business men in Chicago early in October. Supervisors and other officials of the 103 counties in the state are to be invited to attend the session, which will be a feature of the annual convention of the state body.

Concentrate on Tax Cuts.

"We are forgetting for the moment many salient business problems and concentrating on this matter of getting state and local taxes down to a point where people can pay them without going broke doing it," said Walter Williams, president of the state chamber.

"We are announcing this conference at this early date so that even now assessing and collecting bodies may know that the 45,000 business men affiliated with the state chamber mean business. When October comes we hope to have in Chicago not only most of the men who set the taxes, but a large and representative group of those who pay them."

DEMOCRATS ACT TO MAKE INDIANA 100 PER CENT WET

State Convention Adopts Repeal Platform.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—[Special.]—The Democratic state convention went unanimously wet today in Indiana, dryest of the bone dry states. Without a dissenting vote, the party adopted a plank calling on congress to submit to the states an amendment to repeal the 18th amendment. Ratification by the states is to be by conventions, not legislatures.

It calls for immediate repeal of the Wright "bone dry" state law, which was put on the books by the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan in the era when they held the state in a dry dictatorship.

Irony of ironies, the Democratic declaration for submission of repeal is almost the image of the Bingham minority repeal plank, which was rejected last week by the Republican national convention in Chicago in favor of the straddle slapped into the platform by votes from dry [politically] Democratic states of the south. The meat of the Democratic plank in phraseology is almost identical with the Bingham plank.

A Reconstruction Period.

Going further, the Bingham plank itself was modeled upon the repeal plank adopted by the Republican party of Indiana a few days before the national convention—an action which exerted deep influence in rolling up a repeal vote in the national convention.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties in Indiana, boss ridden for years by the umbrella toting gentry, the Klan and the professional drys, now have liquor planks which are essentially the same. Liquor is removed as a state issue, both parties have emerged from Anti-Saloon league dictation, and both are standing on the repealist plank which the administration carpenters in the G. O. P. national convention threw on the junk pile.

The Democrats appear the wetter. Where the Indiana Republicans June 9 adopted the submission of repeal and anti-state bone dry act plank by a vote of 823 to 620, the Democrats today put their platform through on a viva voce vote.

Declares for State Control.

The plank declared for state laws to prevent return of the saloon, and for state control of the liquor traffic.

"To the end that the illicit, lawless, and unregulated traffic in intoxicants may be supplanted by public supervision and control: To the end that, instead of the expenditure of enormous sums of the public funds in a fruitless effort to abolish the liquor traffic, a legitimate public revenue should be derived therefrom for the relief of the overburdened taxpayer, and to the end that the traffic may be legally controlled and wholesomely regulated in the interest of temperance,

"We recommend that the congress of the United States immediately propose the necessary amendment to the federal constitution repealing the eighteenth amendment.

"We further recommend that the congress, in such repeal amendment, specify that it shall be submitted to nonpartisan conventions of the people of the several states, at which no other question shall be considered, all in accordance with article 5 of the constitution of the United States.

"We declare that the ultimate control of the liquor traffic shall rest with the sovereign states.

"We recommend the immediate repeal of the obnoxious "Wright law," and the enactment of such regulatory laws as will protect persons and property and prevent the return of the saloon."

Thought Friendly to Roosevelt.

On presidential candidates the convention gave no instructions. Leaders say about 25 of the 30 delegates to Chicago are friendly to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Three districts—six delegates—instructed for Roosevelt.

One notable phase of the convention was that it saw the party passing into the control of the "young bloods" and the emergence of the American Legion into big time politics as did the G. A. R. after the civil war. The McNutt-Peters-Legion slate went through.

Paul V. McNutt was nominated for governor. He is a former state commander of the Legion, and he is dean of the Indiana university law school. He was named by acclamation after John E. Frederick, Kokomo manufacturer, and Terre Haute, had withdrawn. McNutt will run against Raymond Springer of Connersville, the Republican nominee, who was first state commander of the Legion.

"I pray divine providence for the wisdom and strength and courage which the present critical situation demands," he said.

Frederick Van Nuys, of Indianapolis, former U. S. district attorney, was nominated for United States senator. He will oppose Senator James E. Watson, Republican national senate leader. Van Nuys beat Walter Myers of Indianapolis, speaker of the house, by a vote of 938 to 820. Van Nuys was introduced as "the man who can beat Jim Watson."

Other Nominations.

M. Clifford Townsend of Marion, active in the Indiana farm bureau, was nominated for lieutenant governor on the first ballot. Judge James P. Hughes of Greencastle and Michael Fansler of Logansport were nominated for Supreme court justices.

Other nominations were:

Reporter Supreme court — Miss Emma May, Terre Haute.

Incumbent state officials were unanimously renominated: Frank Mayr Jr., South Bend, secretary of state; Floyd E. Williamson, Indianapolis, auditor; William Storen, Scottsburg, state treasurer; George C. Cole, Lawrenceburg, superintendent of public instruction.

R. Earl Peters of Fort Wayne, state chairman, who was largely instrumental in the remachining of the party was enthusiastically greeted.

The keynoter followed. He was Clarence E. Manion, a Legionnaire, and a professor of law at Notre Dame university. He galloped over the Republicans like the Four Horsemen themselves and had the hall shrieking and yelling. It was a more demonstrative show than the whole three days of the Republican national convention in Chicago last week. In speeches and platform, also, more was said about economy in government and other issues than was heard in the three days of the Republicans.

The keynoter larruped the Grundy tariff, and ripped into the Republican platform adopted at Chicago. He asked why the Republicans had not committed themselves to some definite program on retrenchment of government costs instead of "generalities."

Elephant Thick Skinned.

"Flagellation of generalities has never bothered the G. O. P. elephant," he said. "He is notoriously thick skinned. Why did they not promise the immediate demobilization of the army of thirty thousand government spies that swarm over the land like the lice of Egypt interfering with the God-given liberties of citizens and accomplishing nothing more constructive than the sustained hum of the Republican patronage machine? Why did they not propose to cut the expenditures of 165 millions for the Hoover dam, the purpose of which is to irrigate sage brush and bring it into competition with the land of the Indiana farmer?

"Why did they not flatfootedly propose to discharge the costly Republican experts who conduct researches upon the 'love life of the bullfrog' and the malformations of the doodle bug? Why did they not explain the Republican appropriation of 190 millions for the beautification of the Mall triangle in Washington, a sum more than seven times greater than that paid by Thomas Jefferson for the whole of the Louisiana purchase?"

Bureaucracy, the growth of deficit, the national into billions, and of state deficits, the increase in the army of pay rollers, and the efforts to balance the budget, were flayed by Manion.

Inverse Ratio Republicans.

"The Republican policy," he said, "as applied in Indiana and at Washington, apparently is based upon the principle that when the taxpayer is worth less he shall pay more. We see both here and at the seat of our central government in Washington decreased valuations and decreased abilities to pay attempted to be balanced against increased taxation and inflated government expenditures. This is a Hoover-Leslie engineering formula known as the inverse ratio of Republican rule."

TWO LOSE LIVES IN WELL

Blame 'Black Damp'

The story of how deadly "black damp," cause of so many fatalities in mine explosions, choked two men to death on Monday at the bottom of a well in Frankfort, eleven miles west of Chicago Heights, was told yesterday to a Will county coroner's jury.

The well was on the farm of Charles W. Johnson, 37 years old, one of the victims. With Charles Modeen, Johnson had been cleaning the well in which the water had become foul recently. Shortly before they quit for lunch, Modeen said, they had removed all but a couple of feet of water from the 28 foot well, and Johnson, coming up to eat, reported that gas was bubbling from the water.

He thought an air pocket was sending the bubbles into the water, and after lunch was lowered again by a windlass to resume his work. When he was nearly to the bottom, Modeen said, he signaled to be hauled up, but before Modeen could do this, Johnson tumbled from his seat into the water.

Modeen cried for help. W. W. Martin, a farm hand, and several others hurried to the well. Martin was lowered to get Johnson out, but he had just time to shout "Gas," before he too fell from his seat at the end of a rope into the water. Chicago Heights firemen recovered the bodies several hours later. The death of the men, it was found, was caused by "black damp," a mixture of gases. It is believed to have been formed near the bottom of the well by the decomposition of buried vegetation.

Mother Sent to Jail for Starving Her Stepchildren

After hearing testimony that she had beaten and starved two step-children while her own children received the best care ,Judge Joseph Graber yesterday sentenced Mrs. Jennie Pacer, 40 years old, 5330 South Merrimac avenue, to serve one year in the house of correction and fined her $100.

1,000 Guerrillas Slain in Battle, Japanese Report

TOKYO, June 22.—[Wednesday]—(AP)—A dispatch to the Rengo [Japanese] news agency from Harbin, Manchuria, today said a Japanese brigade had slain nearly 1,000 guerillas in a battle north of Hailun. The Japanese casualties were reported as 13 dead and 23 wounded. The battle was fought last Thursday, reports reaching Harbin slowly owing to difficulties with communications.

HOUSE REFUSES TO VOTE U. S. FUNDS FOR WAR ON GRASSHOPPERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today refused to concur in a senate amendment to the agriculture appropriation bill, making $1,450,000 of federal money immediately available for the control of grasshoppers in the northwest.

Not only did the membership reject the senate's proposition, but they likewise voted down a compromise offer by Representative Robert G. Simmons [Rep., Neb.], under which the amount proposed was reduced to $600,000.

And finally by adopting a motion to disagree with the senate amendment and asking for a further conference on the bill, they informed the senate that it might as well give up the idea of federal money for grasshopper control because the house would not approve it.

Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, denounced the proposal as a "dole to the states," and assailed it as "the most indefensible proposition you ever voted on in your lives."

"I was home during the last two days," said Mr. Byrns, "and I want to tell you that every man I talked with damned the congress for its failure to cut government expenses. If you are in favor of government economy here's your chance to show it. And I want to know how you can justify a vote in favor of this proposition after you voted yesterday to cut salaries."

HUEY LONG HERE; FACES FIGHT FOR CONVENTION SEAT

Modest 'Kingfish' Refuses to Run for President.

A white clad figure jumped from a train in the Grand Central station. A voice boomed. Two arms were flung aloft in an evangelistic figure. Shouting, gesticulating, exhorting, Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana Kingfish himself, bounced into Chicago yesterday.

Senator Long firmly declined the Democratic nomination for President. Modestly admitting that he wielded a considerable influence in the party, he stated that he had decided to put Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt over.

"Roosevelt can serve the cause better than I," he announced. "I do not wish the nomination."

Reminds Him of Contest.

A representative of the press was tactless enough to remind the potliker drinking senator that his own position as national committeeman and delegate was being contested.

"They're always contesting down in Louisiana," said the senator, obviously annoyed. "Those fellows are all like the Irishman who woke up drunk in the graveyard one morning and said: 'It's resurrection morning and I'm the first one to rise.'"

The senator greeted his joke with a burst of laughter and dug some one in the ribs. His audience smiled politely.

But the Kingfish didn't succeed in laughing off the Louisiana contest, for at the same time he was clowning Capt. John D. Ewing of New Orleans, who heads the opposing delegation, reached the city and issued a statement assailing Long and his political tactics.

Call State Convention.

Long controls the Democratic state committee. Last February, by that power, he hand picked his delegates and had himself named national committeeman. But, largely because the national committee in 1928 at the Houston convention warned the state not to try that sort of a maneuver again, the opponents of Long held a state convention which was attended by delegates selected at meetings in every parish in the state. That state convention, in addition to naming the Ewing delegation, elected Ewing national committeeman.

"The unafraid and untrammeled Democracy of Louisiana," said Capt. Ewing in his statement, "is united and determined in its opposition to the ruthless political dictator who has publicly read himself out of the party on the floor of the United States senate, resigned from all party assignments on committees, attempted to weaken the natural Democracy and give comfort to the Republicans, denouncing and belittling our distinguished leaders, including illustrious candidates for the presidency."

Vetoes Delegate Law.

The statement also brought out that the Louisiana delegation of 1928 agreed at Houston that the state would pass a law requiring the selection of delegates by convention, that such a law was passed, and that Long, as governor, vetoed it.

"I have no doubt," said Capt. Ewing, "that the delegation would not have been seated in 1928 if the national committee had suspected that Gov. Long was going to exercise such arbitrary veto powers."

But the Kingfish brushed aside questions relating to this and similar subjects, replying only to those queries that he preferred.

"Second to Nobody."

"How about Vice President?" some one asked. The senator gave him a withering glance.

"I wouldn't be vice anything," he asserted. "I'd rather be the biggest man in a little village than the second biggest man in a great city. Huey Long stands second to nobody.

"Prohibition?" continued the senator, warming to the interview as a crowd was attracted by the noble organ tones of his voice, "submit it to the people. If they want repeal, let them have it.

"The two-thirds rule of the Democratic convention should be abolished. It's undemocratic. Congress could never pass a law if it had the two-thirds rule.

The "Kingfish" on Taxes.

"Taxes? Why should 504 men possess more wealth than 2,300,000 farmers? Why shouldn't those rich men be taxed?"

There was much along this line, and the senator snorted when he was asked for his opinion of the Republican platform.

"The wet plank is clear as mud," he said. "And the rest of the platform is like a Mother Hubbard. It covers everything and touches nothing."

HELD AS PURSE THIEF.

Jack Clinton, 32 years old, 6417 Stewart avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti on charges of stealing 18 purses from landladies in whose homes he pretended to look at rooms. Bond was set at $4,000.

ECONOMY FORGOTTEN IN POSTOFFICE AND TREASURY BUDGET

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—A treasury and postoffice appropriation bill that made no pretense at cutting costs was reported out to the senate today by the appropriations committee.

As passed by the house the bill carried $1,059,778,163. As it comes into the senate it carries $1,055,798,333, or a cut of only $3,979,830.

In the case of other supply bills, the senate insisted that they be cut 10 per cent below the house figure. Had the appropriations committee followed that course with the treasury and postoffice bill it would have meant economies of approximately 106 million dollars instead of the less than four million dollars actually taken out of the bill.

The measure is cut only 49 million dollars below last year and but 27 million dollars below the budget estimates.

Notable among the expenditures is that for the coast guard. Though cut $1,110,000 by the appropriations committee, the coast guard, including its rum chasing activities, will cost the taxpayers $27,400,220 next year.

Of the $402,170 added by the senate committee $375,000 is to be used for the air mail service between Salt Lake City, Utah, and San Diego, Cal. Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] is credited with shoving this item into the bill.

SONNENSCHEIN EASY VICTOR IN 22D WARD VOTE

Henry Sonnenschein, secretary to Mayor Cermak, was elected alderman of the Twenty-second ward yesterday to fill the unexpired term of the late Ald. Joseph Cepak. He was given a majority of 1,882 of all the votes cast, eliminating the necessity for a runoff election. Out of 15,075 votes cast, Sonnenschein received 9,228 votes, while his five opponents received 5,849.

The board of election commissioners canvassed the vote last night and issued a certificate of election to Sonnenschein, thus permitting him to take his seat in the city council at its next meeting, which is scheduled for Friday. He will hold the position until February, when a general aldermanic election will be held.

Although the election was in only one section of the city, a large vote given to Sonnenschein, a Democrat, was regarded as significant, especially so as Len Small, Republican nominee for governor, and his Chicago allies, had thrown their support behind one of his opponents, Anthony P. Benkowski. Sonnenschein led Benkowski, who ran second, by 2,951 votes.

The Municipal Voters' league had indorsed Sonnenschein, its report stating that he has "decided legislative ability" and classifying his opponents as "lacking in qualifications" for the office. His opponents, and the vote each received, follow: Benkowski, 3,275; John F. Ficek, 1,543; Anton J. Hladik, 532; Andrew Kreilinger, 344; and James Kuta, 100.

Heavy balloting between 6 a. m. when the polls opened, and 7:30 a. m. marked the election. No violence was reported, but one arrest was made, that of Fred Frasano, who gave his address as 5339 West Monroe street, when he attempted to vote illegally in the Fourth precinct. Frasano was reported as having told state's attorney police that a stranger had offered him $2 to vote for Sonnenschein.

Before leaving for New York on Sunday Mayor Cermak cast an absentee ballot for Sonnenschein and urged his election in the interest of furthering the present administration's economy program.

CONFEREES COME TO AGREEMENT ON ECONOMY BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—The senate conferees on the general government economy bill which passed the house yesterday agreed today to recommend that the senate concur in the house's modification of the furlough plan for cutting the pay of government employés.

Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], chairman of the conferees, stated that he would bring the recommendation before the senate tomorrow and would make a motion that the senate concur in the house's amendment to the furlough plan.

The senate's approval of the conferees' report will send the economy bill to the White House for President Hoover's signature.

Following the defeat of a flat pay cut plan advocated by Representative John J. McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the house conferees, the house yesterday voted to agree with the senate in substituting the furlough plan for the pay cut scheme embodied in the bill as it originally passed the house.

KLEAGLE CLARKE IS LOCKED UP IN PSYCHOPATHIC

Esskaye, His Price Fixing Order, Disbands.

Edward Young Clarke, former kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan and founder of Esskaye, Inc., a "back to prosperity" movement with $100 membership fees, was committed to the psychopathic hospital yesterday on a plea of the Esskaye executive board. The commitment of the ex-kleagle was followed by the disbanding of the Esskaye last evening.

County Judge A. J. Van Keuren ordered the commitment of Clarke on a certificate signed by Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, noted alienist, who examined Clarke and pronounced him a paranoiac. The ex-kleagle went quietly to the hospital, attended by Leonard J. Grossman, former alderman of the 5th ward and self-styled attorney general of the Esskaye temple of justice.

Grossman Tells Suspicions.

"We have suspected for some time that there was something wrong with Clarke," Grossman said of the man he had formerly hailed as a Moses to lead America back to prosperity. "For the good of the movement we decided to have him confined and examined."

Chock full of plans to restore the buying power of the farmer and thus restore prosperity to the middle class, Kleagle Clarke bounced into Chicago last April with a pledge that within six months Esskaye would have 2 million members and sufficient power to force on congress a bill fixing the price of farm products at wartime levels.

Looking for Millennium.

Esskaye, as he outlined it, was to incorporate all the beneficial and none of the intolerant features of the klan. Having restored prosperity, the members were to make the country "church conscious" and eventually achieve for the United States a millennium. The economic program of the movement, he said, was the work of Francis J. Clair, New York engineer, who had been vainly preaching the federal price fixing gospel for several years to western farmers.

A group of "prominent" New York capitalists had employed him to put the plan over, Clarke maintained. Having inserted blind ads in several newspapers, he rallied a crowd of several score to his organization meetings at the Morrison hotel and soon had them coming by hundreds.

The Better Business bureau, having examined Clarke's past record, issued a warning, but the crowds continued to sign up, Attorney Grossman declaring that the power trust and the Wall street bankers were the undercover foes of Esskaye and were trying to "crucify" Clarke.

Special $100 memberships of the Esskaye Founders syndicate were solicited, but with small success. Recently the telephone company shut off service in Esskaye's elaborate suite at 100 North La Salle street. The hotel accommodating his meetings and the furniture house outfitting the Esskaye office began to press for payment.

The first open break in the Esskaye organization came recently when Bert Wagner, former office manager for Kiwanis International, resigned as treasurer. Then the executive committee began to grow alarmed. This committee, meeting last Saturday night with Clarke, informed him that they believed in the Clair plan and told the kleagle that, for the success of the plan, he must abdicate and the Esskaye disbanded.

Agrees to Abdicate.

Clarke wavered until the committee mentioned the hotel, telephone and furniture bills. Then he agreed to quit. At another meeting, held Monday night in the Blackstone hotel, the committee again considered the situation and decided to arrange for a psychopathic test for Clarke.

Among those at the meeting were Dr. Anna Ranes, south side physician and head of the Esskaye women's division; Treasurer Wagner, Austin McLennon, Prof. O. G. Davis and a Miss La Follette, described as a relative of the late senator from Wisconsin. The next hearing on Clarke's case has been set for June 30 by Judge Van Keuren.

Mr. Grossman pronounced the obsequies for Esskaye at a special meeting last night in the La Salle street suite. After the organization was dissolved by a unanimous vote of the assemblage, Grossman introduced Mr. Clair as "the distinguished New York economist." Mr. Clair then spoke. Plans for a Clair Economic club are reported to be in the making.

WET CANDIDATES WIN MINNESOTA PRIMARY HONORS

St. Paul, Minn., June 21.—[Special.]—Wets won a triumphant victory in the nominations of the three parties, Republican, Democratic, and Farmer-Labor for nine seats in Congress in the state primaries yesterday. The candidates all ran at large, due to the state's redistriction law being declared invalid.

Of the nine Republicans who are in the lead as the returns come in, three advocated repeal of the prohibition laws, five are for submission of the question to the voters, and one dry appears to have been nominated and he is in ninth place. Congressmen Victor Christgau, Godfrey G. Goodwin, and C. G. Selvig, Republicans and drys, are defeated on the face of the returns. Former Govs. Theodore Christianson and J. A. A. Barnquist are among the winners.

Silas M. Bryan of Minneapolis, son of Gov. Bryan of Nebraska and nephew of the late "Commoner," who favored submission in his campaign, and Einar Hoidale, who failed of election as governor in 1930 by a small margin, lead the list of nine Democrats nominated for congress, all of whom are wet to a greater or lesser extent.

Outstanding drys among the Farmer-Labor candidates appear to have fallen far behind in their primary in which Congressman John Paul Kvale is running second to Magnus Johnson, former United States senator. Adam Bede of Duluth and Ernest Lundeen of Minneapolis, who are former Republican congressmen, are close to the leaders for Farmer-Labor nominations.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson easily won renomination as the Farmer-Labor candidate and Earle E. Brown was an easy winner of the Republican gubernatorial nomination. A surprise was staged by the Democrats in nominating John B. Egan for governor.

Wet and Dry in Maine.

Portland, Me., June 21.—[Special.]—A wet Democrat and a Republican generally believed to be favorable to prohibition were nominated today by their respective parties for governor. Burleigh Martin of Augusta was the Republican winner in a field of five candidates, none of whom dissented from the bone dry plank adopted at the Republican state convention, while Louis J. Brann of Lewiston, the Democratic choice, was the only candidate in either party to take a stand on the liquor question and he declared squarely for submission of a repeal.

Dry candidates were winners in the two contests for nominations for congressional seats. The winners were former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster and Representative Carroll L. Beedy, spokesman for the prohibition forces at Washington. Representative John E. Nelson was renominated without a contest.

PADLOCK DRIVE IN NEW YORK IS HOPELESS TASK

U. S. Fmds Blind Pigs Open as Fast as Shut.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—This is padlock week in Manhattan and the dingy old federal building hummed with activity today as cases were tried, set for trial, postponed or thrown out.

Many of those on the calendar should have been traceable to the recent activities of Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition commissioner, who set himself the Herculean task of cleaning up this city's speakeasies, but their identities were merged with the regular run of cases and the "Woodcock drive" as a feature story was smothered under a mountain of "routine business."

What Woodcock Says.

The announcement by Mr. Woodcock that the government would move to close by padlock injunctions all speakeasies and liquor selling resorts in Manhattan—3,844, according to the Woodcock census—attracted this reporter to the federal building on the first day of wholesale disposition of cases. At the rate they were being moved today it would take about 30 months to dispose of 3,844 cases and in 12 months virtually every padlock would have expired and the government would have to start all over again.

"I don't think Mr. Woodcock's statement was understood," explained Arthur H. Schwartz, assistant United States attorney in charge of the prohibition department. "We have been using the injunction method for two months now, and it works splendidly, but we are proceeding about as rapidly as we can expect to."

It was pointed out at the federal building that George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, and not Mr. Woodcock, has the responsibility of determining what legal action shall be taken in cases growing out of raids on speakeasies. Neither Mr. Medalie nor his aids believe that Manhattan can ever be made a desert.

100 Cases on Calendar.

Today, the courtroom where the padlock cases were being heard was crowded to the doors. A clerk's voice droned through more than one hundred cases on the calendar. About sixty were set for trial in the next ten days. Among those disposed of were a dozen or more in which pleas of guilty had been entered and six months or one year padlocks ordered.

There was no apparent disposition to hurry any case and the lawyers were given opportunity to present their client's case in a favorable light. Nevertheless, it was easy to see that the prosecution of the cases under civil rather than criminal procedure was speeding up matters. The history of a sample padlock case as obtained from lawyers, the prosecutor and observed in the courtroom runs like this:

There is a raid. The owner and assistants are arrested. They give bond. Afterwards they are called into court, arraigned and date of hearing is set. Then, if they care to fight, their lawyers get busy. Postponements of from ten days to three weeks frequently are obtained. Eventually there is a trial before a federal judge. The defendant is given full opportunity to plead his case. Then the judge either padlocks the place or refuses to padlock.

Snapping on Padlock.

"It takes from two to three months to carry out a padlock proceeding," said Mr. Schwartz. The public conception of a raiding party going out and snapping a padlock on the raided speakeasy is all wrong. The owner of the raided place could open up the day after the agents visited him. The padlock or injunction process works the same as in a civil suit."

HORRORS! CANDY BEER IMPERILS FUTURE OF EVANSTON'S CHILDREN

A new form of beer has appeared in Evanston, cradle of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, and the W. C. T. U. is up in arms. More insidious, in the eyes of the W. C. T. U., than the campaign to return 2.75 beer to adults is this latest development. For it's directed toward the children of the suburb and threatens, in the view of the W. C. T. U., to undermine their morals and make them a prey to all the complexes thought out by Freud.

The traffic is not in near beer, real beer, or home beer. It is in candy—amber colored, with a nice white frothy collar, that's sold in miniature glass steins. Practically all candy stores handle it and the children have taken it up as the latest rage to the amusement of all but a few of the grownups.

The W. C. T. U., however, is alarmed. The children, its members contend, will be pleased at the delicious candy, and in later years, when confronted with foamy steins of beer, will think it candy and drink. After the first sip it will be too late.

Mrs. F. M. Pratt, head of the organization, admitted the danger had been discovered and that the enemy would be met, but declined to reveal in advance the probable battle formation.

GAIN IN OXYGEN BATTLE TO SAVE LIFE OF WOMAN

Mrs. Gertrude K. Bemis, who was overcome by carbon monoxide gas on Saturday, was reported temporarily out of danger yesterday at the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where firemen have been administering oxygen to her for the last four days.

Fireman Dick Houren, son of the Winnetka fire chief, and Firemen Millard Roe and Robert Armstrong continued work with the inhalator. Yesterday afternon they had used 112 tanks of oxygen in the battle to save Mrs. Bemis' life. Dr. William G. Cummings said that he had noted a steady improvement in her condition.

Mrs. Bemis was overcome in a garage at the rear of 821 Foxdale avenue, Winnetka.

GRAND JURORS TO PROBE CASE OF McGEOGHAGEN

Secret Six Chief Defends Dismissal of Charges.

The dismissal on Monday of the bank robbery indictment against Daniel McGeoghegan, considered by the police to be one of the toughest gangsters in the city, will be one of the subjects taken up by Chief Justice Harry Fisher's special grand jury when it starts its work in the next few weeks, it was indicated at the Criminal court building yesterday. One of the tasks of the jury is to investigate the alleged alliance between crime and politics.

ALEXANDER JAMIE

Alexander Jamie, chief investigator of the Secret Six, an organization fostered by the Chamber of Commerce to fight crime, gave the clew upon which the special jury may act when he issued a statement virtually defending the action of Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler in calling for dismissal of the indictment. McGeohegan was indicted in connection with the robbery of the State Bank of Clearing in December, 1930.

"An Aid in Elections."

"It is a matter of common knowledge that McGeoghagen is an important cog in the election machinery of the southwest side and his active though not open support is greatly desired by certain politicians," said Mr. Jamie in the statement.

Jamie refused to amplify this part of his statement. Judge Fisher refused to comment on a case which may ultimately come under his jurisdiction, but one of the attaches of his court said that Jamie's statement regarding McGeoghagen's election day value might be one of the explanations of why Prosecutor Butler should nol pros a case in which a jury only two weeks before had stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

Jamie Criticizes Swanson.

"I feel that the action of State's Attorney Swanson in asking for an investigation of the actions of Walker Butler is entirely out of place," continued Jamie. "The bankers had the choice of staying in custody for the summer, with possible serious injury to the bank, or returning to their homes and facing the possibility of being kidnaped and intimidated or even killed by desperate gangsters. It was very probable that, due to the crowded court calendar, the retrial would not have taken place until fall."

Judge John Prystalski, who presided at the original trial of McGeoghagen, said that he was prepared to start the second trial within 10 days at the latest. The prosecutor's office knew, he said, that he was ready to try the case as soon as he finished with a conspiracy case on trial.

Cites Prompt Court Action.

"The courts acted promptly in this case," said Judge Prystalski. "McGeoghagen was on trial within 30 days after he was arrested. I was prepared to start the second trial as soon as the present case now before me is finished."

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, visited Judge Prystalski last evening. They refused to discuss the subject of their talk, but it was reported that the judge was asked to expunge the order of nol pros. It was reported, however, that the judge took the position that the assistant state's attorney knew all the facts in the case, including how the jury stood at the first trial, that the "case is in the prosecutor's lap," and that it is for him to act and not some outside agency.

M. A. Graettinger, executive vice president of the Illinois Bankers' association, said yesterday that in behalf of the association he is having an investigation made as to why Lambert Bere, vice president and cashier, and his nephew, John Camphouse, manager of the real estate department of the State Bank of Clearing, which lost $60,000 in the robbery, signed a statement, now contained in Prosecutor Butler's report, asking for the dismissal of the indictment.

2 U. S. DRYS WHO KILLED MAN, SHOT HIS WIFE FREED

Judge Instructs Jury to Acquit Them.

Dallas, Tex., June 21.—(AP)—Federal Prohibition Agents L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton were acquitted of murder today on an instructed verdict from Federal Judge William H. Atwell. They had been tried for the shooting of Marion McGlothlin at his country store the night of April 5.

On motion of District Attorney William McGraw, Judge Atwell also dismissed all other charges pending against the agents and Buddie Hoard, a dry informer, in connection with the shooting affray at the McGlothlin store.

Pleaded Self Defense.

The agents had been charged with murder for the slaying of McGlothlin and assault with intent to murder for the wounding of Mrs. McGlothlin. Hoard had been charged with murder.

The instructed verdict of acquittal came after the defense had introduced evidence to show the shooting had been in self defense while the agents were in performance of their duty.

Heaton said he fired the shot that wounded McGlothlin's wife, declaring she aimed a pistol at his head. Her pistol exploded at virtually the same time as did his, he said. The agent's bullet knocked the pistol from the woman's grasp, wounding her in the hand.

Mistaken for Robbers.

Smith told yesterday of shooting McGlothlin three times, asserting the storekeeper had fired at him with a shotgun and apparently was about to shoot again.

The shooting occurred when the agents attempted to arrest Hoard with whom they had arranged a meeting in the McGlothlin store. McGlothlin and his wife thought the officers were robbers.

YOUNG SLAYER STILL HOPES TO ESCAPE CHAIR

Russell McWilliams, 17 year old slayer of Rockford, has given up smoking cigarets—for his health, he said yesterday. He is in Joliet penitentiary, under sentence to be electrocuted early Friday morning.

McWilliams was sentenced to death for the murder of a Rockford motorman during an attempted holdup. The Illinois Supreme court granted him a rehearing on his plea of guilty, but he again received the death sentence at the second hearing a week ago.

He still expressed confidence that his lawyers would be able to save him from death. They are to appear today before the Supreme court at Springfield to ask a reprieve. McWilliams hopes for a commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment, he said yesterday.

HUTTON SPEEDY WORKER AT LOVE, NURSE TESTIFIES

Says Fast Week Swept Her Off Her Feet.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 21.—[Special.]—Miss Myrtle Joan St. Pierre today related her account of lurid lovemaking by Dave Hutton. She was on the witness stand in her suit for $200,000 which she claims Baritone Dave owes her for breach of promise to wed.

She asserts she was damaged that much in heart and pride when Dave suddenly dropped her and married the Rev. Aimee Semple McPherson in an aerial elopment to Yuma, Ariz., some months ago.

Mrs. McPherson-Hutton now is in a sanitarium suffering from what her physicians called a complete emotional collapse. She was told Miss St. Pierre's case in court was postponed to prevent her from worrying over it.

Three weeks after she met Mr. Hutton, Miss St. Pierre said, she cooked dinner for him in her apartment.

Falls from Witness Chair.

Even the recollection of David's ardor caused Miss St. Pierre to swoon.

She had reached a point in her testimony in which she quoted Hutton as saying: "Marriage is only a man made convention that can be ignored at times," and then described how the 250 pound singer, "seized me in his arms, crushed me to him, rained kisses on my eyes, my hair, my mouth and my neck."

She toppled forward in a faint, and her attorney, Lorrin Andrews, tried to catch her, but he, too, was pulled to the floor.

Superior Judge Lester Roth rapped to end the commotion among spectators, and cleared the court, while an attendant revived the 30 year old nurse.

A Chronology of Love.

This, she said, led up to the marriage proposal scene.

"He asked me when I would marry him," Miss St. Pierre told the jurors. "I told him I wanted to be sure first if I loved him. He told me he couldn't live without me. I was swept off my feet. I said, 'Yes, dear, I'll marry you.' We were in each other's arms for hours."

Miss St. Pierre gave a chronology of Hutton's wooing. They met on a Saturday night. That night came an attempted kiss in a mutual friend's kitchen after a few bourbon highballs, according to her story.

The next Monday was marked by Hutton's first "date," a three hour automobile ride which ended in a little oak bordered lovers' lane. "Then came Wednesday night," she said, "and he gathered me into his arms."

On Thursday, she added, he quit calling her by her first name and it was "sweetheart" while he sang love ballads in the parlor. By Friday night it was "darling," and by Saturday he slipped his arms around her from behind and whispered sweet things while she fixed the salad for their picnic lunch.

A Progressive Courtship.

"He kept following me from the pantry to the stove and from the stove to the sink, putting his arms around me, kissing me very tenderly, and repeating over and over again that he loved me," she related, staring fixedly at Hutton, and he stared back from his place at the counsel table with an occasional gulp.

After one auto ride, she said, Dave caught a cold, so she advised him that in her profession as nurse she should help treat him.

"And I took my noon hour off," she continued, "brought him a little baby blanket, cut a hole in it for his head, and tied it on him with little pink ribbons I had sewed on myself.

"I told him that I wanted to be very sure about our love, because I had been married twice before and each time it turned out disastrous. But I agreed to marry him, and he said the marriage would take place in March, after some oil wells he was interested in had begun to produce."

At the close of the testimony Hutton, resuming a debonair manner, said, "they're going to kill that poor girl if they don't drop this case. They ought to call it off before they compel her to go through what she must face when my witnesses appear."

DEATH FROM AUTO INJURIES SENDS 1932 TOLL TO 519

One automobile fatality yesterday increased the Cook county toll since Jan. 1 to 519. The victim:

Morris Dunn, 37 years old, 1215 Throop street, an iceman. Fatally hurt Monday when he was struck by an automobile at Roosevelt road and Lytle street. Harris Williamson, 608 South 5th avenue, Maywood, was the driver. Dunn died at the Mother Cabrini hospital.

A. L. Frick, 60 years old, 3539 South Halsted street, was seriously injured yesterday near Coldwater, Mich., when his automobile overturned after he drove into a ditch on U. S. highway No. 12 to avoid striking another machine.

PENSIONED FIRE CAPTAIN ILL IN ALIMONY CELL

Refuses to Pay Wife Who Ousted Him.

Capt. John Mullaney, 71 years old, served 50 years in the Chicago fire department and was honorably retired on a pension of $135 a month. Now he is in the county jail where he was sent on June 1 by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude for refusing to use his pension to pay $397 in alimony arrears to his second wife, Sarah, 2519 Pershing road.

The wife, the court records show, owns the house on Pershing road, where she rents rooms, and a second home at Sawyer, Mich. Mullaney was ill when he was taken to the jail and is now scarcely able to walk, according to Attorney William Scott Stewart. The jail physician is ready to testify that the confinement is injuring his health, Attorney Stewart said.

Married Five Years Ago.

Mullaney married his second wife five years ago. In 1930, following a squabble with his son, she ordered both the son and himself out of the house and instituted separate maintenance proceedings, Mullaney said.

"I haven't eaten square meal since I was put in jail," he said. "The food is good but I was ill when I was jailed. I don't see why I have to pay alimony when my wife ordered me out."

The suit was filed in August, 1930, court records show. On Oct. 24 of that year Judge Thomas A. Lynch entered a temporary alimony order of $10 a week. Later he sustained a demurrer to the bill. Mrs. Mullaney filed an amended bill and another temporary order of $10 a week was entered, this time by Judge Trude. The separate maintenance suit is still pending.

Plans Habeas Corpus Action.

Attorney Stewart said that he had sought interviews with Judge Trude, who, he said, has refused to reconsider the case. The attorney said he will seek the release of Mullaney on habeas corpus proceedings within the next few days.

Stewart pointed out that under the law a pension is inviolate from judgments and garnishments. He said he believed that alimony came under this section of the law and legally cannot be collected in this case.

BEAUTY DEFIES MONASTERY BAN; DRAWS CURSE

ATHENS, Greece, June 21.—(AP)—The daring of a Levantine beauty in entering a monastery on Mount Athos, where nothing female is allowed, not even a cow, doe, goat or hen was understood today to have brought a pronouncement of "public anathema" upon her head.

The beauty is Aliki Diplarakou, a Grecian girl who toured the United States last year as the Miss Europe of 1930. The Greek patriarch of Constantinople was reported to have pronounced the disapproval of the act.

The girl disguised herself as the ship's boy, and entered the monastery.

KILLS RECEIVER, THEN HIMSELF IN LOOP OFFICE

Ulysses G. Hinman Slain by Restaurant Owner.

Ulysses G. Hinman, 52 years old, head of the realty concern, U. G. Hinman & Associates, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon in his office at 192 North Clark street by David Edell, 46 years old, owner of a restaurant in the same building.

After firing two bullets into Hinman's head and another into his chest, Edell turned the pistol against his own head and committed suicide. Both men were dead when a physician arrived.

Hinman Receiver for Building.

Hinman was receiver for the building in which he had his office, as well as for a number of apartment hotels throughout Chicago. According to his associates he had been striving in conferences and in the courts to get Edell to pay past due rent on his quarters. Other tenants in the building said that Edell believed he was to be evicted at once and that his worries had apparently driven him insane.

It was shortly after 3 p. m. when Hinman entered his office, which is on the eighth floor. He was closely followed by Edell. In adjoining rooms were Samuel Goldberg, 6731 Jeffery avenue; R. J. Ziemann, 1057 North Sacramento boulevard, and F. D. Higgins. All are connected with the Hinman organization and Higgins is manager of the building.

Four Pistol Shots Heard.

There was the sound of low toned conversation between the receiver and tenant. Then Goldberg heard Edell say:

"You can't do that—you can't."

Then four pistol shots cracked. When the three men ran in Hinman was slumped over his desk and Edell, dying, lay on the floor nearby, with his pistol beside him.

Max L. Satt, attorney for the Hinman concern, said that Edell, whose restaurant was known as the D. & E. Sandwich shop, was in arrears with his rent when Hinman became receiver seven months ago. This debt, Satt asserted, was canceled, but Edell was again behind with his payments for May and June.

Tells Edell's Financial Troubles.

Edell's attorney, Louis Jaffe, said that his client's troubles had been aggravated during the last week when several checks he accepted from patrons were not valid because the banks on which they were drawn had closed. Under the stress, the attorney added, Edell's mind had become unbalanced.

On May 31, 1932, Hinman retired as vice president and general manager of the Real Estate Management corporation to establish his own business. Previous to his connection with the management corporation he had been for many years production manager for Lord & Thomas, advertising agency. He was also at one time production manager of the Standard Publishing corporation.

Former Leader of Labor.

In his earlier years Hinman had been a newspaper man at Springfield. He became widely known as manager of political campaigns. For a time he was organizer for printers' unions and served a term as president of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Surviving the slain receiver, who resided at 1511 Greenleaf avenue, are his widow and one son. Edell is survived by his widow and a son. Mrs. Edell, who was in the restaurant when the shooting occurred, collapsed when she heard of the double tragedy.

Army Planes to Visit City Today as War Show Prelude

A squadron of pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, Mich., is expected to arrive over the loop at noon today to give Chicagoans their first glimpse of the army air corps show that will be put on twice daily during the George Washington bicentennial military tournament. The tournament will begin on Friday in Soldiers' Field and last until July 4.

The pursuit planes that are to visit the city today will give two demonstrations of their spectacular air fighting tactics. The first one will occur on their arrival at noon and the second will be at 1:45 p. m. just before they start back to Selfridge Field. Between the two the flyers will land at Curtiss-Reynolds airport for lunch and refueling.

Another Visit Tomorrow.

Another squadron from the Michigan base will visit Chicago tomorrow, and a force of four squadrons will arrive over the city Friday morning to take part in the opening of the tournament that night.

Capt. Douglas Johnson and a detachment of thirty men arrived at the camp beside Soldiers' field yesterday from Scott Field, Ill., with two sausage captive balloons and one free baloon, which will be floated above the field tomorrow to remain in the air during the tournament.

Soldiers Rehearse Show.

Rehearsals of the 1,000 regular army soldiers who will perform in the eleven nights of the charity military pageant were held yesterday morning and last night. Large supplies of ammunition have been delivered at the field for the pageant, including 130,000 rounds for rifle and machine gun, 300 rounds for the 3 inch anti-aircraft gun and the battery of 75 mm. field artillery guns, 300 rounds for the 37 mm. infantry cannon, 6,000 pounds of smoke screening powder, and some $30,000 worth of fireworks. Additional ammunition will be required before the end of the tournament.

A series of jumping events in which horses will be entered by both the army and civilians are planned each night of the tournament with the finals to be held on the closing night, July 4.

DARROW DEFENDS HAWAII'S RIGHT TO RULE ITSELF

Clarence Darrow yesterday told the forum luncheon gathering of the City club that he regarded as "unfair and unjust" the movement to take away from the Hawaiian islands their right of local self-government because of the implications of the Massie case. He added that he believed "the people of this country have their second wind on the question and can no longer be stampeded by sensational papers and politicians."

"I never was a jingoist," he declared. "I can't see what we wanted in the first place in going out and picking up these islands in the Pacific."

INDIANA OWNERS SHUN PARLEY ON MINE PAY SCALE

Indiana coal mine operators appeared indifferent yesterday to the proposal of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America for joint conference of Illinois and Indiana miners and mine owners to settle the wage controversy which has kept coal mines of both states idle for 11 weeks.

In response to Lewis' invitation, John A. Templeton, president of the Indiana operators, pointed out that the Indiana subcommittee of miners and operators had agreed on a $4 basic scale, regarding which "only the formality of ratification remains."

"I am of the opinion," Mr. Templeton said, "that nothing can be brought about by a two state conference." He suggested that the Indiana operators would be interested in a conference to include Pennsylvania and Ohio as well as Indiana and Illinois."

Illinois operators meeting in Chicago voted to participate in the conference and named President W. J. Jenkins and George B. Harrington as delegates. From Springfield it was reported that the Illinois miners also accepted Lewis' invitation, as did the Indiana miners, meeting in Terre Haute.

On Thursday the Illinois scale committee is scheduled to report to Gov. Emmerson on his failure to agree.

Quebec Forest Fires Sweep Onward Out of Control

CHICOUTIMI, Que., June 21.—(AP)—Fanned by a brisk southwest wind, a forest fire advanced along a 40 mile front near the Peribonka river today. Fires in other parts of northern Quebec also advanced with little prospect that fire fighters would gain control for the present. The danger appeared greatest in the counties of Chicoutimi, Lake St. John, and Roberval, where valuable timber lands and many settlers' homes have been burned.

HITLER ANGERED BY UNIFORM BAN; 'LAYS DOWN LAW'

Demands Government to Lift Restrictions.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 21.—Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, today brandished a big club over Chancellor Franz von Papen's cabinet. He threatened to withdraw his support if the government fails to compel the German states to permit a full restoration to his "brown army" of its right to wear uniforms throughout Germany.

Tomorrow the premiers and chiefs of police of Germany's seventeen states will assemble here to confer with Wilhelm von Gayl, minister of the interior, on the interpretation of the Junker cabinet's orders to restore the brown army.

Hitler "Lays Down Law."

Hitler and two lieutenants, Hermann Goering and Joseph Goebbels, today called on Von Gayl and warned him that the government must enforce to the full the restoration of the Fascist brown army or be prepared to witness an "outburst of indignation from the millions who are following Hitler, after which the party leaders no longer can guarantee to keep them in control."

Von Gayl was so impressed by the threats of the Hitlerites that he refused to receive Centrist party leaders who had asked to call upon him to emphasize the danger threatening the country through the reappearance of the Fascist uniforms.

The Centrists contend that the famished masses, who see their pittances cut by the Junker cabinet, have become infuriated at the sight of the Hitlerites in brand new uniforms. This, it is claimed, has led to clashes in all centers with big working populations, especially in the Ruhr, Rhineland and Silesia. Three persons have been killed in the last forty-eight hours.

Reds Exploit Situation.

Communists are trying to exploit the fury of the hungry people. This makes it easier for the Hitlerites and the Nationalists to raise the cry that the "red terror is spreading." These two parties are seeking to compel the authorities to prohibit the communist party.

The Von Papen cabinet, fearing to displease Hitler, today seriously contemplated declaring martial law, which would compel the states, under provisions of the constitution, to turn their police administration over to the federal authorities.

The Hitlerites have increased their activities in Silesia, where many clashes took place in the last 24 hours. The latest Fascist war song echoed for the first time in the Jewish district of Gleiwitz. "Heads are rolling—Jews are howling" is the chorus of the song, which created such an uproar that it took police some time to restore peace.

WARNS VETERANS TO CONVERT U. S. TERM INSURANCE

A warning to world war veterans who are carrying five year convertible government insurance policies to investigate the date of expiration of that term and to convert the policy in time to avoid a physical examination, was issued last week by L. E. Slocum, acting manager of the Chicago contact office of the United States veterans' administration, at 230 South Wells street.

"Between June 15 and July 2, of 1927, a large volume of convertible, or term, insurance policies was issued to veterans," Mr. Slocum said. "On July 2 of that year it was said no more insurance would be issued by the government. The following December, however, the time limit was lifted indefinitely, and government insurance is still available to veterans.

"Most of the insurance taken out five years ago was of the convertible type. It can be converted at any time within the five years to any of the following types of insurance: ordinary life, 20-pay life, 30-pay life, 20-year endowment, 30-year endowment and endowment maturing at the age of 62.

"Unless veterans change their insurance and pay the first premium before the 5 year period elapses, to the day, they will have to take a physical examination to keep the insurance in force. It is possible to lower the amount of insurance carried due to economic conditions.

"The insurance is available in any of the forms stated, at $1,000 to $10,000, and all intervening values that are multiples of $500.

"The important thing is that veterans investigate the expiration date of their convertible policies and act on them now, because we have found that a large proportion of the veterans holding insurance cannot pass physical examinations."

BRITISH BUILD LARGEST ARMY FLYING BOAT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 21.—The biggest military flying boat in the world, constructed on such seaworthy lines that it may ultimately lead the way to a flying ship fit for trans-Atlantic service, is now ready for launching at the Short Brothers Seaplane works at Rochester, Kent.

The ship's loaded weight is thirty-three tons, more than twice that of the next largest flying boat, one at present in the service of the Royal Air force, for which the new plane was built. The hull is built of duralumin and is eighty-nine feet six inches long. The span of its biplane wings is 130 feet, and between them are set six 850 horse power Rolls-Royce buzzard engines in three tandom pairs.

The ship will carry a crew of ten and provide them with living quarters, enabling long voyages to distant parts of the empire, and should be capable of weathering anything but ocean gales.

Hotel St. Moritz-on-Park in N. Y. Sold for $4,000,000

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—The sale of the Hotel St. Moritz-on-the-Park, 6th avenue and 59th street, by the Bowery Savings bank, mortgagee, to the Engadine corporation for about $4,000,000 was announced today.

Flying Forecasts

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m., June 21, to noon, June 22 [C. S. T.]:

Chicago-Omaha—Scattered clouds; moderately westerly winds.

Route forecasts for twelve hours ending at noon:

Evansville-Atlanta—Partly overcast with risk of local thundershowers near Atlanta; gentle variable winds near Atlanta and gentle to moderate southwest and west near Evansville up to 1,000 feet and gentle northeast and east winds near Atlanta and moderate west and northwest near Evansville at 5,000 feet.

Cleveland-New York—Partly overcast, moderate to fresh winds near Cleveland and moderate southwest shifting to west near New York up to 1,000 feet, and fresh to strong west at 5,000 feet.

U. S. CAN'T ERASE WAR DEBTS, BECK TELLS BRITONS

Would Destroy Sanctity of Nations' Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—Members of the English Speaking union, accustomed to the gentle ambiguities of hands across the sea at luncheons and banquets staged for prominent Americans in London, sat in startled silence this noon while Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania poured out a stream of facts on America's attitude on war debts.

LORD READING.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

The marquess of Reading, whose "dulcet eloquence," as Beck noted during his speech, resulted in an American loan of 500 million dollars when Great Britain's wartime treasury was nearly empty, presided. Lord Reading, in his introduction, pleaded for Anglo-American understanding and a speedy disposal of the question of reparations and war debts, which, he declared, were inseparable.

Cancellation Destroys Credit.

Beck in his speech ignored the probabilities of the future and set about telling his English audience why American taxpayers cannot agree to shouldering the European war bill.

"The two sides of war debt cancellation are ponderable and imponderable," he said. "Cancellation might lead to economic regeneration. That disposes of the ponderable. But the imponderable is the sanctity of credit between nations. If the war debt slate is sponged that would be destroyed. In that event should another European war occur and America remain the money market of the world, credit would not be available from the United States again.

Debt Jump 24 Billions."

"When the war broke out the American public debt was less than two billion dollars. At the end it was 26 billion dollars. That is not all. Americans have spent literally thousands of millions of dollars helping a war torn Europe threatened by bolshevism. Wherever we were able to help we did.

"Then an unfortunate thing happened. One of your publicists referred to 'Uncle Shylock.' That sunk like iron in our very souls. America has been criticized for the high rate of interest she charged her European debtors. It is the same rate that the United States government pays on money borrowed from taxpayers.

"Not only have the Americans paid the bill for the allies. Unless German and Austrian reparations payments are resumed, and that is seemingly impossible, we will have paid the bill for the losers, too."

HARRIS, BANKER, FILES ANSWER TO MYSTERY SUIT

Norman W. Harris, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, filed a five line answer yesterday in the Circuit court to the mysterious $300,000 suit which was brought against him a month ago by James J. Clark of Mount Kisco, N. Y.

The answer, filed by Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, did little to clear up the mystery surrounding the suit. Clark stated that Harris entered a contract to pay him $500 a month for life, but stopped payments after three months. Harris merely denied that he had ever entered such a contract.

Clark, a former student at the University of Wisconsin, met Dorothy Funk, daughter of a Des Moines, Ia., educator, at the university and married her. They have two children. Shortly after the date of the alleged contract with Harris, Mrs. Clark got a divorce in Reno. Clark took the children to Europe, but has returned since.

FRANCE SPRINGS A SURPRISE DEBT PLAN ON HOOVER

of reparations. She builds her plan here for a day when America will understand that this effort demands a parallel effort from her.

France proposes, he said, a complete moratorium on reparations, save for payments in kind, "for one or two years or until prosperity returns." Three and four years also were mentioned.

Refuses to Wipe Out Claims.

France refuses, however, to surrender her claims once and for all, as the Germans demand.

"A complete wiping out of reparations would transfer the problem of distress from German to French shoulders," he said. "France could then no longer stand the strain of her debt payments to the United States."

He said broadly that when prosperity returns, the Young plan would not be reestablished in its entirety. His experts are working on figures which Germany would then be asked to pay, assuming that by that time the United States has not made a "parallel effort," he said. They would call for payments sufficient above all to meet America's debt demands.

Issue Forced By Gibson.

The French plan might never have come tonight in any form, it was admitted, if it had not been for Gibson's conversation with Herriot last night. It is hoped, of course, to be the basis of an eventual compromise here, and as such helps to clear the air at Lausanne, but fogs the atmosphere at Geneva. It is the first answer to Washington's energetic demand for a real cut in army strength.

Germain-Martin frankly admitted that Germany is totally incapable of paying anything at present. If she cannot pay, there are other methods of keeping her engagements for the time being, he said, referring to payments in kind. But in the future, he asked, who knows how much she might be able to pay?

The French prepared their plan hurriedly. When Herriot and MacDonald conferred late this afternoon there was much French policy but no plan. When he launched the plan to the French press, Germain-Martin termed it as a "very serious collective effort."

Germans Chilly to Scheme.

The Germans heard the French plan tonight in chilly silence. Tomorrow Chancellor Franz von Papen will reiterate his insistence that Germany can pay no more.

The chancellor will offer, it is understood, a new security agreement to the French in the form of a pact to be signed by the major powers which would guarantee that no political change will be made in Europe without consultation and unanimous agreement of the signatories.

Von Papen predicted that such a move would be made on Saturday. The French claim that a new pact would duplicate and weaken the Locarno, Kellogg, and other pacts.

The league late tonight rushed out notices convoking a public meeting of the general commission of the disarmament conference for tomorrow afternoon. It is understood the meeting was called at the request of the American delegation to hear Ambassador Gibson present the American "effective plan." The move came as a surprise, since twelve hours before it was officially announced that Henderson did not expect to convoke the general commission before July 1.

'KEEP HANDS OFF ORIENT,' JAPAN'S WARNING TO U. S.

New Ambassador Is Told of "Monroe Doctrine."

TOKIO, June 21.—(AP)—Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, former Japanese ambassador at Washington, served notice on the United States tonight not to attempt domination of Asia.

Such an attempt, he declared in a speech at a dinner in honor of Joseph C. Grew, the new American ambassador, would mean war.

The viscount said he considered armed conflict between the two nations extremely improbable, and Mr. Grew departed from the prepared text of his speech to assert that America's concern in the orient was the maintenance of peace and respect for her treaties.

"A grave situation would be created," the viscount said, "if the United States ever attempted to dominate the Asiatic continent and prevented Japan from her Pacific and natural expansion in this part of the world."

Tells Two War Possibilities.

He outlined two "extremely improbable" events which would cause war. These were: "First, if Japan were foolish enough to attempt to unduly interfere in the western hemisphere—when war would be inevitable; second, if America attempted to dominate Asia.

"But I am convinced," he went on, "that America's concern in the orient is only the maintenance of peace in respect to her treaties. Therefore, the American intervention alluded to above is as highly improbable as Japanese interference in the western hemisphere."

"The vast majority of intelligent Americans and Japanese," M. Ishii concluded, "know perfectly well the boundaries of their respective spheres of activity beyond which common sense forbids seeking for futile and vain purposes. President Roosevelt denounced as fantastic any American attempt to interfere [with Japanese expansion in Corea and Manchuria]."

U. S. Interested in Peace.

Mr. Grew's address was entirely friendly in tone, but insisted that American interest was in a durable peace. He said:

"The United States is interested in a peace not confined to the so-called intellectual classes, but one that extends from the highest officials to the lowest laborer.

"It [peace] is universal and fundamental, and while the memory of the dark days of 1914-1918 may gradually become less acute, the experiences those years have instilled into the people of the United States will serve to solidify both in spirit and fact the structure of international peace, which neither time nor circumstance can ever change.

"It would be foolish to assert that no important problems beset us. We must recognize that they exist and do our best to solve them. Many complicated problems with which we are faced today urgently need settlement with the next few months.

Ignores Monroe Doctrine.

"Few, if any, problems today concern the people of the United States as a whole more deeply than the problems of the orient. This is not limited to Washington, New York, or California—it is universal."

Mr. Grew did not refer in his speech to M. Ishii's Asiatic Monroe doctrine, but departed briefly from his prepared text to concur with the former ambassador's view that America's concern in the orient was the maintenance of peace in respect to her treaties.

He also approved M. Ishii's statement of Japanese policy as follows: "The maintenance of the open door and equal opportunity in China, and the absence of any territorial ambition on the part of any country."

Court Dismisses Capone's Appeal in Contempt Case

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday dismissed without a ruling Al Capone's appeal from a six months' jail sentence for contempt of court. The appeal from the contempt sentence, imposed because the gang leader failed to heed a federal grand jury summons, had no actual significance as Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson ruled the sentence could be served concurrently with the 10 year sentence for income tax evasion.

Realty Man Convicted of Defrauding Woman in Deal

Andrew A. Scowley, 48 years old, a real estate man, was found guilty yesterday by a jury in Judge George Fred Rush's court of having induced Mrs. Amy H. Priestly of Kansas City, Mo., to deed him a $65,000 piece of property in return for worthless properties and securities. He faces a sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $2,000. Motion for a new trial will be head July 8.

TELLS OF SPYING ON HUSBAND FROM A LINEN CLOSET

Mrs. Harriet Conran told Circuit Judge Craig Hood yesterday of her two hour vigil with a woman detective in a cramped linen closet waiting for Walter A. Conran, 2121 Dayton street, a real estate operator, to emerge from the room of a woman. Mrs. Conran is suing for separate maintenance, charging desertion and adultery.

She testified that before their separation in March, 1931, Conran admitted to her that he had committed adultery with Mrs. Bessie Giles in the Park Lane hotel, 2842 Sheridan road. He and Mrs. Giles met her and promised not to see each other again, she said.

In March of this year, she charged, she and the detective, Mrs. Josephine A. Lawrence, went to the apartment building at 40 East Oak street and hid in a linen closet. They saw Conran enter Mrs. Giles' room.

Mrs. Lawrence told how she rented an apartment in the building a few days later, and described other visits of Conran. He is contesting the action and presented witnesses who said that he was in their company on several of the occasions when it was charged he was visiting Mrs. Giles. Mrs. Conran said he has an income of $60,000 a year from apartment buildings which he owns, but Fred Carpenter, a vice president of the First National bank, testified for the defense that Conran's financial affairs are in "bad shape."

Winnetka's Budget Cut $22,962 Below Last Year's

The Winnetka village board last night cut its 1932 budget $22,962 under its appropriation of last year. The ordinance for this year appropriates $157,710. No radical changes will result from the retrenchment program, the savings being effected by a general paring.

Delays Chicago Trip

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor, was operated on today for abdominal tumor at the Polyclinic hospital. Dr. William Schroeder, commissioner of the sanitation department and the mayor's personal physician, who performed the operation, declared afterward that "her condition was excellent and the operation highly successful."

Mrs. Walker was on the operating table for an hour and a half. Leaving her room for the operating table she was in excellent spirits and joked with the doctors and attendants. The only member of her family at the hospital was Dr. William Walker, the mayor's brother, who witnessed the operation. The mayor telephoned several times while his wife was under the anesthetic.

Mrs. Walker's chief concern as she was trundled through the corridors to the operating room was that her radio set be put in order so she could listen in on the Sharkey-Schmeling fight tonight.

The mayor, who was to have left for Chicago tomorrow, said he would postpone his departure for a day or two.

THREATENS GOLF PLAYER WITH A GUN; ARRESTED

Christian P. Krueger, president of the Navajo Country club, 127th street and Ridgeland avenue, sliced his drive off the third tee and the ball sailed over the fence which guards the farm of Otto Nickel. Mr. Krueger, who is also president of the First National bank of Blue Island, climbed the fence to retrieve the ball. He was greeted by Nickel, who carried a shotgun.

"Get out of here or I'll fill you full of lead," the farmer threatened, according to Krueger. The bank president deserted the golf ball and climbed back over the fence. Yesterday Nickel was arrested on a warrant charging assault with intent to murder. He was released in bond and will be arraigned today before Justice of the Peace Ludwig Staffel of Blue Island. Mr. Krueger said that the ball fell on property of the golf club, as the fence is not the dividing line between the course and the farm.

CHILE DEGREES RULE BY GUN TO END TERRORISM

Army Is Ordered to Fire on All Malcontents.

BY JOHN LIVINGSTONE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 21.—The Santiago garrison commander today published a drastic set of martial law regulations intended to end the violence and unrest which has resulted in four revolts this month. The decree prohibits citizens carrying firearms, directs the military to fire on persons disobeying orders and prescribes a list of infractions for which the breaker may be summarily court martialed and shot.

Soldiers were instructed to fire on any one attacking persons, objects, vehicles, or private property. Agitators guilty of plundering, rebellion, or resisting authorities are to be shot.

Persons inciting disobedience to the military, those hampering free trade and the distribution of meat, milk, and bread or tampering with light and water, are subject to the same penalty. A special military tribunal was constituted to deal with such cases as in warfare.

Davila Is Stricken.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 21.—(AP)—Carlos G. Davila, former ambassador to Washington, and now president of the ruling socialist junta, was taken ill tonight with a severe attack of grippe in the midst of a critical political situation involving the safety of American lives and property.

Although disorders in which five persons were reported slain and many injured apparently had subsided, the socialist junta outlawed communistic agitation by decree, with exile, imprisonment or fines as the punishment for attempts to foment trouble.

[Other dispatches said 20 to 35 had been killed in the rioting.]

Decree Aimed at Russia.

The anti-communist decree declares all who make trouble for the government to be enemies of the republic. It prohibits relations "with any persons or foreign organizations from whom might be received instructions or aid," indicating that it meant soviet Russia, without naming that country.

Meanwhile the junta today responded to a request from William S. Culbertson, the American ambassador, for protection of American lives and property with a promise of immediate protective measures.

The ambassador had advised the junta that American lives might be endangered by anti-foreign reaction, especially in the Rancagua copper area, fifty miles from the capital. The $100,000,000 Braden mines, subsidiaries of the Guggenheim interests, are located there.

OPEN MISSOURI RIVER TO NAVIGATION AFTER 50 YEARS OF DISUSE

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—(AP)—After more than a half century of disuse the Missouri river was formally dedicated late today as a navigable stream from St. Louis to Kansas City when Secretary of War Pat Hurley and Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, head of the Inland Waterways corporation, left for a cruise between the two cities aboard the steamer Mark Twain.

The steamer Gen. Ashburn and three barges also left on the cruise. Commercial operation of barges, however, will not start until later this year when army engineers have certified a constant six foot channel.

SLOT MACHINE RAID IS JUST A JOKE TO SCULLY

Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas yesterday dismissed Hugh Scully, 38 years old, 6040 Blackstone avenue, who was charged with owning three slot machines seized on Monday night in a raid on the quarters of the Woodlawn post of the American Legion at 1208 East 63d street. Scully said he did not own the machines. He said he was being initiated into membership in the post and thought the raid and arrest part of the initiation.

Judge Jonas ordered the slot machines destroyed. Members of the Legion post said they did not know who owned the machines, which had been in the building for a year. The profits had been devoted to charity, they said.

MEDAL IS GIVEN TO MRS. PUTNAM BY PRESIDENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, first woman to complete a solo flight across the Atlantic, tonight became the first woman to receive the National Geographic society's gold medal of honor, the nation's highest award for geographic attainment.

President Hoover presented the medal in the presence of a distinguished gathering of high government officials, diplomats, members of congress and noted explorers at a colorful reception in the famous aviatrix in Constitution hall.

Only fourteen other persons have received the coveted medal, and Mrs. Putnam's name was inscribed on the Geographic society's roll of honor beside the names of such pioneers as Robert E. Peary, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Charles A. Lindbergh, Roald Amundsen, Sir Ernest Shackleton, Gen. Gosthals, Dr. Hugo Eckener and Rey Chapman Andrews.

Blonde, tall and slim, Mrs. Putnam replied to President Hoover's presentation address by giving a hurried description of her flight. It was obvious that she was striving to belittle her achievement—and succeeded poorly.

Mrs. Putnam blushed deeply when President Hoover told the select audience that crowded Constitution hall that she deserved to be placed in spirit "with the great pioneering women to whom every generation of Americans has looked up to with admiration."

U. S. Indicts Joe Montana as Violator of Dry Law

Joe Montana, who was tried and acquitted of the murder of a policeman and to whom an arrest for a liquor violation is an old story, yesterday was indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the prohibition law. Indicted with him was Salvatore Corfeo. The two are charged with the possession of wine and whisky in their restaurant at 935 Harrison street. Montana, when arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker, said he had sold the restaurant to Corfeo and had subsequently become a cook in the same establishment.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE TEACHERS' PLIGHT.

On July 1 the board of education will owe nearly 20 million dollars to the teachers of Chicago. The average amount due the 14,000 teachers is close to $1,500. The failure of the board to pay is the cause of great suffering and privation which has been aggravated in countless instances by the failure of banks and the collapse of investments. Many of the teachers find themselves today without money and without the prospect of being paid what is due them. Under the circumstances the conduct of the teachers has been exemplary. They have carried on their work faithfully and conscientiously at a time when their personal worries might have been expected to monopolize their thought.

An attempt is now being made to obtain a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, secured by board of education warrants, with which the salaries can be paid. If successful, this effort will provide the money to meet arrears and perhaps even to carry on salary payments through much of the remainder of the calendar year; but the teachers would be making a great and costly mistake if they assumed that a reconstruction loan will end their difficulties.

Far from it. The teachers owe their present plight in large part to a wholly incompetent and untrustworthy school board, the majority of whose members were appointed for political purposes and have refused to resign because they wish to continue to function in the interest of their political faction. That faction laid the foundation for the present difficulties of the teachers. Thanks to its efforts, the costs of operating the Chicago schools are fantastically high. The money which has been spent and is being spent needlessly to maintain the schools is money taken from the teachers.

Thanks, again, to the same school board majority, no effort worthy of the name has been made to reduce the scope of school activities to conform to the expectable income for the support of the schools. By restricting educational activities it might have been possible to make what money the board has at its disposal go farther. Because the board was incompetent to face this problem and afraid of the political consequences which might flow from retrenchment the situation was allowed to drift into its present almost hopeless position.

The board prepared a budget for 1932 before the 1930 taxes had gone into collection. It was apparent when the budget was under discussion that income from the 1930 taxes would fall far short of the amount which was levied. Every student of Chicago's public finances whose opinion was worth anything forecast the result with greater or less accuracy. Mr. Oscar Hewitt's forecasts in THE TRIBUNE were notably close to the mark. They should have warned the board against the absurdity of its scheme of appropriation. If they did not it was because the present board didn't want to be bothered with figures.

The tax collections have amounted to slightly less than half of the levies. Because of that fact the board has been unable to pay off its loans in full and because it has been unable to pay off its loans it has been unable to borrow against future tax collections. The result was inevitable. A number of teachers have transferred their indignation from the school board which merits it to agencies which forewarned the community of the results which must be expected if the reckless budget making plans were persisted in.

No doubt these teachers will find additional cause for annoyance in the further statement that until the present majority of the board is out of the way and until an honest effort to reduce school expenses to conform to income is made, no considerable improvement in school finances is possible. A loan from the reconstruction corporation can provide temporary relief and nothing more. For fundamental improvement, fundamental changes in the board of education personnel and policies must be introduced.

A TROPHY EXCHANGE.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York has been requested to have search made in Albany for a British flag taken from the Canadian Sault Ste. Marie by Americans in the war of 1812. A ceremony is to be held in the Canadian Soo July 24 and it is desired to raise this old flag again if it can be found. An outfit of United States troops will go into Canada for the occasion. If the old flag cannot be found the Michigan Soo will provide a duplicate of it, but sentiment would be better pleased with the original.

A hard boiled generation seizes trophies and a softer one returns them. American visitors in Quebec may see the old general hospital where Arnold quartered his troops before he was shot in the leg in the assault on the walls of the lower town, the spot under Cape Diamond where Montgomery and his aids fell in the snow and the tablet which marks their temporary grave on the way up to the citadel. They also are shown within the citadel a small cannon, one of the several little pieces which were with the musket men at Bunker hill. (The comeback is: You've got the cannon; we have the hill.)

Reciprocity is often fair. If New York is to find a British flag to return to Michigan for presentation to Ontario, Massachusetts might reasonably ask Quebec to do the return honors for Ontario and give Boston back its gun. The jurisdictions are a bit mixed, but any one can see what is meant. Later Toronto and Washington, D. C., may exchange apologies for incendiary experiences.

CHICAGO ASKS FOR A LOAN.

Chicagoans have taken a plea for a loan to Washington. The petitioners represent the responsible business and political life of the city, including Fred Sargent of the North Western, D. F. Kelly, and Mayor Cermak. They are citizens who have been doing their best to stop local waste and extravagance, as well as to raise money for public and private needs. They did not begin by asking for outside help. They insisted upon reduced budgets, and they have tried to bring the wasters to terms. They have worked upon local finances, checked prodigality, sought to preserve and restore credit and to relieve distress. They have been sent to Washington by the exhaustion of local efforts.

None of them likes the errand. It is forced upon them. To the past extravagances of local government, unchecked by the admonitions of vanishing revenue and uncollectable taxes, have been added the extortions of the federal government in its career of ungovernable bureaucracy. Federal subsidies thrown to the winds by boards, commissions and departments have been the last drain upon the resources of states and communities which have been able to take care of themselves. The competent states have been exhausted to satisfy the demands of subsidy states and to carry out federal enterprises regional in their benefits and punitive in their burdens upon the once self-supporting localities.

The product of the farm board, Boulder dam, and their like in the federal expenditures is the request of Chicago for federal aid to tide it over its troubles and take care of its necessities. The petitioners ask a loan—not a gift. The policy of federal government has deprived the states of cash and credit and has concentrated the resources of the country in Washington. There is nowhere else to go.

BORAH.

Mr. Borah, a one man party from a one man state, makes page one when he says in the senate that he will not support Mr. Hoover and cannot stomach the Republican platform. If any one tries to account for the importance of Mr. Borah's remarks he will be puzzled. The Idaho senator seldom agrees with any one else and sometimes not with himself. He would resent a following and think that somehow it reflected upon him. His gifts of persuasion are remarkable, but the effects do not stick. In debate he is hard to answer, but he fascinates rather than convinces. He will give the wrong reason for being on the right side.

With some of his qualities he might be expected to be an old time constitutionalist, eloquent for the rights of man, on guard against the expansion of government, hard to convince when the individual wished to relax his own responsibilities and when authority tried to take over more authority. Such is not the case and consequently Borah never will be Borah, just as Emerson said that Webster never would be able to do Webster.

When he criticises the Republican party with which he retains a nominal connection it is seldom because it has done a wrong to its own old principles, but because it has not done enough wrong to them. It is so in the present instance. Mr. Borah does not take his hat and retire to his Idaho crags because the party stultifies itself, but because the stultification is not greater. He is by nature the hermit statesman of a scenery state. It returns him by habit. He provides it with government cakes.

If Borah had been forced to adjust himself to the competition and complications of a great state reason might have been the coefficient of his eloquence. Idaho gives him a life tenure. Superficially he's too much for his senate associates. So he goes alone, nowhere. His repudiation of his party means simply that there is one vote which may be counted now against its ticket.

Editorials of the Day

CHICAGO'S DAY OF RECKONING.

[St. Paul Dispatch.]

The school teachers of Chicago have had only five months' pay for their last eighteen months' work. Now they face a cashless summer. Other employés of the city have not been paid for two and a half months. The teachers have just made an angry demonstration. They demand that some one pay them—the city of Chicago, the bankers, the federal government—any one who may have the money. Their condition is pitiable and their plight a disgrace to a great city like Chicago.

This situation has been brought about by the waste, extravagance, graft, and incompetence which have run through the municipal government. Tax collections are tied up by involved legal battles over inequitable assessments. Heroic measures have been taken by volunteer citizens' committees to help the city out. Money has been advanced until the credit of the city is strained. So the city employés go for months without pay.

Chicago's city government is not unique. It is only a particularly bad example. Everywhere the idea has arisen among tax spenders and those who hope for benefits and favor that the financial resources of a government are inexhaustible. When prices and business are going down it is still thought reasonable and practical that taxes should go up. The income of every one who supports government is cut, but employés of the government believe that the pocket out of which they are paid can be filled just the same as ever. And after this impossible process has gone on for a certain length of time city governments and city employés suddenly find themselves in a predicament like that in Chicago, protests fill the air, and every one is blamed except those who are the cause of it all.

LEISURELY JUSTICE.

[New York Evening Post.]

The complications which may arise from protracted litigation are illustrated in an opinion quoted in part in the legal magazine, West Publishing company's Docket, and reading as follows:

> In its several phases this is the third time this litigation has been before us for review on appeal. . . . The original controversy arose out of an undivided half interest in a calf, the value of which interest, at the institution of the litigation, was stated by plaintiff in her replevin affidavit to be $7.50. By reason of the protracted litigation the record discloses that now the calf has grown to maturity and in turn has had a calf, and it is the alleged unlawful sale by the constable of the half interest in the now cow and calf that we have an appeal before us.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

REPORTS SHOW that vegetable gardens are increasing all over the country, as more and more people are turning to raising their own fresh truck for the table, and that radishes and lettuce continue to be favorites. We should also imagine that sweet corn, potatoes, and onions have their share of attention, but, oh, we think with horror that here and there among the amateur gardeners there may be a furtive slinking figure who slips out into his garden at the dead of night and plants something which he is ashamed to have his neighbors know. But he can't fool us. No, sir! We know what he's doing. He's planting spinach, that's what, spinach! Tsk, tsk, tsk!

MR. BORAH, brushing back his leonine locks, arose with stately dignity and walked out on the Republican party because, as he dramatically declared, it was too wet. And now the G. O. P. is figuring madly to determine if the senator's action was a knock or a boost.

GOV. ROOSEVELT has adopted as his campaign colors white and baby blue. We can well guess what Al Smith would answer if some newspaper reporter ever mustered up enough courage to ask him what his colors would be in the coming battle. The answer would probably be: "Baloney! Baloney and likewise the hooey!" Now, just what shades are baloney and hooey?

THE RAGGED, THE HOMELESS.

The homeless, the vagrants,
Who sleep beneath stars,
The dusty, the ragged,
You pass in your cars;
The trampers, the hungry,
With wind-ruffled hair,
Who walk ever onward,
Whose goal is nowhere—
At times gaze bewildered
Through space at the skies,
As if veils were lifting
From their tired eyes.

And though it seems silly,
I like to believe,
Those homeless, those vagrants,
At times might perceive,
Through lowered lashes,
A face in the sun,
From which a voice whispers:
"Are you tired, my son?"

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

AND EVEN SPEAKER JACK GARNER came out yesterday with the declaration that he had never believed the 18th amendment sound or workable and that it should be repealed. Gosh! that leaves only Mr. Borah, Bishop Cannon, and Dr. Clarence True Wilson as being about all the drys left that we can think of offhand. But there must be more than that; oh, there certainly must be more. Oh, of course, there are more drys than that. Scott McBride. Doggone, we forgot about Scott! That makes four. But tut, tut, there should be even more than that, though for the life of us we can't think of their names.

WOMEN'S PLACE IS IN THA HOME.

Dick: Last Wednesday afternoon the boss gets called out of town. Before I leaves tha office I notice he's got 2 tickets on his desk for tha convention which is good for tha evening session. I says to myself it wood be a shame to let them go to waste so I calls up tha B. an C. an we goes. Of all tha damfool questions a women kin ask, tha Mama wins the platinum garbage-can. When tha Ohio vote comes in she wants to know how 42 7-9 people can vote. I simply tell her that one of tha delegates got his legs shot off in tha war and he is tha 7-9 guy, then she wants to know why the Alaska delegates aint eskimos. I was juss waitin fer her to ask if tha Utah birds was Mormons, then I'da socked her. Fer about 3 minutes she shuts up an I was startin to enjoy myself when a speaker by tha name of Nelson is introduced an a snuff chewing swede in back of me lets out a hell of a whistle an it took me a ½ hr. before I cood quit sneezing. Can ya imagine gettin a swell thrill out of Bingham's talk an right in tha middle of it tha B. and C. asks if Mabel Willebrand is a dry and is she married, if she is a dry and has a husband he's evidently too lazy to shoot her. The only smart crack tha Mama pulls is that from tha speeches it looks like Lincoln is gonna run fer President an Washington fer Vice Pres. While tha votes was bein counted to see if its "beer near" or "near beer" I gotta quit countin on account tha Mama insists I grab 5 baloons fer our kids. Next to me sits a dame whose husband was so damn mad he cood of choked her. Right in tha middle of some good speeching, she asks him if it will be O. K. to have pot-roast next Sunday. When she asks tha guy to go out and get her some asperin he's just about nuts an I gotta big kick outa his tellin her he'll go out for it after Alfalfa Bill Murray is nominated. From now on my slogan is "Women's place is in the home" an so help me if any of 'em aint got one I'll gladly help to dig them one. All in all, I had a swell rotten time. Yesterday tha boss come back to town an I asks him if it was alright to use the tickets an he says "Sure, do you want to pay me tha 8 bucks now or shood I take it out next Saturday." What I called that cheap egg was aplenty.

TAKING IODINE.

THE veterinary medical profession advocates periodic giving of a very small dose of iodine to all kinds of domestic animals in those parts of the country in which the soil and water are deficient in iodine. Opinion as to which sections have soil that is deficient in iodine may be based on several kinds of information. One is the prevalence of goiter, myxedema, and cretinism among men and domestic animals. Based on this information, we have known for more than a quarter of a century that certain regions were goiter belts.

Systematic examination of drafted men during the world war made it possible to say more certainly just what were the goiter belts. Nearly twenty years ago the authorities, as well as research students, began examining water supplies to discover how much iodine they contained. Almost any official laboratory can tell their clients whether the local water supply contains enough iodine. Something like five years ago the systematic examination of field, garden, and orchard products was begun in certain sections. A few state laboratories can now tell their people whether locally grown vegetables and fruits are rich or poor in iodine.

The original source of this metal is the fire-made rocks. As these are worn down by the weather the iodine finds its way into the soil. It is taken up by pasture grasses and other plant life. Some of it goes into solution and finds its way into wells, streams, lakes, and oceans. Since the sea is the end of the chain, seaweed and seafish are rather rich in the element.

In the goiter belt farmers complain that some of their cows, hogs, sheep, dogs, and horses have "big neck," or goiter. Every now and then a farmer complains of hairlessness among his young stock. Veterinary research has shown that goiter and hairlessness in live stock is caused by iodine hunger. Furthermore, this research has shown that if brood animals are given food poor in iodine they are uncertain breeders, their young are apt to be weaklings, and to die easily, they grow poorly, some are hairless, and many have goiter. They find that giving brood animals some extra iodine will cause them to breed better, to have larger broods, and to beget young that are more vigorous, have glistening full coats and freedom from goiter. If it was given to milk cows they gave more milk and of better quality.

The preparation usually given was iodide of potash. One method is to dissolve 1 ounce of iodide of potash in one gallon of water, and then to mix one teaspoon or more of this solution in the feed, or to put it in drinking water or salt. A cow should have about one-half a grain of the salt, or about 1 teaspoon of the solution.

Another method consists in putting 1 five grain tablet of the salt in the water trough once a week. Another is to dissolve two-thirds of an ounce of the salt in one thousand pounds of food concentrate. This is given especially to animals soon to bear young. One-half a grain a week is enough for a ewe. It is generally agreed that giving too much is more harmful than giving too little.

The experience of stockmen indicates that persons who live in the goiter belt, or where the water and home grown foods are poor in iodine, will do well to put a little of this element in their food or drink. Those who are most apt to need it are those with myxedema, cretinism, and some other thyroid troubles; pregnant women, especially those who have borne sickly, feeble babies; rapidly growing children; possibly young persons whose hair is disposed to drop out and, especially, the totally bald young persons.

The dose taken should not exceed ½ grain of iodide of potash a week. It can be eaten in salt, or dissolved in water and put in water or milk, or on salads and other foods.

EDEMA.

M. P. R. writes: Will you tell about edema, its cause and cure? I was put to bed in February with weakened heart and soon edema began to trouble. I am 62 years old and never had a touch of it before. We got rid of it for a short while, but it has reappeared and seems very persistent now.

REPLY.

In your case edema is the result of heart disease with weakened compensation. Your heart muscle is unequal to the job of keeping your blood circulation on schedule. Fluid accumulates in your tissues because of the slow return current in your veins. Your doctor put you to bed hoping that that would speed up your vein circulation and make the work of your heart muscle easier. He can give you drugs that will empty the excess water from your tissues, but to give you prolonged relief he must build up your heart muscle.

"STOP" SIGN.

Chicago, June 15.—[Friend of the People.]—Why is there a stop sign at 37th and Paulina streets when Paulina runs only from 34th to 39th street and is traveled very little? Is this because a former alderman lives on the corner?

C. G. D.

Regarding complaint as to why Paulina street is a "stop" street wish to state that this street was made a "stop" street in September, 1929, under the authority of a resolution of the city council introduced by Ald. B. J. Zintak. The sign was erected by the bureau of streets and the police department had nothing to do with the matter.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

Chicago, June 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The building on which I have some first mortgage bonds has been foreclosed. The bank has asked that the bonds be deposited with them. 1. Shall I turn in the bonds? 2. What do I lose if I don't? R. H.

1. The decision on such questions depends upon the value of the pledged assets, the financial responsibility of the maker whose name is signed to the bonds, the reputation of the members of the committee and the proposal which the committee makes. We are not in a position to investigate the facts for you. If you are skeptical as to the offered plan, we would suggest that you join with other bondholders in employing an attorney to investigate the facts and determine on a course of action.

2. You will share in the proceeds of the foreclosure sale, but not in possible subsequent profits.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is H. G. Wells, professor of pathology.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Of what value is reason?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

By what means does the human body protect itself from the bacteria that cause disease?

ANSWER:

First by preventing their entrance into the interior of the body by virtue of a protective layer of cells on both the exterior and interior of the body, aided by the outflow of secretions from the various openings of the body and the acidity of the gastric juice. Second, if bacteria pass these barriers and penetrate the tissues they are surrounded by special cells from the blood which often destroy them, clots from the blood fluid interfere with their spread, special cells of the tissues surround and destroy them, and protective substances are formed that neutralize the poisons and often kill the bacteria as well. If the bacteria pass even these defenses and enter the blood and lymph there is a secondary line of defense widely spread throughout the body in the form of special cells with great capacity to engulf and destroy the bacteria, and perhaps to secrete into the blood protective substances that destroy the invading bacteria and their poisons.

EL PASO, Tex.—American and Carranza troops fought a bloody battle today only a few hours after President Wilson's 6,000 word rebuke to Gen. Carranza had gone forward to Mexico City. Which side had the better of the battle is not known. The engagement took place on the Santa Domingo ranch near the Mexican town of Carrizal, nine miles southwest of Villa Ahumada, the Mexican field headquarters in northern Chihuahua. Nearly a score of Gen. Pershing's men are said to have been killed and the Mexicans are said to have lost much more heavily. Mexican army officials in Juares assert forty Americans were killed, forty-five wounded and seventeen captured. Gen. Francisco Gonzales issued a statement placing the blame on the American commander and charged that the American troops fired first on the Mexicans. American army officers asserted absolute disbelief in Gonzales' assertions. Gen. Trevino's recent warning to Gen. Pershing not to send his troops east, south, or west of their positions was recalled by the American officers, who claim that Pershing's cavalry was led into an ambush.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—War with Mexico seems almost inevitable. Gen. Funston transmitted to the war department a report from Gen. Bell concerning the clash at Carrizal. The American force, said to be a detachment of the Tenth cavalry, is reported to have been enticed into a trap by a Mexican flag of truce and then fired upon with machine guns from an ambush.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Two thousand Illinois troops at Camp Lincoln tonight are wild with excitement and shouting to avenge "Americans killed; seventeen prisoners" as the bulletin was flashed to them by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. "It means business," said Gov. Dunne, and Gen. Dickson said, "Undoubtedly the real crisis has arrived." The First cavalry and battery C, the Crœsus artillery, have pitched their canvas war city at Camp Lincoln. Col. Foreman's command reached the camp this afternoon.

CHICAGO.—Getting quickly down to a service basis Col. Joseph B. Sanborn of the First infantry decided not to delay training until his regiment is in camp at Springfield. Drills will be held every morning and afternoon in Grant park until the troops are ordered to entrain.

ABOUT THE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

Chicago, June 20.—The behavior of the Illinois commerce commission toward the counsel for and the president of the Utility Consumers and Investors league when the latter asked the commission to reconsider its approval of the proposed $72,000,000 bond issue of the three Insull operating companies was probably the most extraordinary in the history of utility regulation in this or any other state. In addition to the undersigned the league includes on its board of directors such persons as Dr. Louis L. Mann, Karl Eitel, Senator Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton, Mayor Andrews of Kewanee (the president of the Illinois Municipal league), Carl Vrooman, formerly assistant secretary of agriculture in the administration of Woodrow Wilson, and a number of others. On its advisory committee are Charles E. Merriam, Clarence Darrow, L. J. Quasey of the Illinois Agricultural association; Morris L. Cooke, a member of the New York Power Authority, and the distinguished authority on holding companies, James C. Bonbright.

The Utility Consumers and Investors league had asked that this approval be reconsidered (1) because of the fact that nearly $20,000,000 of the bonds were to be used to take over certain assets from their investment subsidiaries which had originally been bought with the money of the parent companies; (2) because some additional items should have been charged to operating expenses rather than to capital, and (3) because the rate of interest and the possible commission to the bankers seemed excessive. The bonds, for example, were authorized to net the companies as low as 85, and if they are sold at par this would give the banks approximately $10,000,000. The rate of interest paid by the operating companies on this basis would be approximately 6¼ per cent for two of the companies and approximately 7.5 per cent for the other.

In view of the losses which the holders of stock in the Insull companies have suffered from the apparent milking of the operating companies by the investment subsidiaries the action of the Utility Consumers and Investors league was in the public interest and justified. For clearly the more bonds which are issued the smaller is the share which the unfortunate stockholder will receive. The fact that according to the formal record the application to issue the bonds was granted by the commission within twenty-four hours from when it was filed gave added point to the league's request that the whole matter be reconsidered by the commission in order to protect the public interest.

Instead of giving this request decent consideration the commission refused even to permit the petition to be filed, and for two sessions indulged in vituperation and innuendoes against Prof. Douglas and Attorneys Booth and Swidler. The chairman of the commission, Mr. Gilbert, even sank so low as to refer to Mr. Swidler as Mr. Swindler. The commission tried to insinuate that Prof. Douglas was unpatriotic because, among other affiliations, he happens to be a Quaker, which is the same religious faith to which President Hoover belongs, and because he is a member of the Proportional Representation league and other bodies. None of these questions had the slightest bearing on the matter under dispute, and Prof. Douglas properly ignored them and sought to fasten attention upon the real issues at stake. It is proper, however, to state at this time in reply to Commissioner Kuhn's insinuation that Prof. Douglas is not a citizen, that Mr. Douglas is not only a native born American but that his ancestors have lived in this country for nearly 300 years. May we inquire if Commissioner Kuhn can boast of a similar record?

The truth of the matter is that the commission, while claiming the privileges of a court and demanding that all criticism of its actions should cease, refused to observe the reciprocal restraints of fairness and impartiality and sought to turn a serious hearing into a bear fight. They tried to drag a red herring across the case and to divert the attention of the investors in and consumers of utility services from the real point. Is it possible that they have pondered the advice which Rob Roy McGregor, one of Mr. Insull's publicity men, once gave to an associate in the public utility business: "My idea would be not to try logic or reason, but to pin the bolshevik idea on opponent." The action and conduct of the commission give indeed further proof of their subservience to the utility companies and their failure to protect the interests of the public.

TEACHERS AND COMMUNISM.

Chicago, June 13.—The letter from Graduate Student in today's Voice of the People is rather misleading. The writer says the school teachers in the public schools of Chicago are teaching the pupils essentials of communism. Be that as it may, do said teachers know the particular subject of which they speak? I doubt it, or they wouldn't confuse Marxism and Leninism with the phoney Socialist party formerly headed by Debs and now led by Norman Thomas. The soviets have a true socialism, whereas the party in the United States masquerading under that name is simply a misnomer and betrayer of the people, as are the two major parties we have here.

Of course the newspapers rarely if ever publish the truth in regard to matters of importance to the masses. Why should they? They have to protect their own interests. As I see it, the teachers cannot be blamed for trying to teach things that are antagonistic to the present system. However, in view of the raw deal these instructors have had in the last few months, I would say this is only the reaction of human nature, for this class of people, when it comes right down to brass tacks, would not want to live under communism.

CONTEMPT CASE AGAINST EDITOR A LEGAL JUMBLE

Record of Defense Omits Important Points.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wabash, Ind., June 21.—[Special.]—The Nixon contempt case, significant because it raises once more in Indiana the question of freedom of the press presents under investigation a series of legal errors and conflicting viewpoints.

Don M. Nixon, publisher of the Wabash Plain Dealer, a courageous campaigner for liberalism and justice in a state often held back by bigotry and narrow laws, is appealing to the higher courts against a ten day jail sentence imposed upon him for contempt of court.

The case grew out of the appointment of Quincy A. Carver, a village garage keeper, as receiver for the defunct Wabash County Loan and Trust company, an institution with nearly a million dollars deposits. Carver was appointed by Judge Frank O. Switzer of the Wabash county Circuit court.

Editor Attacks Appointment.

Some time after the appointment Editor Nixon launched an attack upon the judge's action and charged that the judge had been influenced by politicians to appoint Carver, who was described by Nixon as an honest fellow, but wholly incompetent and a pliant tool in the hands of scheming lawyers and bank directors.

Almost without exception the principals involved in the receivership and other unbiased citizens have declared Carver to be unfit for the task of liquidating a million dollar bank in which the interests of 3,500 depositors, some of whom have lost their life savings, are at stake.

Carver appears to know little of business methods. He was a farmer, lost his right hand in a corn cutter and became a garage keeper in the little village of Roann. He served one term as county auditor, and the record of interest delinquencies on school fund loans made by the auditor has been cited to indicate Carver's inability to collect money. The delinquencies more than doubled while he was in office, and in the first year since he left office a considerable improvement is shown by his successor. Business leaders and other bankers in the county declared there was no doubt that Carver was not a good type for a bank receiver.

Organize Protective Committee.

After his appointment the depositors in the bank organized a protective committee, and they have been forced to the expense of obtaining a private audit and gaining information of mismanagement by the directors which the receiver was unable or unwilling to obtain for them.

It appears that Judge Switzer himself thought Carver was not the man for the job, for it is set up in the contempt charges against Mr. Nixon that at the time of the Carver appointment Judge Switzer "announced that in his opinion the receiver of said bank should be a person who had some banking experience."

The judge stated that he had asked from the bench, "in a loud voice," whether any of the lawyers or depositors crowded into the courtroom had any objections to the appointment of Carver, and that none was voiced. It has since been learned that the lawyers present expected to be hired as counsel for the receiver, and four of them were so hired later.

Withdraws "Plunder" Charge.

Two of the lawyers had represented the defunct bank, whose officers have since been made defendants in suits filed by the depositors' committee charging gross misconduct and mismanagement of the bank's funds.

Editor Nixon charged in his vigorous, outspoken style that Carver was picked because of his incompetency and so that "the misfortunes of the bank might be handled as political plunder."

Judge Switzer then directed the county prosecuting attorney, Byron Kennedy, not long out of law school, to prepare an information citing the editor for contempt of court.

Before the citation was issued Mr. Nixon published a retraction of the charge that politicians had influenced Judge Switzer in the appointment of Carver. Under a heading on the front page of the Plain Dealer, reading, "Misinformed on Selection of Receiver," an article appeared in which the following retraction was included:

"The receiver . . . was not selected through influence of politics on the court. The pressure was from Wabash County Loan and Trust directors. Integrity of the court in making a village garage keeper receiver of a million dollar bank is not questioned. This newspaper often has said it believes the Circuit court is honest and that its intent is to do right."

Failed to Include Retraction.

Prosecutor Kennedy filed his information, in which he did not include the retraction quoted. He has since declared, and so has Judge Switzer, that the retraction was not satisfactory. Judge Switzer then appointed a special prosecutor, Milo Feightner, of Huntington, to prosecute the case.

Under Indiana procedure Judge Switzer could not try the contempt case himself, so he nominated three judges. One name was struck off by the prosecution, one by the defense, and in this manner a Bluffton, Indiana, former judge, William H. Eichhorn was appointed to try Nixon.

Judge Eichhorn, when interviewed, said he was a Democrat, of opposite political faith than Judge Switzer, and that he had no personal interest whatever in the controversy. His home is 40 miles from Wabash, in another county. It seemed conceded by both sides that Judge Eichhorn was in no way personally interested in the outcome of the case.

Judge Switzer said today that Mr. Nixon was not cited for criticising the competency or incompetency of the receiver, and the judge declared that this erroneous impression has gone abroad.

"He was cited because of the false charge of corruption and collusion he made against the court," the judge said. "There is nothing personal in this case with me. It is the Circuit court of Wabash county that must be protected against false attacks."

Court's Explanation of Case.

Judge Eichhorn in his decision holding Nixon guilty, and Judge Switzer when interviewed, both declared that Nixon had a clear right to criticize the competency of the receiver, but not to impugn the court's motives in making the appointment. Mr. Nixon's lawyer, John R. Browne of Marion, presented an answer to the citation, in which he caused the editor to deny that he intended to embarrass or impede the court, but in which it was admitted that Mr. Nixon had been misinformed and had published untrue statements concerning the charge that politics had influenced the judge.

Attorney Browne did not even mention that a retraction of these charges had been published by the Plain Dealer, and his client was left in the position of pleading guilty to the charge without any mitigating circumstance being cited except that he had been honestly mistaken.

HOLDUP GANGS GET THOUSANDS IN THREE GOTHAM ROBBERIES

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Home going office workers descending in the elevators of the south wing of the Hudson Terminal building in downtown Manhattan unconsciously rubbed elbows this evening with four armed men whose pockets were bulging with about $20,000 worth of platinum and gold that they had just stolen from an office on the eighth floor after binding and gagging three men and a woman.

Harry Wuensch, assistant manager of the firm, kicked at the locked door of his office, sounded the first signal for help. A few minutes later police clattered into the offices and radio alarms were being flashed to all police cars in a fruitless attempt to catch the robbers.

An unsuspecting steamship captain strolling through crowded Pearl street, the Prudential Insurance Company of America, a collector for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, a Canal street jeweler, and a weighmaster for a Bronx coal concern were among the victims of a series of other robberies that occurred in scattered parts of the city today.

The loss ran into the thousands of dollars.

Obtained $271,000 Loan to Start Brainerd State.

How the Brainerd State bank was organized with a capital structure of $320,000, of which $271,000 was money borrowed from other Bain banks, was related yesterday at the trial of John Bain, former head of the chain of twelve banks, and his two sons and son-in-law. The four are charged with conspiracy to loot the banks.

Besides this testimony William Leslie, brother-in-law of the elder Bain, told of many deals in which he and Bain sold property to the Bain banks at many times what it cost them. In the trial, which is being heard by Judge John M. O'Connor without a jury, the evidence presented by Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber has been bitterly contested by Francis X. Busch, the defense attorney, who has demanded that every witness point out each specific transaction in the 886 exhibits introduced by the state.

Organized in 1928.

The Brainerd State bank was organized Nov. 1, 1928, and was located at 8646 South Ashland avenue. Hiram B. Kadish, an accountant, gave testimony that the property was listed on the books as having cost $335,000. The purport of other testimony was that this was $200,000 in excess of the actual cost.

Miss Rodilia Hack, 8135 Throop street, bookkeeper for the West Englewood Construction company, who purchased 10 shares of Brainerd stock with money borrowed from another bank, produced the books showing the itemized costs of the building. The construction company was owned by Eric F. Wiegel, a partner with Bain in many deals and a heavy borrower from the Bain banks.

$160 a Share for Stock.

Raber emphasized that the Brainerd stock cost $160 a share when the bank was organized. Busch, however, on cross-examination showed that all but $47,490 of the capital stock had been paid in when the bank was closed June 9, 1931.

The prosecutor had the witness Leslie, who was vice president of the Chicago Lawn State bank and a director of two other Bain banks, tell of each specific piece of property he and Bain sold to the various banks. Cost price to them and sale price to the banks on four sites were given by Leslie as follows:

Cost.	Selling price.
115,000	266,000
72,000	86,000
26,000	65,000

"What was your purpose in buying property in this fashion from John Bain and then selling it back, buying it again, and again selling it back?" the prosecutor asked.

"To make money?" Leslie answered.

Charles H. Meacham, formerly assistant to John Bain, and John McCrinnon testified that the day before the bank closed John H. Bain, a son of John Bain and one of the defendants, sold $36,000 of real estate bonds and cashed two checks to currency for another $20,000 and gave the $40,000 to McCrinnon to put in a cabinet. A few days later the money was gone, McCrinnon testified, and he was asked by Meacham to have a contractor named William McAskill give a receipt for the money, which McAskill refused to do.

Chemist Pleads Not Guilty in $12,000,000 Liquor Case

Anastasoff Srebren, Bulgarian chemist who is alleged to have headed a $12,000,000 alcohol diversion syndicate, appeared yesterday before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley to enter a plea of not guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Trial for all defendants who entered not guilty pleas was set for Sept. 20. The original indictment named 187 defendants, sixty of whom entered pleas of not guilty.

ROB RESTAURANT OF $285.

Two bandits yesterday took $285 from "Little Jack's" restaurant, 3175 Madison street, after threatening employes and six customers with revolvers.

PHILLIP STATE BANK IN ROGERS PARK IS CLOSED

Two National Banks of Chicago Shut Doors.

The Phillip State Bank and Trust company, 7001 North Clark street, was closed by the state auditor yesterday at the request of the board of directors. The bank was capitalized at $500,000 and its surplus and undivided profit account was carried at $288,000. Its deposits at the time of closing were $2,100,000. There had been heavy withdrawals in recent weeks.

Trust Company Taken Over.

The bank on June 2 acquired the Cook County Trust company from Moe Rosenberg, west side Democratic politician, through the purchase of $200,000 of preferred stock and 10,000 shares of common stock.

A year ago, in July 1931, the bank assumed the liabilities of the Illinois State bank, which closed owing $385,000. The Illinois State bank was a neighboring bank and the assumption of its debts was declared by Phillip bank officials to be a "contribution to the community of Rogers Park."

C. A. Beutel was president of the Phillip bank and Barnet L. Rossett was chairman of the board.

Two National Banks Closed.

Two national banks were closed yesterday. One was the Peoples National Bank and Trust company, 1543 West 47th street. The board of directors asked A. P. Leyburn, national bank examiner, to close the doors of the bank. It had deposits of $3,007,000, capital of $1,000,000, surplus of $350,000 and undivided profits of $110,000. The bank had deposits of $12,000,000 in June, 1930.

The Standard National bank of Chicago, 7921 South Ashland avenue, was closed. This bank had capital of $300,000, surplus of $25,000 and deposits of $800,000.

Child Falls from 3d Floor Porch; Is Expected to Live

Jean Berube, 2 year olds, playing with his brother Fred, 4 years old, fell yesterday from a third floor porch at his home, 1722 Warren avenue. He struck a small grass plot. The child was taken to the Women's and Children's hospital, where physicians said he had suffered injuries to his head and left arm. Apparently, it was said, Jean will recover.

BEAUTIFUL WHITE JADE EFFECT
"FILLABLE" TRAVEL & BOUDOIR BOTTLE
and large size Listerine
BOTH for 98¢
($1.50 Value)

Never before was there an opportunity like this. But you must act quickly. Even though we took the entire output of the manufacturer, the "Fillables" are so popular that we do not expect them to remain long on your druggist's shelf.

The new "Fillable" will delight you the moment you see it.

If you are a man, you will be won by its simplicity and sturdiness. It's the kind of a friendly, serviceable, non-leakable bottle that fits compactly in weekend bag or travel case.

If you are a woman, you will be charmed by the smartness, grace, and beauty of the flask itself, with its appealing, white jade effect and its pert, black, non-leakable cap.

The "Fillable" adds a note of color and beauty to the dressing table or bathroom cabinet. In your over-night bag, or suitcase, the "Fillable" fits snugly, where the regular shape, Listerine bottle might be inconvenient.

Remember, you can get the "Fillable" and the large 14 oz. size bottle of Listerine, for 98¢ at your druggist's. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

16,000 ATTEND RECEPTION BY CLERGY IN DUBLIN

Crowds Are Blessed by Pope's Envoy.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, June 21.—Glorious weather continued in Dublin today as pilgrims continued to pour into the city for the Eucharistic congress, which will be opened tomorrow. Two Cunard liners, the Samaria and Antonia, arrived with 1,600 Americans aboard. Cardinal O'Connell of Boston headed the party on the Samaria. On the other ship was a large Canadian party led by the bishops of Prince Albert and Saskatoon.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL. Harris & Ewing Photo.]

The chief event today was a great reception by the bishops and clergy of Ireland at a garden party at Blackrock college, near Dublin, in honor of Cardinal Lauri, the papal legate. Roads leading out of Dublin were congested with every kind of vehicle, moving at a snail's pace. About 16,000 persons attended the fête. Music was supplied by the Irish army band under the leadership of Col. Fritz Braze, German military bandmaster, who organized the Free State's military music.

Legate Blesses Crowd.

Promptly at 4 o'clock the legate, attended by a retinue of bishops and archbishops, appeared on the balcony in front of the college and blessed the crowd. Then, descending by a special stairway, he moved around the lawn, receiving the homage of the guests. Among the guests were all the prelates now in Dublin, ministers and former ministers of the Free State government, and the entire diplomatic corps.

Another notable event of the day was a general communion of children throughout Ireland. Today was the feast of St. Aloysius, patron of youth.

Tonight the Irish government gave a reception in the famous old St. Patrick's hall at Dublin castle, where the guests were received by President Eamon de Valera. Governor General James McNeill was not invited to this function, which was taken as a snub to Great Britain.

Speakers to Carry Mass.

Installation of loud speakers for relaying the open air mass in Phoenix park Sunday was completed today. Five hundred loud speakers have been installed and every word of the service and every note of the music will be clearly audible over a route of thirteen miles. The route extends from Phoenix park to O'Connell bridge.

Cardinal Hayes of New York, who is the guest of Frederick A. Sterling, American minister to the Free State, will christen the latter's infant daughter Thursday afternoon.

Catholic, Protestants Clash.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, June 21.—(AP)—The little border town of Newtown Butler, in County Fermanagh, is having trouble over the Eucharistic congress.

The Catholics set up an arch in the papal colors today and the Protestants retaliated by waving the Union Jack. Later they broke into the Catholic church and rang the bell.

Before long the whole village had split into rival camps, with the police between them. Special police also were hurriedly mobilized. Up to this evening there had been no fighting, but even the police were not sure how long they could keep the rivals apart.

Throng Witnesses Drowning of Two Men in Park Lagoon

Two men were drowned in a south side lagoon last night and a third man narrowly escaped a similar fate, because one of them thought he could swim out as far as his pet dog, which had been retrieving sticks from the water. Three other drownings in the lake were reported during the day.

The lagoon victims were Jack Gallagher, 28 years old, of 6670 Hartwell avenue and John Gilligan, 35, of 6609 Aberdeen street. Their companion, Alfred Dodson, 38, of 7242 Emerald avenue, saved himself.

FRANCES MUSNECKAS.

Gallagher, Gilligan and Dodson were walking along the east shore of the Ogden park lagoon, 69th street and Racine avenue, with Gilligan occasionally throwing a stick into the water for his dog to fetch. Many of the neighborhood folk, lounging in the park, watched.

Fails to Save Comrades.

"I'll bet I can swim as far as the dog," boasted Gilligan. The next instant he dived into the water, which is about 15 feet deep at that point. As he struggled helplessly, Gallagher went in after him. Both sank. Dodson leaped into the water to rescue them. He almost went down too, but managed to return safely.

A throng of men and women crowded to the lagoon's edge, and one of them, Edward Harris, 25, of 6323 Aberdeen street, dived into the water fully dressed. He brought Gilligan out. Meanwhile fire rescue squad No. 1, commanded by Lieut. Robert Burns, arrived. Harris helped them throw out grappling hooks for Gallagher's body. He impaled his left hand in this effort, and was taken to St. Bernard's hospital. Gallagher's body was recovered a few minutes later. Efforts to revive him and Gilligan failed.

Girl and Two Boys Drowned.

The other drowning victims of the day were Frances Musneckas, 15 years old, of 3427 Wallace street; Chester Demares, also 15, of 2846 North Hamlin avenue, and Albert Glatt, 17, of 1840 North Kimball avenue.

The girl sank off the 61st street beach in Jackson park while she was swimming with her sister, Marion, 18. Philip Jones, 7403 Euclid avenue, recovered her body. Chester Demares waded out too far at the Fullerton avenue breakwater in Lincoln park and was carried out by a current. He could not swim. Glatt, a high school student, was seized with cramps while swimming off Ainslie street. Both their bodies were recovered.

N. H. VAN SICKLEN, PIONEER IN AUTO INDUSTRY, DEAD

N. H. Van Sicklen, a pioneer in the bicycle and automobile industry in Chicago, died yesterday at the age of 68. Mr. Van Sicklen was a champion bicycle rider from 1884 to 1891 and was president of the Chicago Cycling club. Later he became president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association. He was a charter member and president of the Chicago Motor club and was secretary of the Lake Shore Athletic club and the Chicago Motorists association.

N. H. VAN SICKLEN [Atwell Photo.]

Mr. Van Sicklen published "Motor Age" from 1904 to 1908 and in 1909 the "Automobile Blue Book" and the "Road Guide." He sold those publications and later established and sold the Van Sicklen Speedometer company.

He resided at 7358 South Shore drive and is survived by a widow, two sons, C. F. and N. H. Van Sicklen Jr., and six grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a. m. at 2700 East 75th street. Interment will be in St. Charles.

MRS. MARY NUGENT, 87 years old, died yesterday at her home, 930 Judson avenue, Evanston, of pneumonia which developed after she suffered a fractured hip in a fall last Thursday. She is survived by one son and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at Ottawa, Ill., at 2:30 p. m. today.

G. N. HAYWARD DIES; FOUGHT AT MANILA BAY

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Commander George North Hayward, U. S. N., retired, died this morning at the Naval hospital, Brooklyn. Born in New London, Conn., in 1866, he was the son of Commander George Washington Hayward, who was long in command of the Michigan, sole warship on the great lakes. The younger Hayward fought under Dewey in the battle of Manila bay and was recipient of one of the medals struck by order of congress in recognition of the services of officers who took part in that engagement. In the world war he returned to the service as a volunteer and did notable work in convoying destroyers. He is survived by his sisters, Mrs. James O'Donnell Bennett of Chicago and Miss Florence Hayward of St. George, Staten Island, New York.

U. S. FINDS BONDSMAN GUILTY.

James McLemore, colored bondsman, indicted on ten charges of filing false affidavits in the scheduling of real estate bonds, yesterday was found guilty by a jury in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes. McLemore faces a maximum of five years on each of the ten counts.

CHLORINE GAS PERILS HUNDRED IN NEW YORK

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—A greenish yellow cloud sizzled out of a broken pipe line today in front of a laundry supplies factory in the Bronx, on the edge of Mount Vernon. It was a cloud of chlorine gas. It crept along with a steady southerly breeze, tinging a large plot of grass a bright yellow. Then it reached three factory buildings and within a few moments more than a hundred persons were rushing pell mell into the streets. Seven of them tumbled unconscious in their tracks, gripping their throats, and 28 more were made less seriously ill.

The gas disrupted three plants and caused the closing of two of them for the day.

The seven most seriously ill were rushed to Mount Vernon hospital, where they quickly responded to treatment. Tonight only two remained there. Many others were laid out on the grass where emergency squads of police, firemen and industrial companies worked over them with pulmotors.

After an investigation by federal and municipal officials it was said that no action of a punitive nature was contemplated.

VIOLATE DRY LAW IN MAKING NEAR BEER: U. S. JUDGE

Newark, N. J., June 21.—[Special.]—The eighteenth amendment was being violated in the granting of permits to breweries for the manufacture of near beer, Federal Judge Guy L. Fake said here today. The judge declared that in order to make near beer breweries must first manufacture high powered beer which is later desalcoholized.

The opinion of Judge Fake was expressed while hearing the application of a Paterson cereal company for a temporary injunction to restrain prohibition agents from interfering with the company's activities.

"It is wrong to permit the manufacture of high powered beer under the eighteenth amendment," the judge said. "I believe this is unconstitutional and I think the United States Supreme court should decide this point."

Mrs. Bevans Is an Authority on the Care of Children

Europe's Debt Plea Repeated in This Book

"Recovery: The Second Effort," by Sir Arthur Salter, K. C. B. [Century.]

A COUPLE of conversational bad boys are having a lot of fun these days. They let the chatter about the state of the nation go so far and then toss in the question: What have you learned from the depression? Considering that nearly every one thinks he has been thinking of little except depression for two years and more, the answers are singularly meager. It is just possible, then, that the bad boys are undercover agents for publishers who wish to shame people into reading such books as Sir Arthur Salter's "Recovery."

SIR ARTHUR SALTER.

Be that as it may, if Sir Arthur happened to be around when the question, "What have you learned?" was put, the assembled company would be in for a couple of hours of good talk. When it was over the listeners would have a pretty clear idea of one school of thinking about the depression, what might be called the international school.

The basis of the argument is the now familiar observation that international debts can be paid only with gold, goods or services; there is not enough gold in the world to do the job; and to pay with goods and services, the paying nations must have export balances. Otherwise the debts can be paid only by borrowing. The raising of tariffs by the creditor nations and the drying up of international loans beginning in 1929 rendered international repayment of political debts impossible and forced Germany in the effort to obtain credit abroad first to liquidate whatever goods she had on hand and eventually to cease foreign payments. The wave of liquidation and default thus started has rolled on until it has swamped us all. We call it the depression.

Sir Arthur's proposed treatment follows from his diagnosis. As the cause of our difficulties is international, he argues, the cure lies largely in international action with respect to reparations, the debts, loans and the tariffs.

Sir Arthur's diagnosis is the accepted one in much of western Europe, and especially in England. It has had little acceptance in America outside academic circles because it runs counter to the conviction of the American people that their fate is in their own hands. Europe's first instinct in time of stress is to call a conference of the powers, while ours is to pass a law. Neither method is uniformly, or even commonly, successful, but ours, at any rate, is founded upon the belief that as a nation we are the masters of our own destiny. Perhaps that is the reason we generally do as badly as we do in international conferences; the idea of conferring with other nations about our troubles is contrary to our fundamental notions of how our affairs should be run.

Though international difficulties may have had much to do with bringing about the depression, it does not follow that improvement can come only through international action. Recovery need not be imposed from above by international agreements or even by national action; it can result from a resurgence of individual energy in this and other countries. The phrase is a vague one and may mean nothing; but "resurgence of energy," or some other phrase equally indefinite is about the only explanation which we have for recovery from previous depressions and panics.

Unlike Keynes, Salter is never slashing. His specialty is the understanding heart; his qualities must have made him a valuable member of the league's staff. His account of the diplomatic maneuvering by which the powers have sought to amend the Versailles treaty without seeming to do so is perhaps the best brief summary at hand of the course of these conferences and negotiations. He has sought to show why each of the powers has acted as it has with respect to debts, reparations and disarmament, and in doing so he has demonstrated an exquisite neutrality.

But toward the end of the book the author concedes that the conference method will not do in the present crisis. "Collective human wisdom will not control the inexorable march of events in the months immediately ahead," he says. "Many, perhaps most, of the adjustments that must be made before recovery can come, which might earlier have been made by deliberate policy, . . . will now come from the pressure of hard facts and the collision of brute forces." There is not much glory for the "collective system" in that. The league's present staff, as it has revealed itself in this insider's book, can be as high-minded as the City club and just about as effective in controlling events. It can assemble, investigate, recommend and advise, but it cannot do. L. S.

Beautiful Frocks Perfect for Summer.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THERE may be more important issues, but the eternal quest for cool clothes has always been the chief problem of the summer shopper.

This feminine problem should abate a trifle this summer, for no matter how particular you are or how thin you demand your street clothes you will be able to find flocks and flocks of frocks that deserve the highest honors for sheerness and coolness.

Eyelet batistes are eye openers in more than one way . . . lovely, soft colors, as cool as icy drinks, are just a matter of holes . . . nothing could be cooler or more picturesque . . . you can find this open minded material used for sleeveless one piece frocks . . . clever two piece suit effects and ravishing evening dresses.

One shop is showing these dresses in a new shade of pink . . . a pink that has been cooled with lots of white, a soft rosy pink that glows refreshingly on blonde and brunette alike.

Other entrants for hot weather daily wear are the cool printed chiffons, the models made of prints that are spattered with tiny dots, wee little buds, cool looking green leaves, and the clean cut striped affairs that never seem to wilt even on the hottest days.

Most of the newest models are made with huge puffed sleeves and slender fitted skirts and criss-crossed sashes tied at the waistline.

Tricky new cool ideas are tried with great success on sleeves that are moored but halfway around the top of the arm . . . other designs feature lavish cut-out effects both in front and back necklines.

For all of those shoppers who are inseparably attached to a coat some bright soul has designed some really knockout coats of printed chiffons . . . these have the large loose sleeves gathered into wrist tight cuffs. New ensembles consist of white tucked or pleated chiffon or silk dresses to be worn under colorful chiffon coats.

While sheer materials undoubtedly do more toward keeping the shopper cool and comfortable, some undeniably cool effects are possible with cool light colors in less sheer silks.

For instance one irresistible outfit that looks as crisply cool as any chiffon is achieved with a beautiful chalk white dress intricately fashioned with bias sections in both bodice and skirt, contrasted with a long coat of crushed raspberry color. As an alternative you may decide for the chiffon frock of white with delicate traceries of the same shade of red trailing over it.

Nothing is ever more refreshing to wear, or more interesting to the spectator, than the dotted chiffons . . . the afternoon dresses of old blue, dusky rose, a soft shade of brown and red with frosty dots of white spotting the backgrounds.

These are the sort of clothes the fashion wise shopper buys now while the new collections are complete and the smartest models are available.

Good Morning!

Well, how about a nice, ghoulish little jaunt to an undertaking parlor this beautiful morning?

Sing of murders, sing of coffins,
Of cadavers in the offin's;
Sing of graves and them they buries,
Sing of shrouds and cemeteries,
Sing of undertakers urbane—
Now, let's go back to prose again:

This film could aptly have been called "Fun in a Mortuary." Of course, what transpires isn't much fun for those concerned with the mystery of the disappearance of several bodies, dead and alive, but you, audience, will be very gay as you gaze upon this grewsome comedy, for the predicaments of the characters are such as to cause you to laugh a lot.

It would never do to give away the plot. I'll only tell you that much of the action and suspense occur in the undertaking establishment of one Chandler, who, you learn early in the game, has been hocus-pocusing with corpses.

Complications present themselves thick and fast and you're good if you know the answer before the director wants you to.

"Strangers of the Evening" is acted to the nines by an able cast. Theodore von Eltz and Miriam Seegar furnish the romantic interest. Zasu Pitts and Lucien Littlefield provide most of the laughs, and Eugene Pallette, that sterling veteran, contributes a believable picture of a perplexed, hard working police inspector.

Settings are eerie without being nerve racking.

During the picture and the grand music by Duke Ellington and his band, all you can see is white teeth and whites of eyes.

Ninety Guests Start Vacation at Algonquin

Forget City Streets in This Beauty Spot.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

CARY, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—By sundown this evening ninety tenement vacationers were asleep in Camp Algonquin's cool dormitories, the city streets forgotten in the quiet of this peaceful riverside camp. No rumbling trucks or thundering elevated trains here. Only bird song in the wide spreading elms to lull to sleep these first visitors of the season, and to awaken them early tomorrow for the real beginning of their two weeks' vacation of play and rest.

Sixty-six wide eyed children tumbled off a special coach of the Chicago and North Western train that brought them from Chicago to Cary shortly after 5 o'clock. With their mothers they had a thrilling five mile ride up hill and down dale along the country lanes in the camp trucks and then suddenly they dropped down a hill right in to Camp Algonquin.

It didn't take those visitors long to find seats in the long refectory where counselors and Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, gave them a hearty welcome. All the cows and chickens and horses counted in the fields along the way were immediately forgotten with the sight of huge bowls of cereal, tumblers of milk, apricots and bread and butter.

Even the little boy who contended all the way from Chicago that strawberries grew on bushes forgot to continue his argument. Such milk, such food, it disappeared as if by magic. And when it was all gone the youngsters were out of doors with a shout for a few hilarious games before bedtime. The mothers took the smallest children to the nursery, and fed them and dressed them for the night under the direction of Miss Erma Berstecher of the Infant Welfare society.

In short order all the guests were assigned, the mothers and the babies to the mothers' dormitory and the older children to their special cottages, staffed by a corps of 47 trained counselors and five trained nurses and a resident physician.

Today the camp routine will start in earnest—supervised play, hikes, kindergarten work in a wing of the screened nursery porch and in the white picket play yard for the toddlers, the organization of sewing clubs, and the first lesson in nature work.

Today mothers will be relieved of the care of their children to do exactly as they please. They can walk about under the trees, read, rock on the screened porches, or go down by the Fox river and just sit.

"It's kind of nice out here," observed one mother of five with a faraway look in her eyes. "After a winter in the city, this means—almost heaven."

Less than $1,400 has been raised so far this season to maintain Camp Algonquin. TRIBUNE readers alone are counted on for $10,000. Your gift may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. Remember a ten dollar check will send a mother or a child to camp for two weeks.

Commander Booth Gives Commissions to Class of Seventy

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army in the United States was given an ovation last night by a crowd that overflowed Moody Memorial church, Clark street and North avenue.

At last night's service 70 cadets, graduates of the Salvation Army Training school, Broadway and Brompton avenue, were given their commissions as officers in the army. To the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," Commander Booth, escorted by an honor guard of Boy and Girl Scouts, ascended the platform, introduced Commander Booth.

The commander charged the new officers with the need of zeal and fortitude to meet the unusual demands of Salvation Army officers of the present day. Ten divisional commanders of the army attended the exercises.

It was announced at division headquarters last night that Commander Booth would offer the prayer at the opening of the Democratic national convention next Tuesday.

Lovely Gowns at Wedding

Miss Ann Mitchell of Greenwich, Conn., and Miss Nancy Knode wore the loveliest, most summery looking pink organdy gowns made with huge puffed sleeves and round-collared necks, and floppy pink organdy hats when they attended Miss Knode's sister, Betty, at her marriage to Horton Conrad last Saturday. It was a garden wedding at the Winnetka residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Knode. The maids carried pink and blue bachelor buttons. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Maternity Center Assumes Charge of Maxwell Dispensary

The board of Chicago Lying-in hospital yesterday turned over to the Chicago Maternity center, for a ten year period, the hospital's Maxwell street dispensary property to be operated as a neighborhood maternity clinic.

The hospital, now one of the leading maternity institutions of the world, had its beginning in the dispensary 37 years ago when Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, who still heads the hospital, founded it in four rooms of a tenement at Maxwell street and Newberry avenue.

The dispensary work has been carried on continuously in that neighborhood since. At present the dispensary which will be taken over by the newly incorporated Chicago Maternity center has nine physicians, ten medical students, and eleven nurses in residence. Hospital care is provided for homeless prospective mothers, but most of the work of the staff is done in the homes of the poor.

Free nursing and medical service is provided for 300 maternity cases every month and has been effective in keeping the death rate among both mothers and babies of the district low for many years.

Janet Kirk to Be Bride in Early Fall

Church Wedding Set for September 24.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONE of the first of the early autumn weddings will be that of pretty and popular Janet Kirk, daughter of Mrs. Willing D. Kirk of Glencoe, and Robert Hampton Ripley, son of Mrs. Robert H. Ripley of Indian Hill road, Winnetka, which is to take place on Saturday, Sept. 24, in Christ church, Winnetka.

The wedding will be small and will be followed by a reception, probably at the Indian Hill club, although that detail is not settled yet.

Attending the bride will be her brother's wife, Mrs. Van Gorder Kirk of Highland Park, the former Emily Smith [she and Van Kirk eloped in March, 1929, you will remember, after having been engaged for some time and while their friends were waiting for their wedding date to be announced], the bridegroom's sister Mrs. Frank Allen Baker Jr. [Beatrice Ripley], and Miss Anne Small.

The Bakers will celebrate their second wedding anniversary three days after the Kirk-Ripley wedding, the Ripley-Baker marriage having taken place in the gardens of the Ripley estate on Sept. 27, 1930. The best man and ushers have not been announced.

Miss Kirk made her debut in the late fall of 1929, having attended Miss Risser's school in Rome the year before. She was a student at Rosemary hall in Greenwich before she went to Italy. Her fiancé is a graduate of the Hill school and of Duke university.

A fall wedding which society has been looking forward to which will not take place then, or at any time unless the young people change their minds again, is that of Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh and Johnson Couch, for their engagement has been broken. Miss Walsh is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walsh; her former fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira J. Couch.

Miss Walsh is planning to spend a part of the summer paying visits to various friends in different parts of the country, but her parents are not making any plans to leave Chicago this summer. The Couch family is at their Golf residence, the White House in the Woods, for the summer.

Democrats to Hold Breakfasts.

The women of the Democratic national convention entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is chairman, are taking no chances on having their parties "flops" because the distinguished guests are kept away by convention business, so instead of planning luncheons or dinners, breakfasts are to be in order next week.

The committee, which met yesterday afternoon at the Palmer house, decided to give a breakfast on Thursday, June 30, at 9:15 o'clock in the Empire room of the Palmer house for delegates, alternates, and national committeewomen, although some of the members of the committee were anxious to give a dinner or late supper party instead of a breakfast. Mrs. George Magoun, Mrs. George E. Brennan, Mrs. Harold Amberg, Mrs. Joseph W. Serhant, and Mrs. Arthur Bissell were appointed by the chairman to be in

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Consadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. It's love at first sight. Esmee feels his need of her is real. Claire Cowley, Michael's sister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But Michael tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Esmee doesn't want to tell Michael about Lew. She's afraid of Jimmy's evil power. Michael takes Esmee to spend the night at Claire's and drives her to her office next morning. They go for a drive in the evening. Esmee notices a car following them.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

LOVE'S SACRIFICE.

"Michael . . . Let me go back to your apartment with you——"

"O, darling kid, I can't. Twining's there, you know, and he's already told me I ought to be kicked——"

"I don't care what he says, or what he thinks. Michael, don't leave me tonight!"

"Esmee . . ." he said. "You—don't know how—how hard you make it for me, darling . . . I told your mother——"

A sedan was coming toward them now, slowly. The same one . . . ? Coming back . . . ?

She believed that it was. She felt certain that it was. She felt certain that the moment had come.

She flung herself against Michael, her arms about his neck, her body a shield for his breast, just as a shot sounded. A soft, muffled shot . . . She felt a pain in her shoulder blade, not a bad pain. A whirling darkness descended on her; she tried to cling to Michael, but her arms had grown powerless.

"Michael . . . !" she cried as loudly as she could.

But she could not feel him any more. She was alone, spinning dizzily down and down through an immeasurable black abyss. No pain any more now. . . .

The pain had come back and stabbed her and stung her. The darkness that had whirled was still now, and that was worse and more desolate. She thought she was lying at the bottom of a pit on a bed of stones, and tears came from under her closed lids because of the pain and the bleak, dark loneliness.

"My pet . . ." said a voice.

With an effort she opened her eyes and saw her mother bending over her. That was not surprising. Mrs. Sully could be anywhere—in the black abyss of hell or in the glorious light of heaven — and she would have, for the blessed angels or for the damned souls, the same warm tenderness in her dark eyes.

There was a muffled shot and Esmee whirled into the darkness.

"My lambie . . ."

"You're—so good," said Esmee. "Mother, if I wasn't—good?"

"You couldn't be anything else, my lambie."

But now Esmee was beginning to remember.

"Mother . . . !" she cried. "Michael—?"

Esmee closed her eyes again and again sank down, but not upon a bed of stones. This was a soft and easy bed. She raised her heavy eyelids again and looked about her. She was in a long, low ceilinged room, lit by a lamp with an apricot colored shade. There were fresh white curtains drawn across the windows, a dull blue rug on the floor. There was something about the walnut furniture, in the way it was spaced, something in the clean and simple charm of the room that was dimly familiar to her.

"Mother . . . where's this?"

"Mrs. Cowley's house, my pet."

"Is Michael here?"

"He's here, dearie. Everything's all right. You were hurt, you know, my dearie. But not badly. The doctor says——"

Esmee did not hear the rest. Before her had risen the image of a boyish hand, slender, well formed, marred by rough work . . . She could see again the dark road and herself and Michael in the car drawn up by the roadside and that sedan coming toward them. . . .

"Mother!"

"I must call the nurse now, my pet. She wanted me to call her as soon as you waked."

"Wait, mother . . . Did Michael send for you?"

"Yes. He sent a car and a chauffeur."

"Mother . . . After we'd gone . . . Mother—had Lew come home . . . ?"

"No," answered Mrs. Sully, and in her quiet voice was all the pain of love that is helpless. Glancing at her, Esmee saw on her face a shadow of resignation, of fear. Mrs. Sully knew, as well as any one else, that there was something wrong, horribly wrong, with her son. She could not help, perhaps she could not understand—all she could do was to wait. And if she had to wait in vain all the rest of her days, and the son she had borne and loved never came back to her, she could do that, too.

"I left a message with the janitor and a note in the flat to say where I'd be," she said, "so that when Lew comes in . . ."

Esmee tried to imagine where Lew could be, where he might have fled. Lew, her own Lew, who had grown up with her. . . . She could remember, years and years ago when they were children, getting up in the dark on a Christmas morning with Lew. In the good times that had been, before her father had started downhill. Lew, a schoolboy with fair, untidy hair and a flannel dressing gown he had outgrown, a child still, had had an oil lantern that he cherished above all his possessions. He had used to light that lantern after dinner and let Esmee go with him to look at his rabbits.

And a chill ran through her; she began to shiver. She could imagine Lew's face—now—by the light of an electric torch—bending over a safe . . . Was he gone forever into Jimmy's dreadful world . . . ? Lew in a cell, his young head in his hands. . . .

"Now, if you'll just drink this——" said a cheerful young voice.

A nurse in a white uniform was standing beside her with a glass of hot milk. Esmee did not want it, but she sipped it obediently.

"Any pain?" asked the nurse.

"O, just a little!" Esmee answered.

There could not be any pain in her body like the pain there was in her heart.

"The doctor was able to use a local anesthetic to extract the bullet," said the nurse. "It's only a flesh wound. You'll be all right—you'll forget it ever happened in a few days."

Not in a few days, or in years, or in all her life would she forget that boyish hand on the window of the car.

"Don't move more than you can help," said the young nurse. "I'll shift these pillows. How's that . . . ? Now you can rest for a while, Miss Sully."

"I'll try," said Esmee.

She thought she could not, but so that she could be quiet and need not speak she closed her eyes . . . and went floating off to that region where the sick and sorry rest. . . .

Voices came filtering through the mist, low voices. But one of these was that voice she thought would reach her even in her grave. It was Michael speaking.

"But what does it do to you?" he was asking.

Esmee opened her eyes. The nurse was leaning back in an easy chair. Michael, with a bathrobe over his pajamas, sat on the edge of a table beside her.

"It's bound to do something to you," he said. "It's not natural—not normal—to see all the misery and suffering you have to see."

"I guess I'm 'normal' enough," said she a trifle sadly. "A little hard boiled maybe. You have to be. But when I'm off duty I go out with my friends, and so on, the same as any other girl."

She was looking up into Michael's lean, dark face, with a smile that had in it a trace of anxiety. Esmee knew how that girl felt. She wanted to keep up with Michael—wanted to please him—and it was not easy.

"I knew a nurse . . ." Michael went on. "Pretty young kid—like you. Another fellow and I took her and a friend of hers out somewhere to dance. This other fellow, you know, was in love with the nurse—or beginning to be—and I wanted to get some idea how she felt about him. So, when I was dancing with her I said something—I forget just what I said—'He's a nice fellow, isn't he?' Something like that. And d'you know what she answered?"

"No . . ." said the young nurse, looking up into his face.

"She said——" Michael went on, "she said, 'O, yes. But he looks to me like a cardiac case.' I never got over that. It was—horrible."

"But I don't see . . ." said the young nurse, more anxious than ever.

"That didn't mean she didn't like him or anything. It simply means that sometimes a person has a look——"

"It was horrible!" Michael repeated. "What sort of way is that for a woman to think of a man?"

Show me the man, whether he's in his twenties or his sixties, who doesn't expand and glow at the slightest opportunity to play host!

Don't mistake me. I'm not referring to playing the lone and embarrassed male when friend wife has invited in the girls and retained the man of the house as a chef or maker of pleasant conversation. I refer to playing the host to "the boys" and to them alone, with all restraining femininities completely out of the picture, or at least well behind the screens.

The occasion? It may be anything from an all night poker party, with refreshments served in the wee small hours of the morning, to a buffet supper, full fledged dinner, or an after theater refrigerator raid. But whatever the plans—and remember it's the men's party, not yours—a bit of tactful plotting on the part of even a mere wife will be likely to result in better oiled machinery and more satisfaction for everybody.

The food, for instance—there's a matter for grave thought. But even if you're no more than a newly fledged bride the first few weeks will have taught you that there are some dishes your newly acquired responsibility dotes on above all else. It may be a huge sizzling steak smothered in onions, a fiercely flavored mulligatawny stew, or vast piles of swirling spaghetti simply drowned in Italian meat sauce and shocking quantities of grated cheese.

So be it. There's your starting point, and with womanly tact you can now balance the menu and still leave the impression with the host that every item was the product of his own agile imagination.

If the party is to be a real meal, it may be desirable for you to officiate in the kitchen, at least until the hot course is on the table, leaving to the men the responsibility of slaughtering the pie and perking the coffee. Or if you are brave and trusting and see this as a good chance to do a bit of visting yourself, turn the whole kitchen over to the men—and duck. With supplies and recipes all on hand, and a little previous coaching, a surprisingly good dinner may develop. At least it will insure every one present a vastly riotous meal!

But just suppose the affair is an evening party. Here's how a friend with a party minded husband worked it. The setting was perfect for a stag party, with a large cellar room already converted into an old time tavern with an improvised bar and a tinny piano to lend spirits and noise. An old oil stove settled the cooking problem, with quantities of luscious macaroni rarebit and black coffee the center of attraction. Nor was that all. A sturdy round table over by the piano tempted loitering stags with sliced loaves of rye, whole wheat, and "pumpernickel" breads, sandwich spreads, a half dozen snappy cheeses, crackers, zwieback, pickles, olives, and as a final splurge toasted stuffed celery.

Last week I told about an especially alluring honest to goodness spaghetti or macaroni dish served Italian style with a hearty meat sauce and plenty of flavorful cheese. I hereby recommend said dish as a winner when good fellows get together. If you did not clip it and scent a stag party in the offing, write me and I will be glad to send a copy from my files.

MACARONI RAREBIT.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1¼ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon mustard
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 pound grated American cheese
Cooked macaroni

Make a sauce in the double boiler of the butter, flour, salt, and mustard, stirring the milk in slowly. Cook until smooth and thick. Stir in the grated cheese and continue cooking until the cheese is melted. Pour generously over plates of hot macaroni either broken or in full lengths and sprinkle each serving with cayenne.

Then right away, when eight hungry men have been served out of one panful of rarebit, there'll be nothing for it but to hustle up another pound of cheese, more smooth white sauce, piles more of fluffy macaroni—and start in all over again.

Paris Permits Jeune Fille Her Tiers and Bows

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Paris idea of party styles for the girl under 20 includes a lot of details that are denied to more mature chic. In general the very young silhouette is similar to that for the older woman, with the high waistline exaggerated a bit, since the 'teens can get away with this better than any woman after majority. Skirts are about the same length; that is, a bit above the ankles, and the youthful party frock almost invariably has some suggestion of sleeves, as does that of the older woman.

The cotton frock is rampant in Parisienne circles for all sorts of parties except the most formal, and muslin or organdy is often used for the youthful party dress. The Renée frock, sketched today, is a periwinkle blue muslin model designed for the debutante and the sub. It has two details that are exclusive to young modes—tiers and bows. The tiers of this dress are confined to the sleeves and shoulders, and in this new location give piquancy to the model. The bows are unalterably part of the frock, being muslin bows sewed right into the front and back with the knot at the waistline in both cases. The muslin belt passes through these knots.

The skirt of this frock is gored and flared rather low. At the sides of the neckline are clusters of tucks.

COUNTLESS WOMEN

More and more American women have acquired complexions as radiantly lovely as Englishwomen's. They learned the secret was Pears' Soap . . . guardian of the famous English complexion for 143 years.

Try Pears' Soap . . . watch its generous, gently invigorating lather bring the natural rose-leaf color to your skin! You'll find Pears' at all drug and department stores, wherever toilet goods are sold, unscented 15¢. Scented, a bit more. This translucent soap lasts and lasts!

Calisthenics in Morning Keeps the Figure Trim

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Kidnapings may come and kidnapings may go. Female flights across the ocean may happen; beer tax bills and taxes on every mouthful that goes into our system, every rag that goes onto our backs, may be pondered; but reducing talk isn't interrupted for long, when a couple of women foregather. The longevity of the topic amazes me. You'd think it would be talked out long before this. Not so. If anything, it gains fervor with each succeeding year. This year, with waistlines hollering for an identification belt, it is going stronger than ever.

Still, with all the talk, chunky women keep on riding in street cars right to the door, or they hail the passing taxi, when they haven't a motor of their own. And these are a few of fat's worst enemies. The labor saving devices in homes today cut off a powerful lot of valuable muscular activity, not made up in other directions.

Of course, we alibi that we'd walk if we weren't in such a hurry. If we walked to work, we say, we'd be too tired to work when we got there, or that the time clock has to be punched on time. In the winter we say: "Wait till the good old summer times comes around. Then we'll swim the pounds off." When summer rolls around we buy the handsome bathing suit, all right. But how much swimming is done? How much more lolling on the beach is done than swimming?

The taste for active exercise is one of those things women need a lot of education on to get the weight down and to keep it down. We sit and sit and sit some more. The wonder is there isn't more middle aged spread to be seen. The fat piles up. Perhaps we pull it down—temporarily—with a heroic diet. But it comes back because the muscles are still invitingly flabby. They have to be hardened against a return of the fat, against a first accumulation of it.

Horseback riding, hiking, rowing, tennis, any outdoor exercise is good. But because you can think up a hundred alibis, as lack of time and money, better get the early morning calisthenics habit. Especially if you are reducing, exercise to distribute the weight as it is lost and to prevent sagging skin and wrinkles by building up muscle tone.

Mrs. Frank Fuller of Winnetka suggested that north shore gardens be opened to the visitors this coming Sunday, so Mrs. Fairbank asked Mrs. Fuller to arrange to have some of the loveliest of the Winnetka gardens open that afternoon and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor to make the Lake Forest arrangements.

The other official entertainments for the visiting Democrats will be the breakfast the Illinois Democratic women's national convention committee will give Monday morning at the Stevens hotel at which Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Illinois national committeewoman and general chairman of the committee, will preside; a tour of the World's Fair buildings followed by a tea in the administration building at which Rufus C. Dawes and the other trustees will be hosts Monday afternoon after the opening session of the convention adjourns, and a dinner Wednesday night to be given by the Chicago Woman's club, at which Mrs. George Bass will preside.

Some of those at yesterday's meeting in addition to Mrs. Conkey, Mrs. Bass, Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Fuller, and the members of the breakfast committee were Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, and Mrs. John P. Welling.

Wheaton Flower Show Today.

The village of Wheaton will be decked out today in its very best summer horticultural garb for the annual flower show of the Wheaton Garden club to be held from 2 o'clock on at the George A. Strom estate. Besides the flower show itself, which is always one of the loveliest in this vicinity, a number of the spacious Wheaton estates will be open so that the public may roam through the gardens at will. Mrs. H. H. Cosley is chairman of the show and Mrs. George Plamondon heads the hospitality committee.

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller will give a tea for Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt this afternoon at her residence at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris are giving a small informal dinner this evening for Miss Ellen McAdoo, daughter of the William Gibbs McAdoos, who are visiting their kinswoman, Mrs. Albert DeWolfe Erskine, for the Democratic convention period.

Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Park Mackenzie of 1612 Wesley avenue, Evanston, held a reception last evening in their garden for their son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Innes Mackenzie.

The Friends of Opera executive committee will hold a meeting at a luncheon on Friday at the Arts club, with the chairman, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, presiding.

Girl Scouts' Committee.

Mrs. William S. Monroe will come into town next Monday from her summer estate at Wayne for a meeting at her Elm street house of the Girl Scouts' committee which is selling subscriptions, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Monroe, for the series of Monday night concerts to be held next fall at Orchestra hall. Part of the proceeds will go to the Girl Scouts' organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell of Winnetka with their four daughters, Frances, Helen, Nathalie, and Margaret, have gone to Winona, Minn., to be present today at the golden wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. Bell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Bell.

Mrs. Oliver C. Picher of Hubbard Woods has gone east with her daughter, Miss Muriel Picher, for the graduation of her son, William, from Exeter. Miss Picher came home recently from Westover and will return in the fall for another year of schooling before making her debut.

Miss Barbara Ann Sargent, daughter of the Chester F. Sargents of Winnetka, has completed her course at the Bishop school at La Jolla, Cal., and is with her parents for the summer. The young lady is not to make her debut until season after next, but she is undecided as yet as to where she will go to school next year.

Mrs. William D. McIlvane of 1100 Lake Shore drive will close her apartment on July 1 and will move out to the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest to be near her son and daughter-in-law, the John H. McIlvanes, and their children for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter of 1342 North Dearborn street and their small daughter, Josephine, will leave for the Atlantic seaboard in late July. Josephine has been spending week-ends with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ogden Green, at their lovely place on Locust road in Winnetka.

Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, resting up after her labors at the Republican convention, is not making any immediate plans for the holiday. She hopes to attend the Democratic sessions next week, and after that she'll just stay quietly at home until August, when she may go off somewhere for a change of scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike of 1100 Lake Shore drive, who opened their Lake Forest residence only a few weeks ago on their return from Europe, will close it again on July 6 and go to Greensway Court, their summer estate at Bar Harbor, for the rest of the summer.

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, who is at Tor Court, her summer place in Pittsfield, has returned there from a visit at Rumford Falls, Me., with her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wilder W. Kimball, so the Berkshires correspondent writes. He also gives us the information that the Delano De Windts of the Great Barrington colony had forty guests at a dinner dance in celebration of their sixteenth wedding anniversary recently. Mrs. De Windt is the former Ruth Church, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. C. Church of Great Barrington, and Mr. De Windt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Heyliger A. De Windt of Winnetka.

Politics Keeps Mrs. Baur Busy.

Mrs. Jacob Baur won't be able to enjoy her customary lengthy sojourn in Europe this year because of her duties as Republican national committeewoman, but she probably will find time for a short holiday later on in the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Bartle Bull [Rosemary Baur], who have been on a round the world honeymoon since their marriage last fall, are expected to return to Chicago in mid-August. They won't linger very long, however, before going to London to live.

Miss Marion Olcott, daughter of the Henry Chapman Olcotts of 325 Fullerton parkway, is back with her parents after a long illness at the Passavant hospital and is planning to depart in early July for visits with friends in New York and Connecticut.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont will sail for England tomorrow night on the White Star liner Majestic.

Mrs. Caspar Whitney gave a dinner party this evening to mark the twenty-first birthday of her daughter, Miss Faith Whitney.

Justice and Mrs. Pelham St. George Bissell have closed their residence at 270 Park avenue for the season and are at their summer home, Wayside, Merrick road, Freeport.

Mrs. Daniel H. Holmes and her granddaughter, Miss Polly Ingalls, have left for Virginia Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Sherman Fowler will sail on the Majestic tomorrow and pass the summer in Europe.

Accept Heart Defeats with Cheerful Grin

May Turn to Ha-Ha in Year or Two.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

When the foursome turns to a twosome, and one girl feels she lost in the shuffle, why should she hold a grudge against the winning hand?

There were Jane and Betty, for example. They were pals for years. Pals when they met Jack. At first Jack showed a preference for Jane's company. Betty had a boy friend. So a foursome grew and enjoyed evenings together. Presently Jack began to see in Betty attractions that Jane apparently lacked. And Jane had to try to hide her jealousy as she was sidetracked off into the company of the other boy member of the foursome.

Now, there aren't any more foursomes. Jack and Betty are making their own dates together. Jane is out of the picture, and the consolation prize she drew does not inspire her a particle.

When you're young, such disappointment is hard to take. Few of us have escaped the experience of seeing a favorite taken out from under our smarting eyes. Still, we've all managed to survive the experience somehow, though there were days when it may have been hard accepting the rival girl on the old cheerful basis. It's just one of those accidents one may or may not run into cruising down Love's highway. No one's to blame. Therefore, you cannot collect damages, so there's no use acting toward the winner as if she owed them.

Of course, it takes some living to understand that today's disappointment may be tomorrow's reason for rejoicing. That's why youth suffers its current pain so violently. It hasn't learned yet that in this gay business of love and attraction there are no recognized rules. A man meets a girl. He may think her charming. He may want to be out and about with her. If they lived on a desert isle, there wouldn't be any problem. But, isolation denied us, a second girl often appears on the horizon. She may not be half so charming, but she "gets" the boy without batting an eyelid. It just happens, and that's all there is to it.

The trick of the loser, however, is not to go down to defeat. Right around the corner may be the boy who makes the former Heart Pang look like a mild case of measles. Anyway, that's the way to run up the score for yourself.

County's Vacation Camp for Poor to Open Season July 5

Camp Reinberg, the country vacation center for underprivileged children and mothers, will open July 5, it was announced yesterday by President Emmett Whealan of the county board. The camp is in the Deer Grove forest preserve, near Palatine.

The first contingent will number 435 mothers and children. They will spend ten days at the camp, directed in recreation program by play leaders and Boy Scouts. Five more contingents will succeed them for ten day periods.

No appropriation was set up in the 1932 county budget for the maintenance of the camp, it being the hope of the county commissioners that the $17,000 needed for its operation could be raised from private sources. This proved impossible, and the board recently voted $6,000 from forest preserve and county bureau of public welfare funds, while the Illinois Emergency Relief committee will supply $7,500 more.

Small Patterned Crepe Flattering to Older Woman

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This dress was designed especially for the older woman, and few materials are so becoming as a small patterned silk crêpe. Navy blue and white with plain blue for the bodice and sleeves will be lovely, and sheer crêpes in floral or dotted prints are chic for afternoons.

The pattern, 2853, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material with 1⅛ yards of 39 inch contrasting.

Sorority Delegates.

Chicago Alumnæ chapter of Phi Beta, music and dramatic art sorority, will be hostesses on Saturday at the Medinah Athletic club at a luncheon to the delegates from various other chapters throughout the country, who are pausing in Chicago on their way to the national convention at Minneapolis. Mrs. Walter Schlundt is chairman of arrangements.

Opera Trustees Ponder Fate of Company Today

Consider Continuance on Present Pledges.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The board of trustees of the Chicago Civic Opera company will meet this noon, at which time one definite point and a considerable number of possibilities will be considered, all directly bearing on the future of the company.

The definite fact is the resignation of Samuel Insull as president, who thereby lays down the leadership that he took up when he organized the present company ten years ago.

Among the possibilities is the election of a successor to the presidential post. The name of Charles G. Dawes has been frequently mentioned as a choice for the leadership of the company during its present crisis.

There will be other points of discussion. One is whether there will be a renewed determination to complete the guaranty fund of $500,000. At last report it rested at slightly over $350,000.

Another is whether on the basis of $350,000 it will be possible to lower the rental paid by the opera company to the Twenty Wacker Drive corporation, so as to carry on with that degree of reduced expense.

Another possibility is to go ahead with the $350,000 pledged by shortening the season.

There still remain two more. One is the postponement of the season for a year, hoping that by next year conditions will have improved so that a new campaign can be made. The other is the complete dismissal of the company, the loss of the building, the permanent abandonment of a great musical, social, and cultural enterprise.

Not a trustee could be found yesterday who would predict which possibility would become a fact. Some were hopeful, some were anxious, some were frankly pessimistic. Several disclaimed any idea of what would happen. And the most silent of all was Gen. Dawes. His only statement has been that to comment on the situation would be unfair to the opera company.

Portrait of Rosenwald Presented to World's Fair

An oil portrait of the late Julius Rosenwald was received by Rufus Dawes, president of the 1933 World's Fair, at a ceremony yesterday afternoon in the exhibit hall of the exposition's Administration building where the canvas is hung. The painting was done by John Doctoroff. Leo Wormser presented the portrait on behalf of the Museum of Science and Industry, of which he is a trustee.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Needs Suit for Job.

"I am a salesman and have been out of work for over a year. I haven't been able to buy clothing all this time so what I am wearing now is very shabby. I've had an offer of a job which will be open to me as soon as I get something decent to wear. Do you think you could get me a suit, size 38? H. B."

It's very important that this man secure presentable clothing, for with it the depression may end for him. One of the suits hanging in your closet would solve his problem for him.

Young Child Needs Constant Watchful Eye

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A tragic news item appeared in the paper not long ago. It told of a little girl 4 years old, who fell off a private pier of her parents' estate and was drowned.

Whenever I read of an accident like that I think of the many arguments I hear on the subject of cultivating children's independence. And I also think of the many instances I meet of the carefree attitude of parents regarding the safety of their little children.

If you are a watchful mother and keep your eye on your small children all the time, some one is sure to accuse you of coddling or pampering. Also, you're quite apt to be compared with other mothers whose little children go wandering about unguarded, and they din at you, "See how well they get along!" Just as long as nothing happens, the latter is considered a good method for the child.

Well, to be honest, in nine cases out of ten nothing does happen. Sometimes this is due to the fact that a vigilant outsider is on the job and pulls them out of a roadway into safety, or escorts them back from a lake edge, or pulls them out of the water when in the noise and excitement of bathing hour their plight is unnoticed.

Sometimes the lack of accidents to young children is due to such intervention as this. And sometimes it is due to dumb luck, for in most cases, nine out of ten we'll say, these children of indifferent or Spartan mothers don't get hurt or killed, that's nine out of ten.

But in the tenth case they do get injured or disfigured. And then we all say, "Such neglect! How could any one be so negligent?" And we are full of blame. And rightfully so.

Eternal watchfulness is necessary to safeguard young children. We want to encourage independence, so we try not to be obvious in our vigilance. But water, boats, swamps, piers, traffic and cliffs they are not fitted to cope with. We do want our children to learn by experience, but the lesson should never be allowed to cost them disfigurement, their health, or their lives.

Only One Day Left to Write Letter to Sally

Will Pick 100 Guests for a Jolly Party.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

There's just another day in which to write a winning letter, boys and girls, if you want to attend the rollicking party we're planning to have at White City on next Thursday, a week from tomorrow. You know every letter must reach me no later than tomorrow morning, for it's then that I shall read them and select the hundred winners.

Did I tell you about the circus which is one of the attractions at the south side park this year? Well, we're going to see it between rides and I know we'll enjoy it a lot. I understand that the big thriller in this show is the Hustrell troupe, a group of aerialists who perform the most daring and breathtaking stunts high above the heads of the crowd and without the usual safety net.

Can you imagine a more crowded and exciting day? With shows, rides, a boat trip through miniature Venice, the thrill of the water scooters, the fun of Prehysteria, and all the other attractions and sensations, we'll be quite ready for a breathing space in the picnic grove, where we'll have cooling drinks and delicious refreshments served to us. All in all, it sounds to me like an ideal party.

Of course, you all want to come to this party—and who wouldn't when there are so many delightful things being planned for us. And I'd like to take all of you, but I must limit the number of my guests to one hundred, and I should like that hundred to be the boys and girls who would enjoy such a party most. So make it evident in your letter to me that you belong with this group.

The winners will be picked tomorrow and their names will appear in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. So hurry and seize this last opportunity to appear with that lucky list.

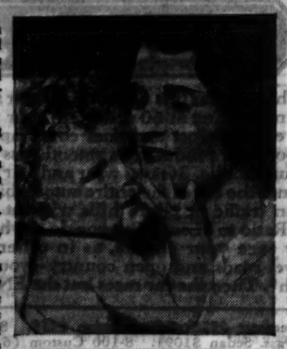
"Guessing" is Dangerous when baby's health is concerned

FEW mothers are able to distinguish between an infant's healthy cry and one of actual pain. Merely to guess about it is dangerous . . . A disregard of the "irritation cry" may alter your child's whole disposition.

Leading doctors now tell us that at least 66% of all babies are allowed to suffer needlessly the torture of Urea Irritation. The stinging uric acids form tiny, gritty crystals . . . invisible to the eye, yet harsh and cruel to tender skin.

Z. B. T. Baby Talcum is made precisely for this type of irritation. This mildly-medicated compound powder contains a special ingredient which not only draws every trace of moisture from the skin-folds, but actually neutralizes the dangerous acids . . . Z. B. T. soothes and heals, guards against infection and keeps your baby's skin sweet and healthy.

Protect your own skin, too, with Z. B. T. When perspiration causes painful chafing, this pure bland talcum brings blessed relief. Use it also for "burning feet"—after shaving—and as a dusting powder.



Your druggist or chain store sells Z. B. T. in three sizes—50c, 25c and 10c. Resent substitutes! Get a can of Z. B. T. today and test it yourself. Or, if you prefer, mail the coupon, with 4 cents to cover postage, and we'll gladly send you a full-size "Junior" can.

Their list totaled 175! More than 14 dozen—think of it! You've known Lux flakes were the safest, finest soap ever made, but did you realize how economical these marvelous tissue-thin diamonds are? Lux not only keeps nice things colorful and lovely as new—but it goes so far—does so much. Just look over the list one box washed:

35 pairs of stockings	60 handkerchiefs
10 brassieres	11 pairs gloves
10 slips	2 face cloths
9 bloomers	1 silk kimono
8 chemises	1 sweater
7 pajamas	1 smock
6 step-ins	1 blouse
4 vests	1 collar and cuff set
4 nightgowns	1 hat
2 singlettes	1 girdle

For economy's sake, avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. They often contain harmful alkali which weakens fabrics and fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

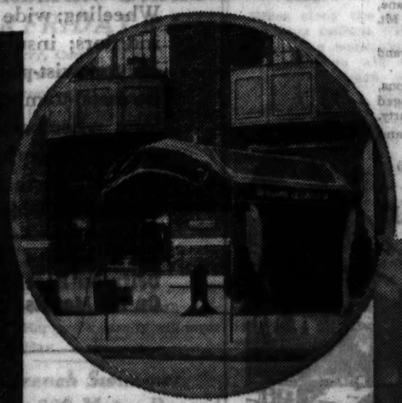
(Below) Miss Gretchen Wilson and Miss Tyler admiring a dainty chemise washed with Lux. Miss Wilson says: "Lux keeps stockings and lingerie new looking such a long time. And my, it's quick. You can do a whole bunch of silk things in no time at all!"



The Allerton House at 57th Street and Lexington Avenue, a smart residential apartment hotel for young college and business and professional women.

A little goes so far—it's economy to use LUX

STATE TOLD WHY IT SHOULD BUILD URBAN HIGHWAYS

Chicago Unable to Meet Traffic Demands.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—Public officials, civic leaders and technical experts told the state road commission today of the needs of traffic in Chicago and Cook county. They described the city as economically suppressed by inadequate motor transportation facilities, as a community drained by taxation so it is no longer able to provide future improvements for itself, and as a field for future state highway expenditures on a system of super urban highways where the costs, while large, would return benefits and revenue far in excess of expenditures.

There follow some high lights of talks made before the commission:

George Rossetter, president, Chicago Association of Commerce — Federal road aid must be reduced, the 12 million dollar township road tax eliminated, and the county road tax sliced because this nation cannot survive with 40 per cent of its income swallowed by governmental expenses. The state highway funds must be used in place of special assessments and bond issues to provide city terminals for our pavements.

Ald. John Massen, chairman, council traffic committee—The cost of congestion in Chicago, the delays and hazards of street travel, is approximately 150 million dollars a year. We can't afford to do without superhighways, fast arteries with continuous grade separation.

Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university — Speaking for pedestrians, heavy vehicular travel must be removed from antiquated surface pavements through built up areas. For example, Sheridan road traffic now passing the Evanston campus must be moved to an outer drive in Lake Michigan.

Eugene S. Taylor, manager, Chicago plan commission—If the state in its allocation of future highway funds will consider no more than its return in gas taxes from its expenditures, the construction of superhighways in Chicago will be justified.

Dr. Miller McClintock, director, Harvard bureau of traffic research and director of the Chicago traffic survey—A superhighway in Chicago will accommodate as many car miles as a rural pavement from Joliet to within eighty-six miles of Kansas City, so it is therefore worth as much as such a rural road.

George Barton, engineer, Chicago Motor club—Automobile owners of Chicago are paying $21,000,000 a year to the state highway department and to date not a penny has been spent in the city. For the state bond issue system, now being completed and without a mile in Chicago, the motorists of this city have paid $103,000,000 and will pay $131,000,000 more before the bonds are retired.

Maj. George Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent—The cost of a thorough traffic facility in a city should be financed by revenue from the traffic that operates on the facility. The state, with its gasoline excise, should pay the entire cost of a municipal extension of a state highway, and the county gasoline funds should pay the entire cost of a county highway extension into the city.

Senator E. J. Hughes, deputy commissioner of public works, in behalf of Mayor Cermak—Traffic facilities within cities are required not only by residents of these cities but by all of the motorists of the state.

The speakers presented statistics and engineering data in support of their statements—vehicle counts, stop watch test drives, financial estimates, maps and diagrams and reports. These were filed with the commission.

NEGROES TO PLAN PARTICIPATION IN WORLD'S FAIR

Participation in Chicago's 1933 World's Fair will be discussed by Negro leaders tomorrow night at a public meeting at the Appomattox club, 3632 South Park way. The gathering is sponsored by the colored citizens' World's Fair council, composed of representatives from Negro organizations in the city.

The council has joined with the research department of the Chicago Urban league in a search for historical data and information about the contributions of the Negro race to music, art, literature, science, and industry. Besides exhibits on the exposition grounds, various activities are being planned for Negro communities during the fair.

The social and civic department of the Chicago Urban league, under the direction of Dr. Charles M. Thompson, has begun a program of beautification of Negro communities for the World's Fair. The plans will be carried out by neighborhood clubs.

Thanks to a discovery made from an imported product your foot troubles may be quickly ended.

Ice-Mint as this preparation is called is said to shrivel up hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful. Think of it: only a touch or two of Ice-Mint and real foot-joy is yours.

There is not one bit of pain or soreness when applying it or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real secret of fine, healthy feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand all day. Try it. Just ask in any Drug store for Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot comfort really is. There is nothing better.

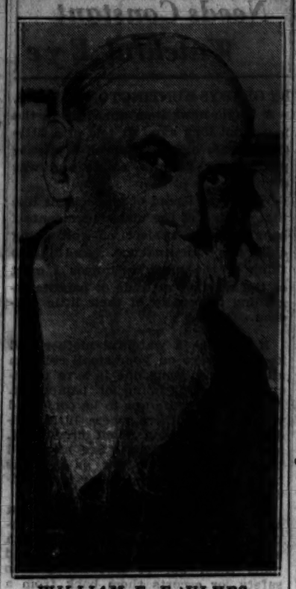
CLAIMS ESTATE



WILLIAM E. FOULKES.

Patrolman David Haynes, a veteran of the police force, was cross-examined at length yesterday in the suit of William E. Foulkes, 74 years old, for a share in the $3,500,000 estate of the late Capt. Edward D. Morrison.

Foulkes claims to be the son of Capt. Morrison by Mary Pranga of Akron, O., whom he claims the former sea captain married three-quarters of a century ago. His claim on the estate was denied by Probate Judge Horner and the appeal from that ruling is being heard by a jury before Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr.

Haynes was questioned regarding the conversations which, he testified on Monday, he had held with Capt. Morrison in 1907 in the back room of Kramer's saloon, 35th street and Cottage Grove avenue. At that time, Haynes testified, Capt. Morrison told him that his wife's maiden name had been Mary Pranga and that they had had a son.

ROBS MOTHER AS SHE PUTS CHILD TO BED

Mrs. Marguerite Holman, 2020 Morse avenue, wife of John E. Holman, a sales manager, was putting her daughter, Marguerite, 9 years old, to bed last night when a flashlight was suddenly played on her face.

"This is a robbery," said a voice. The speaker held the flashlight. The child screamed and he tried to quiet her. Then he took a wedding ring and a diamond ring from Mrs. Holman and $20 in cash. He returned the wedding ring, valued at several hundred dollars, but kept the other one, which cost $3,500, and fled.

During the night a Negro burglar broke into the home of William H. Harris, 1139 Keystone avenue, River Forest, vice president of the Peters Trimming company. He ransacked the first floor, arousing Dorothy, 19 month old daughter of the Harrises, who was asleep on the second floor.

Then he descended to the basement, where he encountered Miss Birdie Dean, 19 years old, the maid. He struck her on the head when she screamed and fled without loot.

RELIEF GARDENS TO GIVE FOOD TO 1,500 FAMILIES

Two large tracts of county forest preserve land will be yielding fresh vegetables in a few weeks for 1,500 needy families now being fed by the joint emergency relief fund, according to Walter H. Hoyt, secretary of the relief fund garden committee.

Unemployed heads of worthy families are supplied street car tokens with which they ride each morning to 22d street and 48th avenue, at which point trucks and buses donated by several large department stores and other concerns take them to work on the county garden plots near 1st avenue in Maywood.

All of the crops raised will be the property of those working the garden plots, each of which is 50x150 feet in size, Hoyt said.

CITY THREATENS TO CONTRACT FOR STREET CLEANING

2,300 Strikers Warned They May Lose Jobs.

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, indicated yesterday that the city will let out street repair and cleaning work and garbage collection to private contractors if the strike of 2,300 street department workers is continued. Authority to contract for the services is contained in the 1932 city budget.

The strike was called Monday night by John W. Garvey, representative of the International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers' union, because no salaries have been paid the workers since April 15. Approximately 2,000 other city workers have been forced into idleness by the strike.

"The present budget," said Commissioner Sprague, "provides authority to collect garbage and rubbish and to do street repair work, either by city day labor or by contract. A strike of city day labor forces would make it necessary to let contracts for this service which would result in the loss of jobs by those on strike. If the strike continues, the city will be obliged to take these steps as a health measure.

"These employés have had one more pay day than all other classes of city employés. The city is without funds and unless the banks or the federal government loan the city money it is helpless to pay salaries promptly. By striking these employés have not helped themselves nor the city.

"I understand the strike was called without referring it to the laborers who are affected. The salary of the person calling the strike will continue, as it is paid for by the men, while the laborers will lose their pay during the strike."

The commissioner asked residents to burn their garbage and combustile wastes while the strike lasts. It is believed that it will terminate Friday when, it is expected, all city employés will receive two weeks' pay.

COURT SAVES VOLPE FROM DEPORTATION

Anthony [Mops] Volpe, Capone lieutenant and public enemy, was saved from deportation yesterday by a ruling of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The opinion overruled a decision of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who dismissed habeas corpus proceedings in behalf of Volpe after the hoodlum had been ordered deported by the department of labor.

The deportation warrant was based on a three day trip to Cuba, which Volpe made in 1929. He reëntered the country via Key West and told an inspector that he was a naturalized citizen. The government held that the statement constituted entry without inspection, a deportable offense because Volpe had a criminal record. The court of appeals held that Volpe was guilty of nothing worse than telling a falsehood. The criminal record, a 30 day sentence for counterfeiting war savings stamps, was not a ground for deportation, the opinion said.

"If the false statement of his citizenship tended to divert or limit the investigation of the inspector, nevertheless from this record it did not divert his investigation from any fact which would have raised a lawful bar to his reëntry," the opinion said.

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson indicated that he would ask a rehearing before the Appellate court, and if refused, would consult with the attorney general concerning an appeal to the United States Supreme court.

FREE STATE GIVES YEAR'S MORATORIUM TO IRISH FARMERS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 21.—(AP)—A year's moratorium has been granted by the Free State government to farmers whose land annuity payments are in arrears. Only current annuities will be collected during the year's grace, and this will be taken in installments beginning in May.

The land annuities were included in the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 creating the Free State and are reimbursements for land turned over to Irish farmers by the British.

The new Republican president, Eamon De Valera, has announced that the annuities will not be turned over to the British government as heretofore, but has announced his willingness to arbitrate the payments before an impartial court. Great Britain disagreed when he stipulated that the arbiters should not be limited to residents of the British empire.

Payments of £1,500,000 [currently about $5,475,000] will fall due on June 30, and President De Valera has announced they will be withheld.

BARES PAYMENTS TO DEFENDANTS IN GRAFT TRIAL

Ralph A. Hanna, an investigator who examined the books of the Electrical Contracting company, took the stand as a state's witness yesterday in the trial of an official of the company and four former city employés, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the city on lighting contracts.

Hanna testified in the Criminal court of Judge John Prystalski and produced checks totaling $5,800 which were paid by the contractors to the former city employés on trial in the case. The defendants are Harry A. Johnson, president of the contracting concern, and four former employés of the department of gas and electricity—John Muerling, who was a city engineer; Eugene A. Quinn, inspector; Frank Wargoske, stockkeeper, and Joseph Duffy, record clerk.

Though fictitious names were used on the checks, the defense stipulated that they were issued to the defendants when the state offered to produce handwriting experts to substantiate the claim. The checks were in four sets of $1,450 each. The first set was issued to John F. Murphy. The defense stipulated that the signature was really that of Muerling. The second set was issued to "Leonard Olson," a name used by Duffy. Quinn was "Earl King" on the checks and Wargoske was "William Mackey," it was stipulated.

Before the check testimony was introduced, Prosecutors Charles Lounsbury and Charles Mueller clashed with the defense concerning the testimony of Ivar Peterson, a consulting engineer employed by the citizens' association to investigate the job.

Questioned by the state, Peterson testified that even if the contracting company had done the job properly and not cheated on material, an excess profit of $500,000 would have been realized. The defense objections to this testimony were sustained by Judge Prystalski. The prosecutors took an exception to the court's ruling and were given until today to find law to substantiate their claim that the testimony is admissible.

After Peterson was withdrawn Shelby Singleton, secretary of the citizens' association, told briefly of starting the investigation which resulted in the trial. Previously witnesses had testified that the work was not done according to specifications and that the job had been shorted in materials.

The state's case is nearly completed.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

K. O. Milt Gaston yesterday employed arm and bat to become the main man in the joyous matter of socking the Philadelphia Athletics. Milt's part in a 3 to 1 White Sox triumph was casting a six hit game, driving in the winning run with a double and scoring a plush marker for good measure.

The contest was a drama special in more ways than one. Rube Walberg allowed only one man to reach second in the first six innings and got out of his first sweat through a protested decision in the seventh. But in the eighth he went down in a shower of base hits, even though he was able to strike out two men in the course of the rioting.

But the drama didn't end with the Sox three-run outbreak in the eighth. In the A's ninth, after Cochrane and Simmons had been retired, Foxx and Haas singled for hits No. 5 and 6 off Gaston, and Miller reached first to fill the bases when Hayes fumbled his easy grounder. The game ended, however, when Hayes threw out Bishop.

That Eighth—O, Boy!

Getting back to the eighth inning heroics: Sullivan started the inning by perpetrating his second strikeout, but Luke Appling knocked his second hit, a single to center. Charley Berry then whanged a triple to right center, scoring Appling with the tying run. Gaston then doubled over third, scoring Berry with the winning run. Seeds batted for Funk and fanned, but Hayes singled to center, scoring Gaston. Selph forced Hayes.

The A's were unable to group two hits in the same inning until two were out in the ninth. Cochrane doubled with two out in the first for the only extra base smack off Gaston. Cramer and Foxx had two singles each and Haas had one.

Appling, shoved into the lineup through the benching of Kress, doubled to start the third and was the only Sox to reach first until Hayes started things in the seventh.

Hits Were Scarce.

In the third the A's got their lone run around with no more hitting than one single. Dykes walked and moved to second on Walberg's sacrifice. Williams popped to Hayes, but Cramer singled to right center, scoring Dykes. Hodapp made a nice running catch of Cochrane's fly.

Neither the A's nor the Sox could make a hit in the fourth and fifth innings, but Cramer led off the sixth with his eighth hit in nine times at bat. Cochrane then hit into a double play and Fothergill backed up to the scoreboard to pull down Simmons' drive.

Gaston was thrown into a jam in the seventh when Appling picked up Foxx's easy grounder and threw the ball to the boxes, Foxx reaching second. Jimmy took third while Sullivan and Gaston were sinking Haas. McNair tapped to Gaston and Foxx was out at the plate, Gaston to Appling to Berry, McNair reaching second on the maneuver. Selph threw out Dykes.

They Argue a Bit.

Hayes was the second Chicagoan to reach first base when he opened the seventh with a single to center. He advanced to second on Selph's sacrifice. Fothergill scratched a single off Walberg's glove, Hayes holding second. Hodapp shot a grounder at Dykes, who threw to Williams to force Fothergill. Fothergill took Williams out of the play, preventing a throw to Foxx for a double play. Base Umpire Guthrie called Hayes safe on third and Hodapp safe on first.

This brought a loud yelp from Capt. Eddie Collins, who claimed Fothergill had not been sufficiently subtle in taking Williams out. Capt. Eddie prevailed upon Mr. Guthrie to consult Umpire in Chief Geisel. Mr. Geisel reversed Mr. Guthrie's decision and Hodapp was declared doubled to retire the side. Manager Fonseca filed notice of protest, but of course the protest will not be pressed in view of the later developments.

CUBS' BATS PLAY TUNE ON BANDBOX WALLS; WIN, 12-3

Drive Out Fourteen Hits to Whip Phils.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21. — The Phillies discovered to their sorrow today that there are others in this world who can annihilate the ball in the so-called Baker bandbox park. The Cubs furnished the lesson with one of their bimonthly batting sprees which produced an easy 12 to 3 triumph and fourteen hits for a total of 24 bases. The affair also furnished the first place Chicagoans with another lap over the pursuing but weakening Braves, who now are two and one-half games behind.

The crushing attack launched by the Cubs wasn't the only thing that caused the reckless Quakers almost two hours of misery. Their sufferings were materially increased by the presence of Pat Malone. He didn't give them a chance to get started on any of their usual tears; that is, none of them except Chuck Klein, who began his day's work with homer No. 19, good for two runs, and who later, by virtue of a double, was able to carry in the only tally picked up by the enemy in the last eight innings.

Klein's Homer Looks Big.

The Cubs set about their chores as if the two runs accounted for by Klein's homer might prove insurmountable. For three innings the Chicagoans didn't tune in with a hit off Ray Benge, a nemesis of long standing. But once they started they worked fast. They cut loose with four drives in the fourth, two of them homers by Johnny Moore and Gabby Hartnett, and a cluster of five runs was the result. Benge also was frisked for a run in the fifth and then retired. The Cubs regained their wind toward the finish and concluded with two more wild attacks on John Berly, who once served with the Giants.

Moore and Hartnett with their homers, each with a man on base, probably thought they had a big day for themselves, but officially they had to concede honors to Riggs Stephenson, who always is around when any hitting is done. The gentleman from Alabama was at the plate five times and his first appearance was the only one that didn't produce a dividend. In his four subsequent trips he reeled off singles, each while a rally was in progress. He drove in the first of the five in the fourth. He drove in the one scored in the fifth. He helped to start the five run blast in the eighth and in the ninth hammered in the final tally of the day.

Malone Too Tired.

Malone's own indolence contributed to the two runs picked up by the Phillies in the first inning. For a starter he deflected G. Davis' drive so that Herman could reach it and

THE LAST OF THE GRAND OLD MEN

Seventy years old, 32 years the Athletics' manager and still in the thick of the fight every day. Connie Mack, the last of the old school from which such illustrious baseball men as Hughie Jennings, John McGraw, Miller Huggins, and the late Charles A. Comiskey graduated, never misses a game his crack Philadelphia Macks play. Connie is trying for his tenth American league championship and his fourth in a row. He has won more pennants than any other American league manager and needs one more to tie McGraw's record of four straight and ten in a career. Connie won his first pennant in 1902. This is the latest picture of the gaunt, elongated Philadelphian, taken as he directed the Macks against the White Sox yesterday.

CARNERA'S WRIT TIES UP TITLE FIGHT PURSE

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling's purse for his heavyweight championship fight with Jack Sharkey was attached tonight. Late today an effort to have Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente vacate a warrant attaching $25,000 of the German's earnings failed.

The attachment order was obtained ten days ago by Primo Carnera, giant Italian boxer, who alleges that the German broke a contract to fight him two years ago. Carnera has filed a suit for $100,000.

BOOTH'S HOMER WITH 3 ON WINS FOR YALE, 4 TO 3

New Haven, Conn., June 21.—(AP)—Albie Booth, Yale's three-sport star, chose commencement day to hit a home run with the bases full this afternoon, enabling the Elis to win 4 to 2, the first baseball game in the annual series with Harvard.

Harvard	200 000 000—2 5 1

HARVARD, YALE OARSMEN DRILL FOR FRIDAY RACE

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 21.—[Special.]—Yale's varsity crew leisurely paddled three miles up the Thames river today in preparation for its race with Harvard Friday. Coach Ed Leader led the drill and the frosh crew and the junior varsity eight also worked out.

HARVARD SPEEDS DRILLS.

Red Top, Conn., June 21.—[Special.]—Unexpected drills were given to the Harvard crews today, the varsity going through the hardest practice for the Yale two day regatta which will open Thursday. Harvard's varsity will meet Yale on Friday.

Taris, French Swimmer, Breaks 800 Meter Record

CANNES, France, June 21.—(AP)—The French swimmer, Taris, bettered the listed world's record for the 800 meter free style event today, being clocked in 10 minutes 15 3-5 seconds. The listed record of 10:16 2-5 was held by the Japanese, Mekino.

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM TO TRAIN AT INDIANA LAKE

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Gloves squad will go into training July 10 for the international boxing matches with the champions of Germany. Lake Wawasee, Ind., has been chosen as the training site and the team will be quartered at the Spink-Wawasee hotel on the north shore of the lake.

Every effort will be made to condition eight fighters who can win for America against the German huskies at Soldiers' field July 26. To that end the eight 1932 Golden Gloves champions will be sent to Lake Wawasee. They will be backed up by at least eight others, one in each of the weight divisions, and possibly additional boxers in those classes which need bolstering.

Name Personnel Later.

No champion will be eliminated from the international fights unless he is unable to make weight or another boy demonstrates positively that he is the better. The personnel of the team will be announced later.

Lake Wawasee is located in the north east corner of Kosciuszko county. It is the largest lake in Indiana, approximately 10 miles long with an average width of two miles. The Spink-Wawasee hotel, the Golden Gloves headquarters, is three miles from the town of Syracuse, located 117 miles from Chicago on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

By motor, the distance is considerably farther. The shortest automobile route is via South Bend, Elkhart and Goshen, but an alternative route, which is less traveled, follows U. S. 30 to Warsaw, the county seat of Kosciuszko county, and then north and east to Wawawsee.

Not Too Far Away.

The training site was selected after a survey of Wisconsin, western Michigan, Illinois and Indiana lakes. The selection was dictated to some extent by distance, since it was deemed best not to send the squad too far from its home base.

Wawasee also meets the requirements that the squad train far enough from Chicago so that the boys will not be hampered in any way in their training. The Spink-Wawasee hotel offers excellent facilities for conditioning and sufficient entertainment and amusement so that the hours not spent on the road or in the ring will not become boresome.

Adjacent to the hotel, which fronts the lake, is a golf course. Tennis, boating and swimming will provide other activities, the pursuit of which should bring the Chicago boxers to their best condition in preparation for the German bouts. The hotel is ideally located so that nothing can disturb rigid observance of the training regimen prescribed by coach and trainer.

Ring to Be in Garage.

Hikes along the shore or through the rolling Indiana hills will comprise the morning workouts. In the afternoon the boys will adjourn to the large hotel garage, where the ring will be pitched. When the double doors at each end of the garage are thrown open and all the windows are raised, the boxers will have the same benefit as if the ring were outdoors, and rain or chill weather will not interfere with the drills.

At least one position on the team now is open. Al Soukop, flyweight champion, no longer can make the 112 pound weight. He has been advanced to the batamweight class. The other champions who are assured of places on the squad are: Leo Rodak, 118 pounds; Joe Roman, 126 pounds; Henry Rothler, 135 pounds; Johnny Phagan, 147 pounds; Charles Nelgo, 160 pounds; Vernon Miller, 175 pounds, and Adam Smith, heavyweight.

14 Days of Training.

If any of these boys cannot make weight in their respective classes, they will be permitted to try for the next heavier class.

The squad will return to Chicago on July 25, the day before the fights at Soldiers' field. This program will permit 14 days of training at the lake.

His Vote Decides

HOW CAN HE WIN RUNNING AWAY? SCHMELING ASKS

New York, June 21.—(AP)—Tanned, black browed Max Schmeling, baffled, disconsolate, sat on the rubbing table in his dressing room tonight, trying to reason out how he could have lost the heavyweight championship to Jack Sharkey.

Over and over again Schmeling, trying to grin and take it gracefully, said to himself and the crowds that jammed in on him:

"If some one beats me, I don't care. I say, 'The better man he wins,' and that is all right.

"But how can Sharkey beat me running away all the time?"

Jack Only Playing, Max.

His manager, Joe Jacobs, in a towering rage over what he charged was a "plot" to steal the championship from them, tried to console him. The dozens of friends and writers, who agreed almost to a man that the bout had not even been close, patted his shoulder and assured him he had lost the decision but had not been beaten.

Schmeling needed none of their assurances.

"Sharkey was only playing with his punches," he said. "He runs away all the time. Never did he hurt me.

"Only a few times I hit him hard, but I know he is hurt. I can feel that he knows I am beating him. But they give him the decision.

Jacobs Accuses Referee.

"Well, I am a young fellow. I have plenty of time. I fight Sharkey again. Now I will telephone my mother in Berlin. She will be waiting. Every one will be waiting."

"I knew two weeks ago," he fumed, "that Smith was going to referee and I knew all along they were going to steal the title if he did.

"A week ago I told newspaper men that if a 'certain referee' went into the ring I would not let Schmeling leave the dressing room, so certain was my information. But the New York state boxing commission kept assuring me we'd get an even break.

"Well, look what happened. The only mistake I made was in not publishing the name of the referee two weeks ago when I knew what was coming off."

SURPRISED WHEN JUDGE, REFEREE VOTE FOR HIM

Nearly Offered Max Congratulations.

Writers Pick Schmeling

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey's victory over Max Schmeling for the world heavyweight title tonight aroused more fuss in the working press section than took place during all 15 rounds inside the ropes.

A poll of newspaper opinion showed a big majority convinced Schmeling should have received the decision and kept his title. Twenty-three out of twenty-five writers, in an Associated Press roundup, showed a consensus of eight rounds for Schmeling, six for Sharkey and one even.

The disagreement with the official verdict was the sharpest in any title fight in years.

BY PAUL GALLICO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—Jack Sharkey was voted the new heavyweight champion of the world before 70,000 at the Madison Square Garden bowl at Long Island City tonight after one of the dullest heavyweight fights in the history of the ring. There was no fighting during the 15 rounds, nothing but careful long range boxing.

Sharkey thought he had lost and went to Schmeling's corner to congratulate him. When Joe Humphries announced a new champion, Sharkey almost keeled over.

No Thrills for Fans' Money.

Whether Schmeling was swindled out of his title will be something to argue about deep into the long winter nights. The one thing that will permit of no argument is that the spectators who had paid high prices in hard times for a thrill didn't get it.

Sharkey refused to fight, and Schmeling, not in the same physical condition that he was in Cleveland when he stopped Willie Stribling, showed nothing resembling his knockout punch. A couple of times he whipped spray from Sharkey's wet hair with solid rights to the jaw, but just what thrill the patrons in the $10 and $15 seats got from this is questionable. They probably didn't even see it.

Nine Rounds for Max.

My score for the evening's clowning was nine rounds for Schmeling, five for Sharkey and one even. I couldn't give Sharkey as challenger much credit for his steady retreat, even though he scored points with flicks of his left as he backed around the ring. Schmeling's steady pursuit, the sting in his left and right which eventually closed Sharkey's left eye, and his strong fighting finish were enough to give him the fight.

On the other hand, Sharkey's boxing was brilliant, cool, accurate. He never lost his head. He made only one mistake, a missed right lead that got him a good punching. He kept his hands in Schmeling's face all of the way. He didn't whip him or hurt him. He merely annoyed him. The fight by rounds:

FIRST ROUND—Sharkey took the aggressive with a left hook to the head, but Schmeling met him on the next exchange with a right to the face. They sparred carefully and then came to close quarters exchanging left jabs to the face. Jack was trying to feint Max, but when they finally came close it resulted only in a clinch. Max was careful and Sharkey was outscoring him with light taps that meant nothing. Max crossed a right, but it hit Jack's shoulder. They measured each other carefully, but Max beat Jack to the punch with a left to the chin and in the next exchange Jack hooked both hands to Max's middle and then lifted a left lightly to the head. They came together again and Jack landed a straight right to the heart and then lifted it to the head without a return.

GALLANT KNIGHT DASHES TO WIN AND NEW RECORD

Other Stars Eat His Dust in 1:35 3-5 Mile.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Gallant Knight, the big black flyer from Audley farm in Virginia, holder of one world's record, nearly cracked another one at Washington Park yesterday when he galloped a mile in 1:35 3-5 to win the Great Northern Hotel handicap.

It was the fastest mile run anywhere in the world this year, and shattered the Washington Park track record, which was 1:36. It was within three-fifths of a second of the world's record held by Jack High. He ran a mile at Belmont Park in 1:35.

If Spanish Play, Pittsburgher, Dr. Freeland, or any of the others who finished behind him had offered some competition coming down the stretch, Gallant Knight might have shaded the world's record. But he was winning handily, two lengths in front a furlong from home and still a length and a half in the van of Spanish Play when it ended.

Jockey Saves the Knight.

So Jockey Schutte let the Knight take it a bit easy in the late stages and because he did it the world's mark remained safe.

The Great Northern handicap was a tune up for the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap, a $10,000 race, which is to wind up Washington Park's early summer season on Saturday afternoon. The Knight was expected to win for he was made the favorite and was at odds on at $3.60 for a $2 ticket.

He was at the quarter in 23 seconds, at the half in 45 2-5, sailed past the three-quarter pole in 1:10 1-5, then finished out the mile in 1:35 3-5.

Forget That Suburban Handicap.

This was the first start Gallant Knight had made since his disgraceful showing in the Suburban handicap in New York, in which he finished last. But it was such a sensational showing that the stars from the east, which are beginning to invade Chicago for the Arlington Park season, had better look to their laurels or they will be gazing at the flying heels of Gallant Knight in a lot of rich stake events. He always has been at his best at Arlington.

Gallant Knight carried 122 pounds, one less than he will be asked to shoulder in Washington Park's closing event. He was pulled up soon after the race ended but, Pittsburgher, which had finished third back of Spanish Play, worked on out a mile and a quarter in the sensational time of 2:03 2-5, which indicates he may be hard to beat at a mile and a quarter.

The world's record which Gallant Knight holds is for six and a half furlongs. He ran that distance in 1:16 1-5 at Churchill Downs on Derby day in 1931. If he keeps to his present form, he will make many thousands of dollars in stake money during the next few weeks.

Dyak Wins in Last Jump.

Another thrilling battle came in the Manos Purse, when Dyak, owned by Fred A. Burton of Chicago, got up in the last jump to beat the Audley farm stable's Higher by a nose. Dyak came from quite a way back but skimmed the rail all the way under Corbett's well judged ride and saved enough ground to win after running the six furlongs in 1:11 3-5.

Higher had been the hottest kind of a tip, but it took all that he had to conquer Miss Marr, which had been far in front at one stage. After Higher finally poked his nose in front, Dyak came up just in time to trim him, although the margin of victory was very small. Dyak's mutuel price was $10.08 for a two dollar ticket.

Owner Burton had made a hurried trip from New York to see his colt win.

JACOBS WILL SEE JUSTICE IS DONE --MAX'S MOTHER

BERLIN, June 22.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—German radio listeners early today heard solacing words from Mayor James J. Walker of New York over the outcome of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

"In my humble opinion Schmeling should have won," was the message delivered by the mayor through the microphone.

Schmeling's mother took the outcome to heart.

"Yes, I heard the fight—every bit of it—and I heard, too, that my son, and only my son, is the world champion," she said in a quavering voice. "I telegraphed him that, too.

"There must be something wrong and I am sure Mr. Jacobs will see that justice will be done.

"My son is still world champion, I am firmly convinced."

JACK MODEST IN VICTORY

New York, June 21.—(AP)—The long road down which Jack Sharkey has been swinging his fists for the last eight years has turned for him.

"It was a long, hard trip up to tonight," the new heavyweight champion exclaimed calmly, once he had gained his dressing room, which bulged with scores of his friends.

Sharkey was wildly excited when the officials gave their decision in his favor and Announcer Joe Humphries declared him the new titleholder. As police pushed him through the crowd to his quarters he regained the calmness that so ably aided him during his bout with Schmeling.

He quietly accepted congratulations, accepted their pats on the back, and then addressed them as follows:

"It was a long, hard trip up to tonight. At last, after eight years, my ambition has been realized. I am returning to Boston the heavyweight champion of the world, the title that our great John L. Sullivan lost forty years ago.

Return Fight?. Sure.

"Schmeling was very hard to fight. I was discouraged many times during those fifteen rounds, but I kept right in there, didn't I? And I didn't blow up either."

Sharkey was asked if he would give Schmeling a return bout.

"I'd be glad to," Jack said. "Anytime there is some money in it. You know I fought for bare training expenses. I took the short end to get another crack at Max. He will have to do the same if we meet again."

Sharkey was dressing as he talked. Several times photographers interrupted him. These folk generally annoy Sharkey but not tonight. He granted every request to pose, giving them his profile, with the injured eye out of focus, to shoot at.

After dressing Sharkey gulped some ginger ale, tossed the bottle away and dashed for the door as he exclaimed, "I'm going back to Boston and I'm going right now. So long fellows."

STECHER DEFEATS PAT O'SHOCKER IN WRESTLING BOUT

Joe Stecher, Nebraska heavyweight wrestler, defeated Pat O' Shocker, Utah Irishman, in the windup of the wrestling show at the Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, last night with a body scissors in 22 minutes. Jim McMillen and Gino Garbaldi wrestled to a 30 minute draw in the semi-windup.

In the preliminaries Rudy Dusek pinned Willie Davis in 17 minutes 45 seconds; Hans Steinke defeated Lou Plummer in 7 minutes 22 seconds, and George Tragos won from Hans Baur in three minutes and 48 seconds.

Tonelli, May Win on Amateur Boxing Program

Laddie Tonelli, lightweight amateur boxer, and Frankie May, 128 pounder, triumphed last night on the weekly amateur program at Kerwin's stadium, Western and Devon avenues. Tonelli knocked out George Seelow, Milwaukee, in the third round and May was awarded a three round decision over Joe Roman, Joliet. Leo Rodak continued his winning way, defeating George Haberski in three rounds. Other results:

Heinrich Bock knocked out Bob Brown [1].
George Holden beat Mitchell Bennett [3].
Mike Ramis knocked out Steve Jonas [3].
Bill Trecst beat Walter Jers [3].
Phil Pernice stopped Phil Morris [3].
Gene Higgins beat Nestor Brusgmin [3].

Illinois Asks 3 Months' Duck Hunting Season

Springfield, Ill., June 21.—[Special.]—Ralph F. Bradford, director of the state department of conservation, today announced that federal authorities have been requested to give the state of Illinois a three month duck hunting season. The open season on waterfowl last year was limited to 30 days.

Scorers Give Max Nine Rounds.

Schmeling had won at least nine rounds by the score of many of the serious statisticians who sat in the press rows putting down chicken track jottings on sheets of paper to indicate jabs, hooks, swings, and blocked punches. Sharkey had clearly lost four of the last five rounds, which he fought with his left eye sealed almost shut and that side of his face grotesquely swollen.

Neither fighter was knocked down, neither one slipped down and, to give the men no more than their due, each man fought more than half the way with careful thought for what might be done to him if he let one fly. Schmeling was blocking Sharkey's hooks and swings for the head or drawing away to let them sail by or glance off.

Sharkey seemed to be fighting for his self-control at all times until the last round when he tore out of his corner swinging and apparently hoping to redeem a hopeless affair with one mad, lucky swipe. The swollen eye had reduced his visibility from the eleventh round on, and he had been taking a rather persistent beating about the head in this stage of the battle, although it need not be suspected that he was in danger of a knockout even then.

Schmeling Always Forcing.

GIANTS WAVE AT DEAN'S PITCHING; CARDS WIN, 5 TO 1

Dizzy Yields Six Hits and Fans Eight.

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—"Dizzy" Dean bolstered his claim for more pay today by shutting out the Giants up to the ninth inning, allowing only six hits and fanning eight as the Cardinals beat New York, 5 to 1. St. Louis pounded Mitchell with Gus Mancuso getting three straight hits, including a home run in the fourth. The Giants' string of 23 scoreless innings was broken when Mel Ott doubled and Frank Hogan singled.

DODGERS WHIP PIRATES, 9-2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 21.—[Special.]—Behind the steady pitching of Freddy Heimach the Dodgers hit with timeliness to win a 9 to 2 decision over Pittsburgh, here today. The victory sent them into a tie for third place with the Pirates. After the first inning Heimach pitched shutout ball and hammered the longest home run of the season at Ebbets field in the second to put his team in the lead. A single by Heimach later also brought in a run. Danny Taylor and Joe Stripp connected for homers.

REDS DEFEAT BRAVES, 9-3.

Boston, Mass., June 21.—[Special.]—The Cincinnati Reds enjoyed a batting spree today and hammered Ed Brandt and Bruce Cunningham for 16 hits to defeat the Boston Braves, 9 to 3. In five trips to the plate Babe Herman got four hits, including a home run. Ray Kolp yielded only seven hits, including homers by Berger and Worthington.

Beavers Make It Job for Tarzan to Fish Catarac

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Crow River, Upper Peninsula of Michigan, June 21.—Tarzan, the popular outdoor hero who can swing from tree to tree, was being paged this morning for lessons on how to get around on the Catarac river (pronounced Cat-a-raw) and fish for brook trout while hanging from a limb.

This Catarac, which flows into Lake Michigan south of the old logging settlement of Simmons, contains brook trout of all kinds but it takes the arboreal agility of a Tarzan to get through the jungle that the beavers have built up along the banks.

The Catarac is a clear cool stream of fairly good size, which has been taken over by the beavers. Dams have been erected and big pools formed. The trout thrive in the deep holes. The beavers logged and cut to their hearts' content. Now the water has receded, leaving a much smaller stream bordered by a regular tangle of logs, half fallen trees and brush resting in an expanse of sand and muck. But the stream pushes its way through several dams and thickets of down timber and finally empties into Lake Michigan.

In some places the dead and living trees are so thick that the hot June sun had a hard time getting to the fishermen swinging lures to the trout. The isolation of this rough setting seemed to whet the fishes' eagerness to strike. Good sized brook trout, ready for action, lurked under the cut banks and big logs.

If you could hang onto a tree with your left hand while fishing with the right, there was no doubt about a trout going into your creel.

Norwood Bard of Highland Park and Alex Macklin of Germfask stayed on the job and caught dandy messes of fish here but we didn't tarry long in this setting as we wanted another try at the Crow river, east of the Catarac.

MOON MULLINS—MAMIE'S LOSS, MOON'S GAIN

toss out the runner. Then Bartell poked one a bit to Pat's left. By taking a few steps he could have recovered easily, but he stood on the rubber and let Herman do the work. The latter didn't have a chance to keep Bartell from a hit. Then Klein, after missing two swings, slammed No. 19 well over the right field wall.

A single to right, the Cubs' first hit opened the fourth, but the inning didn't develop anything of promise until after two were out. English singled. Herman fanned and Cuyler was thrown out by Whitney. It remained for Stephenson to set the parade in motion. He dropped a single in left, and English scored. Moore ran his string to 2 and 2 before boosting his homer over the right field sign board for two more tallies. Grimm survived on a fumble by Mallon, and Hartnett then ripped off his circuit wallop into the distant left center field seats.

Stevie Helps Again.

Six Cubs had to go to bat to put together one run in the fifth, making it 6 to 2. It began with a pass to Malone, who was forced at second on English's bunt. Herman fouled out. Cuyler lined a long single against the fence in right center, English taking third. Then Stephenson did it again. He scratched a single past Hurst and English dashed home. Then Moore bounced into a force out, but Umpire Donnelly, had he looked closely and not taken the play for granted, would have seen that Mallon had run past the bag before receiving Bartell's throw.

Klein stepped into the party with his second hit in the third inning, but was nalled trying to stretch it into a double. He hit one of similar length with one out in the sixth and this time succeeded in beating the return throw to second. He also succeeded in scoring, the power being derived from Hurst's single, which whizzed past Malone's left ear. Malone bowled over the next two batters without delay. He also set down three in a row in the seventh, including a pinch hitter for Snipe Hansen, who for two innings had stopped his former mates without a hit.

Poor Mr. Berly.

As soon as Berly assumed the pitching task in the eighth the Cubs proceeded to make Malone's margin more secure. Cuyler led off with a single to short and Stephenson beat out a bunt. They moved along on Moore's sacrifice and scored on Grimm's double to the fence in right. After Hartnett had fanned, Hack doubled to the same spot, and Grimm registered. Hack hiked home on Malone's two bagger and a single by English scored Malone with the fifth and final run of the rally.

As a means of tapering off easily, the Cubs came up with another run in the ninth. Herman, who had been the only one unable to horn in on the free hitting, opened with a double and went to third on Cuyler's infield out. He scored on Stephenson's fourth single.

CUBS CHOOSE GRIMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21.—Burleigh Grimes who has had five days of rest since his 2 to 1 victory over the Giants, will try to suppress the Phils in the third of the Cubs' series tomorrow. Flint Rhem, the ex-Cardinal, will oppose his old mate. Rhem has won three in a row since his arrival here.

Bill Jurges was out of action today because of a slight infection in the shin wound caused when Lopez slid into him at Brooklyn almost two weeks ago. The wound was lanced last night and the patient expects to be fully recovered by tomorrow.

President William Veeck, who has been trailing the team around the east, moved over to New York tonight to be on hand tomorrow morning when the National league holds one of its summer meetings. Nothing of importance is on the fire.

There were about 2,500 on hand today and Uncle Sam's take on the first day of the 10 per cent amusement tax wasn't enough to buy new pens for a third class postoffice.

Cliff Heathcote made his debut as a Philly when he batted for Benge in the fifth inning. He rolled gently to Herman.

Cubs' Ladies' Day Ticket Rush Opens Today for July 1

The Chicago Cubs will accept requests for Ladies' day tickets today for the Ladies' day game with Cincinnati on Friday, July 1, at Wrigley field.

One ticket will be allotted to each applicant until the limit of 20,000 has been exhausted. Requests should be addressed to Ladies' ticket office, Wrigley field, and must contain an addressed, stamped envelope.

The federal amusement tax is now in effect and women are required to pay a 10 cent tax on free admissions. These tax tickets can be purchased only at the ball park prior to admission to Wrigley field.

In the Wake of the News

BASEBALL CHATTER.

WE Cub fans still have no license to become unduly cocky over ultimate possession of the National league pennant for 1932. Even a short slump could tumble Hornsby's hustlers from their top berth to fourth place or even out of the first division.

Still, the Cubs are in first place and so far have maintained that position in the east which in many seasons has proved a jinx stamping ground. Meantime, the season is nearing July 4. Baseball tradition is that the July 4 leader is the one to beat. That tradition is not tradition-proof, of course, but it offers opportunity for conversation and search of old records at any rate, and those old records are favorable.

So we Cub fans have at least license for being cocky on the present standing of the north siders. This particular brand of cockiness is the more warranted as the present lineup was not picked for such heights in advance of the season. Right now, the Cubs are fighting gamely. They have held this lead despite the fact that collective team batting in the last unofficial averages shows them again in eighth position, an early season berth from which they emerged to third in team batting.

Pitching is the chief factor with fielding a lesser one. Lonnie Warneke, rookie pitching sensation of the year, has been a "find" responsible for one quarter of Cub victories to date. Yet Hornsby has six hurlers available as starters. Now about that fielding. You've seen games tossed away by our eager but unseasoned fielders. But you also have seen them come back the very next day with brilliant defensive plays which also turned the tide. So this team is trying, never quitting. That's the quality enlisting fan support whatever the final pennant result.

Did She Prove It?

HTW:—Overheard a conversation between two women on the "L" train. Meeting unexpectedly, one exclaimed, "Why I hardly knew you, you're taking on weight, aren't you?" The other replied with surprise, "No, I'm NOT taking on weight. Just got off the scale at the corner drug store. Weighed exactly 127, same as before, and if you don't believe it, come on back and I will prove it to you."

W. X. Wayland.

Jurges to Herman to Grimm.

When Rome had its day and Caeser held sway,
There was plenty of action around;
A fast double play soon took him away
For Brutus was covering ground.
The grass cutting smashes of Cato and Cassius
Were grabbed by each Plebe with a vim;
Of Tinker and Evers and Zim.

When legends were spun and Pan was the son
Of a bloke who could run like a deer:
The Titans had fun when a battle was won,
They kicked the ump out on his ear.
Why go to Pompeii for a good double play,
You can fill every want, every whim,
Jurges and Herman and Grimm.

Parker Beats O'Connell in Western Net

Frank Parker, 16 year old Milwaukee schoolboy, led the field into the fourth round of the western tennis championship tournament at River Forest yesterday by eliminating George O'Connell, former Illinois and Indiana state champion, in straight love sets, 6-0, 6-0.

Parker kept the gallery in constant uproar by returning the best that his older and more experienced opponent could offer. He allowed O'Connell few points and no games.

George Lott, the tournament favorite, easily eliminated three Chicagoans. F. J. Hughes was the first to fall before Lott's back and forehand drives, 6-3, 6-2. He was followed by Richard Cochran, 6-0, 6-0, and John Baumann, 6-0, 6-1.

Shostrom Scares Stoefen.

The closest approach to an upset came late in the day, when little Johnny Shostrom, the other 16 year old entrant, forced Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, Cal., to employ all his speed and cunning to score a 6-4, 10-8 victory. Shostrom, a product of Hamilton park, kept the gallery of 500 sitting until after seven o'clock. Stoefen, the fourth seeded player, ended the battle by breaking through service when Shostrom had the affair at set point.

Few of the other favorites were unduly pressed although Thane Halsted of Chicago forced Gilbert Hall of East Orange, N. J., the tournament's second ranking player, before losing, 6-3, 7-5.

Catherine Wolf Wins.

Harris Coggeshall, Junior Coen, Wray Brown, Doc Barr, Lefty Bryan, Scott Rexinger, and Fritz Mercur, all seeded, likewise entered into the fourth round.

Play in the women's division opened rather quietly, with Catherine Wolf, the defending champion winning, 6-2, 6-2, over Gertrude Herrick in the only important match.

J. C. Ryan, 3 Eye Official, Is Found Dead in Chair

Peoria, Ill., June 21.—(AP)—John C. Ryan, 53, vice president of the Three Eye baseball league, was found dead in his home tonight. He apparently had died from heart disease.

Ryan had been listening to a radio broadcast of the Sharkey-Schmeling prize fight with a friend, Max Broderick, at the Ryan home shortly before his body, slumped in a chair, was found by his nephew, Donald O'Mears. Broderick, a real estate operator and politician, had left Ryan only five minutes before.

The baseball man, who also was president of the Peoria Baseball Fans' association, had not been ill and had been at his place of business, a cigar store, all day as usual.

Tigers' Rally in 9th Defeats Red Sox, 3-2

Detroit, Mich., June 21.—(AP)—George Uhle, Detroit's pinch-hitting pitcher, slammed out a triple in the ninth inning today to spoil the afternoon for Young Johnny Michaels' Boston southpaw, and give the Tigers a 3 to 2 victory. It was the second victory in a row over the Red Sox. Uhle, batting for Elon Hogsett, who pitched the last two innings, hit after Rogell had doubled and Hayworth had gone to first on an error. Lawrence ran for Hayworth and followed Rogell across the plate.

The Senators scored five runs in the eighth, four off Russell before he was chased from the mound. Russell had won five games from the Senators last year and one this season.

CARDINALS BUY D'ARCY FLOWERS FROM MILLERS

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—(AP)—D'Arcy [Jake] Flowerr, infielder of the Minneapolis club in the American association, has been purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals, Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals, announced in a telegram received here tonight from Columbus, O. The price paid was not announced.

The deal was made by the Cardinals to strengthen their infield, which has been weakened by injuries to regular players.

Par Beats Back Attacks of Open Entrants Again

New York, June 21.—[Special.]—With practically every American golfer of consequence playing the national open championship course in practice, par of 70 was inviolate again today.

The Fresh Meadow Country club course, on which the open tourney will be played on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was thronged with players, among them Gene Sarazen, and the best figures reported were 73s and 74s, and even in those there were concessions.

Sarazen, formerly professional at Fresh Meadow, went around with MacDonald Smith and Al Cuici and had a 74. After he had finished the round Gene's only complaint was that the rough on the Nos. 15, 16, and 18 holes was a bit too severe.

It is generally talked around that the first essential to getting anywhere in this year's tourney will be accuracy from the tees and luck in getting good lies for the second shot.

As the time for play draws near the men mentioned most often as the most likely candidates for the title now held by Billy Burke are Sarazen and George Von Elm. Tommy Armour and MacDonald Smith both have their supporters, but the Sarazen and Von Elm adherents are in the ascendency.

Frasier, Mahaffey Get Call Today in Sox-A's Game

Vic Frasier, who has been suffering from an injured hand since his appearance in the Boston series, will emerge from his retirement to pitch in the third game with the A's this afternoon. Le Roy Mahaffey will oppose him.

Yesterday's contest was the shortest of the year at Comiskey park. It consumed 1 hour and 28 minutes, despite the late prolongations.

Walberg's control was perfect. He walked none, hit none, and loosed no wild pitches. Each pitcher had the same number of strikeouts—three.

The benching of Kress furnished much buzzing. It was the first game Red had missed this year. It was figured that he has been trying too hard and that a rest would snap him out of his hitting and batting slump.

Pass holders had to drop dimes in a tin box at the pass gate. This caused great agony to many veteran crashers, who hate to give just as a matter of principle.

Lefty Grove pitched a few during practice yesterday, but it is said his ankle won't stand much strain until he gets back east for the big series with the Yanks.

Cochet Is Beaten! a Fellow Named Collins Does It

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 21.—The first upset of Wimbledon's annual tennis classic came on this afternoon in an almost pitiable duel which brought the defeat of Henri Cochet, greatest French player of all time, before the crushing service and furious rushes of an unranked Scotchman, I. G. Collins, who is known as a crack doubles player, but a poor singles competitor.

The score was 6-2, 8-6, 0-6, 6-3. It eliminated Cochet for the third successive year and definitely destroyed the legendary figure who is supposed to give away the first two sets just as a teaser.

His defeat overshadowed every other result of the day, including the nine matches in which eight Americans won and only one was defeated. Three new arrivals in men's singles won and Wilmer Allison was the only player taken to five sets. He beat G. L. Tuckett of Great Britain, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2. Francis X. Shields eliminated P. Gradguillot, lanky Egyptian, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3. John Van Ryn defeated C. H. Kingsley, Britisher, 6-3, 7-5, 2-6, 8-6.

Ellsworth Vines played four sets against H. S. Burrows of Great Britain, winning 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, and the defender, Sydney Wood, meeting a service nearly as fast as his own, trounced I. H. Wheatcroft after a rocky second set, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3. Gregory Mangin was the only American second round player winning in the minimum time. He whipped the Australian, Charles Sproule, 6-2, 6-2, 9-7.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody led three American women with an easy match against Martha Couquerque, Dutch champion, 6-1, 6-1, and Helen Jacobs triumphed by the same score over Miss G. M. Southwell, England. Mrs. Harper failed after a good start against Kathleen Stammers, British Wightman cup player, and lost, 1-6, 6-0, 7-5.

Collins ran away with the first set against Cochet, lived through a double crisis in the second and won the match in the fourth after a fluke third set in which both strove to throw away the last game while jockeying for service at the beginning of the next set.

Retzlaff Meets Marriner for Right to Climb

Charley Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., heavyweight boxer, and Les Marriner, former University of Illinois football player, will decide which is better qualified to advance in the professional boxing business when they meet in the ten round windup of Mique Malloy's boxing show Tuesday night at White City.

Still in their early twenties Retzlaff and Marriner have slowly climbed to a position where they are dangerous to the leading heavyweights. Each is a hard hitter. Retzlaff has scored 34 knockouts in about 50 matches.

COMPLETE TRUST AND ANNOUNCE CASH PAYMENTS

"Lincolnwood Plaza" Now Reorganized.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

Bondholders of the Lincolnwood Plaza apartments, at the northwest corner of Rockwell street and Farragut avenue, have been mailed an announcement that the formation of the Lincolnwood Plaza Liquidation trust has been completed and that a certificate of beneficial interest and $8 will be paid in exchange for each certificate of deposit turned in at the Chicago Bank of Commerce. Out of an issue of $82,000 bonds totaling $81,800, or all but $200, have been deposited.

"Distribution of this amount at the very outset of our operations is made possible through the fact that a small first mortgage loan of $13,500 has been negotiated which has enabled the Lincolnwood Plaza Liquidation trust to put all its current indebtedness on a funded basis where is will not come due for five years," the announcement states. "This loan also has enabled us to meet the request of many certificate owners for some immediate cash.

"May we point out to you the excellent condition in which this property comes to you at this time? All the expenses of the reorganization have been paid, as have the costs of forming the new trust. In 1929 and 1930 taxes have been paid in part and the balance protested, with a sufficient amount held in reserve to pay them in full should it be necessary.

Owned by Bondholders.

"A reserve also has been established to meet 1931 tax bills when issued. Two past due interest coupons have been paid. The property, which is in very good physical condition, is now owned solely by the former bondholders.

"It has been capably operated for nearly two years, under bond, by the Prudential Realty company, and until May of this year has shown a most satisfactory income return. This has now fallen off considerably, due to general conditions, but constant efforts are being made to increase it. All net proceeds are to be divided pro rata among the holders of the certificates after the payment of interest on the small first mortgage."

The original $82,000 issue was underwritten by the Hoppe Bond and Mortgage company in 1928. The building erected contains nineteen apartments of four rooms each. Collections of the Hoppe concern subsequently were taken over by Dovenmuehle, Inc.

All But $200 Deposited.

On May 5, 1930, both interest and principal defaulted and a bill was filed to foreclose the trust deed. On Oct. 1, 1930, a committee was formed. The bonds were called for deposit and $81,800 were deposited before a plan was sent out.

"This splendid response enabled the committee to act with definite assurance," said Theodore A. Buenger, president of Dovenmuehle, Inc., and one of the trust managers. "On Oct. 8, 1930, title was turned over to the committee by Frank Novak, owner of the fee, with an option to repurchase within three years at a specified figure, making it possible to dismiss the foreclosure suit.

"On Dec. 30, 1931, the committee was successful in buying Mr. Novak's option for the nominal sum of $1,000, making it possible to complete the new trust.

O. K.'d by Bondholders.

"Back in 1930 it had been decided to reorganize this property as a liquidation trust, a form that has since become widely adopted. Harry Z. and Bernard Perel, counsel for the committee, did much original research work in connection with this phase.

"On Feb. 18, 1932, the complete plan of reorganization was sent to the bondholders and approved by them. The Lincolnwood Plaza Liquidation trust was organized and the property transferred by the committee to the trust. Income will be distributed from time to time to the certificate holders."

On May 19, 1932, a first mortgage of $13,500 was secured from Dovenmuehle, Inc., thus making possible the funding of all present debts and the distribution of the $8 payment.

Reorganization Costs Lower.

The Lincolnwood Plaza protective committee, in a statement of receipts and disbursements, shows gross rents from January, 1931, to April, 1932, of $13,190; total expenses, $6,955; net rentals, $6,234. The receipts also show $2,726 received on Dec. 12, 1930, and $1,826 received from Dovenmuehle, Inc., on Dec. 19, 1930. Adding $13,500 by the first mortgage dated May 19, 1932, and another small item, gives total receipts of $24,303.

The disbursements are both interesting and significant, for many of the items are much lower than in the average reorganization. The depository fee of the Union Bank of Chicago was $261. Committee service and committee fees were $2,500. The new loan expenses were $675. Attorney fees were $2,500.

NEW U. S. TAXES AROUSE "BOOS" IN WHEAT PIT

Business Protests Against Imposts.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Business and finance took the first day of the new federal taxes with a bit of protest. In Chicago, grain traders on the Board of Trade staged something of a demonstration against the higher tax on transactions in grains for future delivery. This tax is 5 cents on $100 of valuation instead of 1 cent, as before.

The new tax particularly will complicate what is known as "split-price" dealings, especially in wheat futures. A "split" is a trade in wheat, for instance, at 57½ to 57⅝; that is, a trader offers a quantity at one price and another quantity at the other price, instead of a straight price for a whole lot. In effect, this is trading in fractions of one-sixteenth of 1 cent, whereas the regular price variation is one-eighth of a cent.

Boos Greet Trader.

A chorus of "boos" greeted the first trader to offer a "split" trade soon after the market opened. And when he renewed the offer, emphasizing it with the usual arm and finger signals denoting price, other traders raised an uproar that prevented trading. The same procedure took place throughout the session whenever traders attempted to make such trades. Traders figured that trading in "splits" would greatly reduce possible profits. Directors of the Board of Trade last night were considering eliminating this form of trading.

Both on the New York and Chicago stock exchanges, trading was extremely dull yesterday. Brokers were busy instructing their clerks on how to compute the new tax on security transactions. It is the duty of brokers to pay the taxes to the government, but of course they will collect the taxes from the customer. Anyway, brokers figured considerable additional bookkeeping will be involved, which isn't relished in these days of dull markets and almost vanishing profits.

Hits Short Sellers.

The new tax on securities will fall particularly hard on short sellers. While all sellers of stocks will have to pay 4 or 5 cents per $100 valuation, depending on market prices, short sellers will have to pay an additional tax of 5 cents a share on stock borrowed to deliver against their sales. Moreover, this tax might be multiplied if stocks borrowed by a short seller should be recalled by the lender and should have to be replaced before the short seller eventually bought back the stock he had sold.

This and other features of the new security taxes caused traders to hesitate both in Chicago and New York. While it was reported that there has been more than usual short covering in the last few days, the short interest had dwindled considerably by the end of May, according to the monthly report of the stock exchange officials, which showed the short interest around 2,000,000 shares on June 1.

Explain Tax on Checks.

Bankers were busy explaining to customers with checking accounts that the tax of 2 cents on each check will be paid by the bank and charged on the depositor's monthly statement. They also explained to holders of safety vault boxes that a tax of 10 per cent of the rental will be collected.

It would appear that many retail merchants have avoided early payment of new taxes by stocking up in advance. A fair increase in the movement of commodities by the railroads suggested this buying. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 11 totaling 501,760 cars, an increase of 54,373 over the preceding week, although still 230,649 cars below the same period last year. The current reports show that miscellaneous freight totaled 195,549 cars, a decrease of 99,052 cars under the corresponding week last year; merchandise, 176,681; decrease 42,035; grain and grain products 24,623, decrease 6,336; coal 66,833, decrease 39,577; forest products 17,074, decrease 13,472; ore 3,141, decrease 24,473; coke 3,647, decrease 2,815; live stock, 15,212, decrease 2,889.

NEW TAXES INTERPRETED

Washington, D. C., June 21.—(AP)—Preparations for collecting $450,500,000 of manufacturers' excise taxes, which went into effect last midnight, were completed today by the internal revenue bureau.

"Producer" was defined to include those who make a taxable article by processing, manipulating or changing the form, or by combining two or more articles.

A manufacturer who sells a taxable article in a "knockdown condition," but complete in component parts, is liable to the levy.

Generally, the regulations said, the tax attaches when title to the article sold passes from the maker to the purchaser. In the case of a sale on credit, it is immaterial whether the purchase price actually is collected.

Offers Some Exceptions.

No tax shall be imposed on articles sold for use in the manufacture or production of a taxable article, except in the case of tires, inner tubes, and furs.

In order to gain this exemption the vendor must obtain from the purchaser a certificate that the goods so purchased will be used as material in the manufacture of a taxable article, or are for use as a component part of a taxable article to be made.

Jobbers or dealers, who are not manufacturers, and users who are not manufacturing taxable articles, are not entitled to purchase free from tax.

If articles sold are returned and the sale entirely rescinded by refund of the entire amount paid, including tax, no tax is payable upon the transaction, and if paid it may be credited or refunded.

Senate Votes Further Quiz of Stock Deals

Washington, D. C., June 21.—(AP)—Told of alleged tax evasions mounting into the millions, the senate today authorized its banking committee to continue its investigation of the stock market until the expiration of the present congress on March 4.

The senate voted the committee the full $50,000 expense money asked despite the recommendation of the committee on audit and control that the amount be cut in half. Thus the prospects are that numerous cases will be added when congress reconvenes in December.

Senators Foresee Benefits.

Senator Johnson [Rep., Cal.] said it appeared the cost of continuing the investigation would be more than repaid in recovered taxes and in benefit to the country, while Senator Robinson [Rep., Ind.] said that if those responsible for the market crash can be identified they should be prosecuted.

"We find," said Chairman Norbeck [Rep., S. D.] of the banking committee, "that William Fox, of the Fox theaters, speculated on his own account in the stock of his own firm. When the market shrank and he lost some three or four million dollars, he had that loss taken over by his company, but in making up his tax return he charged it to himself and deducted that loss from his own income.

Threatens Fox Suit.

"So there is no doubt that probably half a million dollars of taxes can easily be recovered on the record in that case, and no defense is possible against it, if the man is financially responsible, and he is reputed still to be worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000."

Norbeck said President Richard Whitney of the New York Stock exchange "admitted that 25,000,000 people lost their money in the market crash, and that their losses amounted to $50,000,000,000, against which Teapot Dome looks like a very small affair."

Fox Made Defendant.

Mineola, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—William Fox, theater magnate, and six others were named defendants in a suit filed in Nassau county Supreme court today by the Fox Theater corporation, seeking to recover more than $5,000,000 in profits and salaries.

The others, identified as relatives and friends, were named as Jack Leo, Eva Fox, John Zanft, Jacob F. Rubenstein, Bessie Livingstone, and Caroline Lea Tauszig. The latter is the daughter of Fox, who was president of Fox Films for a number of years.

The action set forth that Fox and the co-defendants reaped large gains "of fraudulent and secretive nature" during the period he was in complete control of the company. It was alleged also he paid large salaries, some amounting to $40,000 a year, to the other defendants.

In one instance occurring in November, 1925, Fox sold 500,000 shares of class A stock for $25 a share, it was asserted, and arranged secretly with a brokerage house to receive a share of the commission amounting to $375,000. Again, it was charged, he sold 55,000 shares short after obtaining an option to buy an identic quantity at a lower price.

Warner Bros. Answer Suit.

Wilmington, Del., June 21.—(AP)—A net loss of $7,918,604 for the fiscal year ending Aug. 29, 1931, including writeoffs and depreciation, was admitted by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., in an answer filed today to a federal court receivership suit, but allegations of mismanagement were denied.

The answer said Warner Brothers employed Constance Bennett to make two pictures at a salary of $150,000 for each, and that Ruth Chatterton and William Powell were paid "large salaries." It denied, however, that these stars were lured from competitors by irregularities.

Buys Music Publishing Concern.

The corporation also admitted acquiring the music publishing firm of M. Witmark & Sons, but denied this and other publishing houses were taken over to provide jobs for the sons of Warner Brothers directors, as the receivership petition alleged.

It also denied the charge that Goldman Sachs & Co. and Hayden Stone & Co. sold about 15 million dollars worth of its stock at a price 20 times in excess of its market value, and said that in May, 1931, relations with these firms were terminated and their representatives resigned from the Warner Brothers directorate.

The suit was filed by Harry Koplar of University City, Mo., as a stockholder. It named as individual defendants Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner, Wadill Catchings, Henry A. Rudkin, Harold S. Bareford, Stanleigh P. Friedman, Abel Cary Thomas, Moe Mark, Jack L. Warner, Morris Wolf, and Sam E. Morris, officers or directors of Warner Brothers.

COURT TAKES NEW ACTION ON MIDDLE WEST

To Cash Policies on Ex-Officials.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Canceling of life insurance policies totaling $2,436,000 carried by the Middle West Utilities company on several officials and former officers was authorized yesterday in an order issued by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

The insurance policies include one for $750,000 for Martin Insull, former president, and one for $400,000 for Samuel Insull, former chairman and founder of the company. The policies will be redeemed for their cash surrender value. Other policies ranged from $25,000 to $400,000 on various officials of the company. The policies of the Insulls and C. E. Packman, another official, may be allowed to run two years longer, when the surrender value will be considerably enhanced.

The orders were issued by Judge Lindley at the request of the receivers, who were represented in court by Attorney John W. Kearns.

At the same time Judge Lindley authorized the receivers to discontinue the company stock transfer agencies and registrars. This latter action may lead to the removal of the company's securities from the Chicago Stock exchange and the New York curb.

Will Save Money.

The order authorizing the discontinuance of the transfer agencies and registrars is expected to save the company $45,000 annually. Under the order the company is permitted to charge 50 cents for each stock transfer. The Middle West Stock Transfer company, an affiliate, is not affected by the order. Maintenance of the agencies is ordinarily required by the exchanges and discontinuance is usually followed by the delisting of the securities affected.

While it is considered likely that the New York curb will take such action, officials of the Chicago exchange were uncertain last night whether removal of the securities would be ordered. The Chicago exchange always has been the chief market for the stock and it was felt that striking the shares from the list might be deferred. Chicago traders received big commissions on the heavy transactions in the stock in recent years. Recent trading in the issue, however, has been light. Ranging between 25 and 37½ cents a share, the volume yesterday of 1,400 shares involved less than $500 turnover.

To Pay Loan Interest.

The receivers also were permitted to pay interest of $868,000 owed by the company to several institutions. The recipients of the interest will be the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, the First National bank, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Kansas Electric Power company, and the Kentucky Utilities company. The interest is due on loans made by the various interests to Middle West. The loans are secured by collateral.

Funds for the payment will be obtained from the income on the collateral and the difference will revert to the company.

The auction of the Insull collateral held by the New York banks which is scheduled for today will be delayed again, according to indications yesterday. The banks have appealed the order of Judge Lindley restraining the sale. Pending a decision by the Court of Appeals it is expected that the auction will be put off again.

The collateral involved, held by four New York banks, consists of 77,516 shares of Peoples Gas, 50,981 shares of Commonwealth Edison, and 24,554 shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois no par stock. The banks had proposed to sell the pledges to satisfy loans made to the two Insull investment trusts. Judge Lindley forbade the auction on the grounds that it would remove the last chance of the other creditors and security holders to salvage anything.

Two to Pay Dividends.

Two operating subsidiaries of the Midland United company, the Insull holding company in Indiana, yesterday authorized the payment of the usual dividends on the preferred stocks. While the directors of these companies were declaring the regular payments the board of the North West Utilities company, a unit of the Middle West system, voted to suspend dividends on the company's 7 per cent prior lien stock.

The Midland United firms which voted their usual payments are the Northern Indiana Public Service and the Public Service company of Indiana. The latter firm authorized dividends on its two classes of senior stock and the former authorized the usual disbursements on three classes of preferred. The dividends are all payable July 14 to holders of record June 30.

Big Smelting Concern Omits Two Dividends

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—Directors of the American Smelting and Refining company approved today omission of regular quarterly dividends, due at this time on the 6 and 7 per cent preferred stocks. The board passed the common disbursement April 6.

At that time F. H. Brownwell, chairman, indicated the company was doing much better than in the 1921 depression. He further added that based on the worst month this year to date, American Smelting stands to lose about $750,000 for the year, after bond interest, depreciation, and depletion.

Following the meeting of the board today an official of the company said the decision to omit the dividend was deemed advisable in order to conserve the company's strong cash position in view of the prevailing low prices of all metal and consequent reduction in the earnings of the company. The company has no outstanding bank loans.

Dividend for Howe Sound.

Declaration of a quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share on the stock of Howe Sound company marks the second consecutive reduction in the quarterly dividend rate. In the previous quarter the company cut its dividend from 50 cents to 25 cents a share.

The Lawyers' Mortgage company voted today a quarterly dividend of 20 cents, payable June 30 to holders of record June 21. Three months ago the dividend was reduced from 70 cents to 35 cents.

"Notwithstanding the fact," the statement said, "that the company's earnings were substantially in excess of the dividend requirement, the directors, in view of the company's policy of strengthening surplus by adding to it a substantial portion of current earnings, placed the stock on a $1.60 annual basis by declaring a quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share, compared with 50 cents paid previously."

Omit Quarterly Payment.

Directors of the Vogt Manufacturing company have omitted the quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share due at this time.

McAleer Manufacturing company has omitted the quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share due at this time on the common stock.

The directors of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad authorized the semi-annual payment on the adjustment mortgage 5 per cent bonds.

The Borden company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents. This compares with quarterly dividends of 75 cents paid March 1 and June 1 this year. Arthur W. Milburn, chief executive, said: "The quarterly rate of 50 cents per share is within the presently indicated earnings per share for the year 1932. In taking this action the directors deemed as of first importance the protection of the company's strong working capital and balance sheet position."

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada directors deferred action on the semi-annual common stock dividend. In the last 6 months the company paid $1.25 and a 5 per cent stock dividend.

NORTHERN TRUST VOTES TO MAINTAIN $18 YEARLY DIVIDEND

Directors of the Northern Trust yesterday voted to maintain the regular $18 annual dividend rate on the capital stock. The action was taken through the authorization of the usual quarterly dividend of $4.50 a share. The dividend is payable July 1. The $18 rate has been in force for the last two years. Prior to that the bank paid $15 yearly on a regular basis and $2 extra.

The action of the bank directors yesterday came as something of a surprise to the financial community which has grown accustomed of late to reductions in bank dividends. Nearly all of Chicago's banks, including the loop institutions, have reduced their payments recently.

The directors of the Link Belt company yesterday voted a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share. This places the company's stock on an 80 cent yearly basis, as compared with $1.20 formerly. While second quarter operations of the company are said to run in the red it is understood that the loss for the period will be smaller than in the first three months of the year when a loss of $174,800 was reported.

SAN FRANCISCO $6,336,000 ISSUE PUT ON MARKET

An issue of $6,336,000 San Francisco city and county Hetch Hetchy water bonds was offered yesterday by a banking group headed by R. H. Moulton & Co. in New York, and Harris Trust and Savings Bank here, and including Northern Trust company, Bankers Trust of New York, Chase-Harris-Forbes corporation, Kelly, Richardson & Co., Dean, Winter & Co., First National Old Colony corporation, Securities First National company, R. W. Pressprich & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Philadelphia National company.

An issue of $300,000 Kansas City (Mo.) 4½ per cent school bonds was awarded yesteday to a banking group headed by Stern Bros. & Co., Kansas City, and Mercantile-Commerce company, St. Louis, on a bid of 100.526.

A. W. Harris Says Report on Holdings Was Error

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, said yesterday that the compilation of Chicago bank stockholders published Saturday showing that he had increased his holdings of Harris stock 10,400 shares during the year was an error.

Mr. Harris explained that it would have been impossible to have bought that much stock in his bank, that actually he had bought 363 additional shares during the year.

Fisher Succeeds Insull on Peabody Coal Board

Walter A. Fisher was elected to the board of the Peabody Coal company yesterday to fill the post left vacant by the resignation of Samuel Insull. Other directors and officers were re-elected.

Buffington to Quit July 1 as Steel Chief

E. J. BUFFINGTON.

Eugene J. Buffington, who rose from a salesman of wire nails to the presidency of the Illinois Steel company, is to retire on July 1 from the position he has held for 24 years. Announcement of Mr. Buffington's retirement was made yesterday from the New York office of the United States Steel corporation, of which Illinois Steel is a subsidiary. Mr. Buffington is approaching 70 and leaves his office under the steel corporation's pension system.

George C. Thorp, now vice president of the Illinois Steel company, will succeed him. It is expected that George Cook Kimball will be elected to Mr. Thorp's position.

Pioneer of Wire Nails.

Mr. Buffington entered the business world in 1884 following his graduation from Vanderbilt university of Nashville, Tenn. He decided to take a try at the sale of wire nails—a product then in favor in France and Germany, but ridiculed in this country which used only steel cut nails. The young man established a small plant in his home town, Covington, Kentucky, and acted as his own salesman.

Five years and then Mr. Buffington had attained a sufficient measure of success to enable him to establish a larger plant at Anderson, Indiana. Then, in 1888, Mr. Buffington came to Chicago to become an officer of the American Steel & Wire Co. Another year and he succeeded the late John W. Gates as president of the company which he is now leaving. However, he will not entirely give up business for he will remain as a director of the United States Steel corporation.

Gives Views on Success.

Discussing the way to success, Mr. Buffington remarked some years ago:

"The road to success cannot be mapped like a motor highway, with signs reading 'Turn Right Here' and 'Straight Ahead' there. Given the opportunity, the young man must have the stuff in him to measure up to it. He must look forward, not backward.

"He must have character. He must be sincere, frank, loyal. He must have stamina. And these must have as their basis, energy—the will to achieve, to render service."

Board of Trade Reduces Wages on Sliding Scale

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 21.—The share market stuck to its shell again today. Price changes of more than a point were the exception and the turnover once more fell considerably short of the half million mark, making it one of the two dullest days in some eight years.

Aside from a disappointing set of weekly freight traffic figures, the news haul offered nothing at all to get excited over. Commentators agreed that such calendar headliners as congress and the Lausanne conference still held possibility of market import but just now neither is hitting off any sparks so far as can be seen from here. Also, vacation time is at hand and the traders are finding it more and more difficult to get their minds on the prosaic business of buying and selling shares.

Starts Off Quietly.

Up to the appearance of the carloadings statement around midday, the market seemed bent on setting an all time record for dullness today. Hundreds of issues ordinarily active had not appeared on the tape at all and the volume of many others to which traders customarily look for light on the trend was such as to cause a general scratching of heads in sheer puzzlement.

The carloadings figures showing a total of only 501,765 cars for the week ended June 11, an increase of only 54,373 over the preceding week when the total was handicapped by Memorial day, caused some show of activity but it was mainly on the wrong side of the column. Some of the rails had to stand and deliver, after a fashion. Atchison lost a point and Union Pacific fared a little worse even, but there was not enough energy in the bear camp to make the devastation important.

Selling in Phone.

Fairly heavy selling came into American Telephone and two or three other active issues for a time. Tele-

PUBLIC SERVICE, N.J., CUTS WAGES, DIVIDENDS, TOO

As Earnings Fall and Taxes Rise.

Public Service corporation of New Jersey and subsidiaries report May gross earnings at $10,259,167, against $11,343,849 for May, 1931, a decrease of $1,084,682. Net income from operations totaled $3,258,750, against $3,531,910 in 1931, a decrease of $273,160. The balance available for dividends and surplus for May amounted to $2,073,817, against $2,218,695 in May, 1931, a decrease of $144,878.

For the twelve months ended May 31, 1932, gross earnings were $133,145,318, against $139,276,208 for the previous twelve months, a decrease of $6,130,890. Net income from operations amounted to $44,757,490, against $44,887,492, a decrease of $130,002. The balance available for dividends and surplus amounted to $30,393,510 for the twelve months ended May, 1932, against $31,365,333 for the same period last year, a decrease of $971,823.

Cut Wages, Dividends.

The directors voted yesterday to make a 6 per cent reduction applicable to both its pay roll and to dividends payable to holders of its common stock, to meet conditions due to reduced earnings and to additional costs imposed by the new federal budget-balancing tax law.

The 6 per cent reduction in salaries and wages will amount to about $1,050,000 for the remainder of this year and the 6 per cent cut in common stock dividend will aggregate $550,000 for the same period, Thomas N. McCarter, president of the company, announced following the meeting.

To Save Over Million.

The dividend rate on the common stock will be reduced from $3.40 annually to $3.20 annually per share, or an aggregate reduction of $1,100,639 a year on the 5,503,193 common shares outstanding.

It will reduce the income of the United Gas Improvement company, which owns 2,017,490 common shares, or 36.63 per cent of the total amount, by $403,498 on an annual basis. The annual income of the United corporation, which owns 988,271 common shares, or 17.96 per cent of the total, will be reduced by $197,654.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 9,000.

Cattle and hogs performed well for the selling side on light receipts again yesterday. The former moved forward to the tune of 10@15c, top steers reaching $8.10 on the early morning bulge, the highest price since April 26. Swine staged a strong rally after sagging in midsession and finished slightly higher for the day. Cattle prices have fared best since live stock prices started upward early in June.

Top steers yesterday were exactly $4.00 above the best hog price and within 50c of the top for cattle on the corresponding day in 1931. Hogs are still selling $3.00@3.50 under a year ago, while lambs show $1.00@1.50 loss, compared with 1931.

Good Grades in Demand.

Buying in the cattle yards yesterday centered in best grades of steers eligible to $7.25 and above. Eastern representatives set the pace soon after the start, but met good local competition for top kinds. Prime 1,144 lb steers to Swift at $8.10 established the new top, while $8.00 was a popular price for other "stickout" loads averaging 1,200@1,500 lbs. A big share of the day's offerings of beef steers got over the scales at $7.50@7.75, but the inside price in the bulk of sales ranged downwards to $6.25.

Only scattered lots of thin ill bred stock sold below $6.00. Grain fed cows held firm, some of the best going at $5.00@5.25 showed additional gains.

The bulk of good to choice cows sold at $3.75@4.50. Yearling heifers sold at the highest prices since April 21, the tops reaching $6.85.

Unevenness in hogs yesterday ranged from 10c lower to 10c higher, best grades of both butchers and packing sows showing the gain, while poorer kinds and extremely heavy "packers" ruled weak to 10c lower. The extreme top at $4.10 was unchanged, but the general average at $3.80 showed 5c gain. Demand in packing grades was limited to the light and handy weight sows on the butcher order. Extreme weights were neglected and hard to sell. Closely sorted 150@250 lb hogs sold at $4.05@4.10, while most 260@300 lb butchers brought $3.75@4.00. Prime 331 lb hogs reached $3.80 and 400 lb averages, $3.50. Good 275@400 lb sows sold at $3.25@3.60 and 500@600 lb averages at $2.85@3.00.

Hog receipts have been exceptionally light at Chicago for several weeks. The total so far this month stands at only 307,000, against 360,000 a year ago. It is the smallest for June since 1918.

Lambs Closely Sorted.

Drastic sorting was demanded by buyers yesterday when the proportion of light thin native lambs increased. Prices for top classes held steady, but only a small share carried the weight and quality required by buyers of best grades. City butchers hand picked a few strong weight native lambs up to $7.00, but packers took the bulk of good kinds at $6.25@6.50 and bought buck lambs at $5.00@5.50. All light lambs came out and prices for these were knocked down in line with culls, selling largely at $5.00 and below. Seven carloads of Idaho range lambs sold 25c lower at $6.50. Aged sheep scored a slight recovery, light ewes advancing to $2.50, the highest paid for aged mutton stock since April 26.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 8,000 cattle, 19,000 hogs, and 9,000 sheep, against 6,461 cattle, 17,742 hogs, and 9,472 sheep, the previous Wednesday and 9,707 cattle, 19,383 hogs, and 12,377 sheep, a year ago.

GASOLINE AND OILS.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Bleachable cotton seed oil closed barely steady, unchanged to 8 points lower. The trading feature was the liquidation of July through local commission houses against purchases of the last few months. Locals sold in sympathy with the late reaction in grains, the latter offsetting the advance in lard and cotton. Sales, 2,300 bris. Crude oil was 2½@3c in the southeast and the valley and 2½@2¾c in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.65c, July, 3.75c; September, 3.75c; December, 3.90c; January, 3.90c.

CANADIAN SALES GAIN.

Perfect Circle company of Hagerstown, Ind., reports a gain of 38 per cent in Canadian sales for the first five months of 1932 over the same period of 1931. May sales showed a gain of 48 per cent over May, 1931.

Lowest Rate In Chicago!
COMMONWEALTH'S RATE is the lowest in Chicago on loans above $100 and up to $300.
The personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.
Take 25 months to repay or if you pay in less time you are charged only for the time you keep the money. This allows you to control the cost yourself.
Also Salary and Auto Loans.
